Diamond 2,000 Carats Germany Does. Let Us! Ladies, News for You The Hired Killer Kills

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd.)

ADVENTUROUS YOUNG gentlemen will read with some excitement: "In upper waters of the Saobento river, Brazil, prospectors have found a collection of large diamonds, including one weighing 2,000 carats, next to the biggest ever discovered."

Diamonds are something like human brains. This diamond, if of fine quality, would be worth $10,000,000, whereas of inferior quality, good only to make diamond drills, it might be worth only $1,000.

The brain of Edison, creating work for millions of men, is worth many BILLIONS, while millions of other brains are not worth ten cents the dozen.

ALSO, THIS DIAMOND emphasizes the importance of the right education and training. Left in the rough, the diamond would be only a curiosity. It must be cut and polished, then comes its value.

So with human raw material. It needs the cutting of education, and the polishing of experience.

What applies to diamonds and human beings applies to other substances. A ton of iron in the rough might be worth ten or fifteen dollars. The same ton of iron, scientifically treated and made into a ton of fine watch springs would be worth several million dollars.

HERR ECKENER, veteran German flier, will take his big Zeppelin from Germany to South America, then from Brazil to the Chicago "Century of Progress" exposition.

This country, which has the money, the engineering skill, and practically everything but the enterprise and the courage, will look on while Germany does what this country has been unable to do.

We are going to tag on to the German achievement however, by printing postage stamps at fifty cents apiece, to carry Zeppelin mail to the Chicago exposition and give us a little income.

THERE WAS A DAY when the American nation, if it saw another country flying across the ocean to South America, north to Chicago and back to Germany would not be content merely to print a fifty-cent stamp in honor of the event. Perhaps when we get over our little patching of payrolls and hours we shall return to doing real things, indicating power and ambition.

TWO PIECES OF news to interest every woman.

Number one, a woman of 25 in Chicago, told by friends that she looked young, thought she would find out about it, bought a child's ticket to the exposition and went in unquestioned.

JUNIOR COLLEGE OPENS TOMORROW

325 Students Now Enrolled; Three Faculty Members Added

Tomorrow morning the Ouachita parish junior college will throw open its doors for the third year of its operation, with the same faculty that was in charge last year, together with several additions, making it even stronger and more efficient than ever, President C. C. Colvert said yesterday. The new faculty members are Mrs. Emma Alexander, in charge of the department of public speech; Miss Florence Zeigler, piano, and Miss Lillian Baker, instructor in Spanish.

Registrations ended at 5 p.m. Saturday when the enrollment of the two classes, juniors and seniors, had reached a total of 325, with a number more anticipated this week who were unable to enroll sooner.

President Colvert stated that the college opens under auspicious circumstances and that he anticipates a highly successful year.

Financing of the institution for the next nine months has been provided for by the state, which is to utilize funds from the governor's contingent fund that will be made available.

Law Students to Urge That Dean Tullis Stay

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 23.—(AP)—The calling of a meeting of Louisiana State university law students for early next week to urge continued connection of Dean-Emeritus R. L. Tullis with the university law school in an active teaching capacity was announced tonight by Robert Lane Fuller, of Dubach, La., senior law class president.

Fuller said a committee would probably be appointed at the meeting to take up the matter with Dr. James M. Smith, university president.

He said that when Tullis became dean-emeritus last session it was believed he would continue teaching, and that students had come to L. S. U. to take his courses.

U. S. PRISONERS' RESCUE DELAYED; DESTROYER READY

NEW CRISIS LOOMING

Army Turns Attention to Possible Food Shortage at Havana

HAVANA, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The American destroyer Hamilton stood off the north coast of Oriente province tonight, ready to receive on board 16 Americans and Britons held prisoners of striking Cuban workers, but their removal to safety was held in abeyance pending negotiations with the strikers.

Representatives of the sugar mill owners planned to leave Havana by airplane to participate in the negotiations. Three women and five children were among those reported held prisoner by strikers, with food running short and no milk for the young ones.

Affairs in Havana seemed to be moving toward a new crisis with threat of famine in the capital, spread of disease, and financial difficulties hemming the administration of Ramon Grau San Martin on all sides.

A rebellious movement in Matanzas province fell today, apparently of its own weight, and the army supporting the administration turned its attention to Havana's possible food shortage, which resulted from a strike of warehousemen, still unsettled. The army started a survey of all the foodstuffs on Havana docks.

The American destroyer moved into position as near as possible to the besieged sugar mill when it became known that food supplies were running short. Besiegers had threatened to cut off the water mains leading to the homes of the foreigners.

The mills are about a mile and a half from the coast line. They are owned by American interests, including groups represented by Percy Rockefeller and Vincent Astor.

TRAPPED MINERS ARE FOUND SAFE

Priest Crawls in to Give Last Rites, Finds Trio Unharmed

HAZLETON, Pa., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Three miners, entombed by tons of earth dropped in a shaft of a Glen Alden Coal company mine at nearby Tesckow, tonight were rescued unharmed though standing in water up to their shoulders.

The miners were trapped when a pillar they were blasting suddenly collapsed, cutting off thir escape through the only gangway leading to the surface.

After rescue crews, working in relays throughout the day, had bored a hole through tons of debris, the Rev. Felix Levuda, a priest, crawled through the small opening to administer the last rites of the church to the men believed dead.

But the priest instead spied the men some distance away, standing on a slope and nearly submerged by water. They shouted the water was about eight feet deep between their perch and the rescue outlet, and none of them could swim.

Calling to the three marooned men to have patience, Father Levuda went to the surface to the miners' waiting families with the good news that the men were safe. Other miners went below with ropes and one by one dragged the three through the deep water to safety.

Those rescued were George Christiana, Jr., Hazleton; Edward Kozloski, of Audenried, and Joseph Sentawany, of Coleraine.

Six Escaped Criminals Hunted in Three States

GENEVA, Ala., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Six desperadoes who slid to freedom down a rope of blankets early today to escape from the Geneva county jail, tonight were sought in three states, Alabama, Georgia and Florida.

All of the men were described by Sheriff J. A. Driver as desperate characters, three of whom, S. C. Sheehan, Jack Curtis and Walter Sharp, were held on charges of murder and the others, Hugh Gantt, John C. Smith and James McNeely, were wanted in Florida. Gantt and McNeely were charged with robbing postoffices, and Smith was accused of stealing an automobile.

After escaping from the third floor of the jail by unlocking the cell block and sawing bars from a window the six men stole an automobile here and drove away.

BASTROP LEGION DEDICATES CLUB

Legion Commander Speaks; Sterlington Installs Officers

BASTROP, La., Sept. 23.—(Special)—Addresses by Larry Fox of Ruston, newly elected Louisiana Legion department commander, Sam Jones of Lake Charles, national executive committeeman from Louisiana and other prominent American Legion officials, featured the dedication of the beautiful new club house of the Bastrop Legion post and the installation of officers of the newly-organized Sterlington Legion post, in a joint ceremony Saturday night.

The clubhouse of the local Scott L. Hood Legion post was completed recently at a cost of nearly $2,000. It is located on Bayou Bartholomew about 11 miles from Bastrop.

More than 200 Legionnaires from both Morehouse and Ouachita parishes attended the exercises, which were featured by a barbecue.

Dr. W. A. Rodgers, commander of the Bastrop Legion post, welcomed the visiting Legionnaires to the clubhouse and reviewed some of the activities of the Bastrop post. The speakers and guests were introduced by E. L. Gladney, Jr., of Bastrop.

Officers of the new Sterlington post, which was organized recently with 65 charter members, were installed into office by Department Commander-elect Fox of Ruston in an impressive ceremony. Dr. C. L. Mengis, organizer of the Sterlington post, in a brief address, predicted that the new post will be one of the most active in the state.

The principal address was delivered by Mr. Jones, past commander of the Louisiana department of the American Legion, who reviewed the aims and objectives of the American Legion and told of the work that the Louisiana department has accomplished.

Short addresses were also made by Legion officials of posts in this district.

Home of Huey Long Is Threatened by Blaze

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Two fires threatened the home of Senator Huey P. Long early today while Mrs. Long was in the home alone. Each time a policeman called the fire department and the flames were extinguished after causing an estimated $1,700 damage.

This makes the third fire this year that has threatened the senator's $40,000 home on Audubon boulevard and police have been unable to account for their origin.

The first fire was discovered at 1 a.m. today in a clothes basket in the washroom of the house. Firemen put it out but at 3:20 a.m. the firemen were called back to extinguish a fire in the basement.

Several months ago a fire burned the senator's automobile in the garage.

Claiborne Receives 187 Plow-Up Checks

HOMER, La., Sept. 23.—(Special)—One hundred and eighty-seven checks totaling $16,019 due the Claiborne parish farmers for plowing up their pledged acreage, have been received here this week by the parish agent. This was the first group of checks received in this parish.

A total of 2,704 federal checks representing $230,000 will be received and paid the farmers when all checks are received. The farmers are notified and they are distributed when they arrive.

Two Persons Are Held in Plot to Kidnap Wealthy Bride

(By Associated Press)

Sporadic outbursts of criminal activity in various parts of the nation yesterday proved largely futile in the face of prompt police action.

Authorities nipped the attempt to kidnap Mrs. John K. Dougherty, niece of Morgan partner Russel C. Leffingwell and daughter of socially prominent Franklin A. Batcheller, wealthy Yonkers, N. Y., broker on the eve of her wedding. The marriage ceremony was conducted under federal guard.

Meanwhile in Oklahoma City the state completed its case against a dozen defendants charged with the $200,000 kidnaping of wealthy oil-man Charles F. Urschel. One of the defendants is Harvey Bailey.

In Chicago authorities sought to solve the federal reserve bank messenger holdup that netted bandits a lot of periodicals and worthless cancelled checks.

Seven accused killers and robbers and kidnapers wanted chiefly in connection with the O'Connell snatch case, were behind bars in Tombs prison in New York while police ran down myriad clues to the criminal machinations of the gang, two of which are women.

BOLD KIDNAPING PLOT FRUSTRATED

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(AP)—A bold plot to kidnap the niece of a Morgan partner even while she prepared her wedding trousseau was revealed today by authorities who held a nurse and a filling station manager for the crime.

They were arrested in Yonkers by officers who used the old dummy package lure to trap them at a rendezvous and charge them with attempted extortion against Mrs. John K. Dougherty, society leader, bride and heiress to millions.

She is the niece of Russell C. Leffingwell, partner of J. P. Morgan &

FAIR CONTEST TO END IN 3 WEEKS

Five Persons in Monroe District to Make Interesting Trip

Three weeks from today there will be some happy people in northeast Louisiana, for on that day formal announcement is to be made of the outcome of the News-Star-World contest which is to send five persons from the Monroe district to the Century of Progress and one from the Bastrop district. It will be an all-expense trip. If the winners in the popularity contest, do not care to go to the Chicago fair, they can elect to receive each $100 in cash, which is the alternative provided in the terms of the contest.

Each day there is increasing activity on the part of the contestants and their friends as the time grows shorter. Thousands and thousands of votes are being cast. The past week many thousand caps of Coca-Cola bottles, each good for five votes, were taken to the News-Star-World office. They comprised the contents of many big barrels and boxes and revealed the

CHICAGO IS SCENE OF WIDE MANHUNT

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The nationwide hunt for George (Machine Gun) Kelly, suspect in half a doden major crimes of the southwest, was focusing on the Chicago area tonight.

A picture of a man known locally as "J. J. Rosenberg," suspected owner of the armored car which figured Friday in a daring mail messenger holdup and the slaying of a policeman, was identified, Chief of Police William Schoemaker said, as that of Kelly.

Who made the identification was a carefully guarded police secret but Schoemaker intimated it was by a close acquaintance of Rosenberg.

Shortly before police announced this progress in the widespread hunt for the slayers of Policeman Miles Cunningham and the robbers of the Federal Reserve bank mail truck, Theodore Rosenberg, who had been brought to the station on an anonymous tip, was released. Theodore Rosenberg established his status as a reputable citizen and it was disclosed that he was a prospective candidate for the police force from department lists.

BOLL WORM FOUND

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Discovery of the pink boll worm, cotton's worst enemy, in gin trash at Enigma, Ga., 13 miles east of Tifton, was announced here today by Lee A. Strong, chief of the U. S. bureau of plant quarantine, and Manning S. Yeomans, state entomologist. They said they believed the infestation is light.

Highway Financing Costly to Taxpayers

Frenzied Methods Hit Public Pocketbook and State's Creditors

This is another of a series of articles on assessments, taxation and the costs of government in Louisiana. The author, from long experience in public affairs, is thoroughly familiar with the subject and his purpose is to tell in simple language that all may understand how the state and its agencies handle the huge volume of funds derived from a greater variety of taxes, licenses, etc., than any other state has.

Through its chairman, A. P. Tugwell, the Louisiana Highway commission is about to issue $10,000,000 additional highway bonds to unfortunate creditors of the commission, who must accept them or get nothing. More: the helpless creditors must take at par securities which may today be bought on the open market at a considerable discount. As originally planned and promised, they were to receive some cash; but Uncle Sam refused to "kick in" and deflated bonds is about all the commission's creditors may hope for. On September 30, $7,500,000 of what Mr. Tugwell is pleased to style "short term bonds" will be disposed of, and on October 16, the creditors will be allowed to acquire $2,500,000 more. This will make altogether $32,945,000 of road bonds issued by the highway commission.

The plight of the commission's creditors who must take what they can get and look cheerful, would probably carry a strong appeal to public sympathy if the public itself

Footing Car Tax Bill

Statistics issued by the American Automobile association show that taxes assessed per motor vehicle in Louisiana are 67 per cent higher than the American average for states. According to this authority, the tax aggregate per car in the United States is $39.74. In Louisiana it is $59.66. That is what the average car owner pays the state annually for the privilege of operating his vehicle, costs of operation not included. The average tax per cent of car valuation in the United States is 20.1. In Louisiana it is 30.2.

Texas has an aggregate tax per vehicle of $37.59, considerably under the American average. This accounts for the appearance of so many Texas licenses along the western border of Louisiana. North Carolina, with a system of hard-surfaced roads not even approached by Louisiana, has a tax aggregate per vehicle of $50.47, much under that of this state. California, doubtless the leading American state in the matter of cement roads, has a tax aggregate per car of $39.29, about the American average.

TAXPAYERS URGE ACTION TO EASE BURDEN IN STATE

Resolutions Passed Asking Allen to Include Relief in Call

HEYWOOD GIVES TALK

Governor Will Act If Given Aid, Says Commission Member

CROWLEY, La., Sept. 23.—(AP)—A request for Governor O. K. Allen to include in his proposed special session call of the legislature tax relief and approval of recommendations of the Louisiana tax reform commission was made in resolutions passed today by the Acadia Parish Taxpayers association in a meeting attended here by members of the Louisiana tax reform commission and more than 100 taxpayers.

The association pointed out in the resolution "great need for relief from burdensome taxation and excessive governmental expenditures" and urged Governor Allen to provide for reform of the present taxation system and for curtailment of government costs.

Senator W. Scott Heywood, member of the commission, gave an account of creation of the commission and its work. He pointed out that Governor Allen had named the commission, had agreed to act upon its recommendations and felt confident that he would do so if sufficient support is given him by taxpayers of the state.

He declared that Governor Allen had never said he would not provide relief but that action would be necessary on the part of the taxpayers of the state.

Senator Arthur Gardiner, Acadia parish, another member of the commission, sounded a plea for the school program in his talk. He said the commission's proposal for aid to schools as outlined in the commissioner's third report, would give Acadia parish $295,992, or the peak amount

ROOSEVELT ACTS ON CREDIT PLAN

Funds Sought for Price-Lifting Drive on Agriculture

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—(AP)—President Roosevelt has summoned his financial leaders to work out plans to assure the credit for his reinvigorated price-lifting drive that now is focused on lagging agriculture.

Release of millions of dollars in closed banks and a pumping into trade channels of other idle millions now on deposit in banks was described today as the main objective of the parley which has been set for tomorrow night.

By moves this week and others still in contemplation the administration is stirring sagging farm prices to new activity. Cotton and wheat advanced today with the announcement that the government stood ready to loan on minimum prices in agriculture commodities

Mr. Roosevelt has said he wanted farm prices to catch up with industrial prices in the upward swing promoted by the NRA campaign.

He is relying on the promise of federal backing to stimulate the bankers to extend the needed credit to support the expansion drive.

Immediate inflation of currency has not been indicated but this weapon is in the hands of the president if he requires it.

Secretary Woodin heads the group called into conference for tomorrow night by Mr. Roosevelt. Others understood to have been invited are the heads of the federal reserve board, the Reconstruction corporation, the bank deposit insurance corporation; and the farm credit administration.

INCREASE IN FARM PRICES IS GOAL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Substantial increases in farm prices "all along the line" in the next two months today was marked off as the goal of the Roosevelt administration through extension of the cotton loan plan to drive farm purchasing power upward.

TRAIL OF BLOOD LEFT BY BANDIT

Unknown Youth Shoots Officer, Is Wounded as He Flees

CANTON, Ill., Sept. 23.—(AP)—A will-o'-the-wisp desperado, seriously wounded and name unknown, fled before deputies and policemen today after a daring break from custody and the abduction of four persons.

His flight began at Carlyle, in southern Illinois yesterday when he seized a pistol from his captor, Chief Deputy Sheriff Henry Donnewald, wounded him in the shoulder and escaped in his car.

He sped north 150 miles to Peoria and was wounded in a gun battle with a filling station attendant.

The fugitive, about 20 years old, was taken into custody yesterday by Donnewald, who arrested him for carrying concealed weapons.

The youth snatched his revolver, shot the officer, leaped into his car and roared away under a volley of bullets.

Hours later he drove up to a gasoline filling station in Peoria, ordered the car refueled and tossed an empty purse at the attendant, Mrs. W. O. Gollady.

She remonstrated, and he shot at her, without effect, as he dashed away firing at Albert Thomas, who escaped injury but shot the thief in the arm.

The fugitive drove into a ditch shortly and commandeered the machine of W. A. Reynolds at gun's point, forcing Reynolds to accompany him. Reynolds escaped when his captor sent him for bandages.

A short time afterward, he was forced to stop when a bearing in the car burned out. Charles Church, a farmer of Lewistown, accompanied by two relatives, Mrs. Fred Heffren and her young daughter, came up. The bandit compelled them to go with him in their machine.

He put the two out near Canton and proceeded west.

Church and the two women were not harmed. Church said the bandit was seriously wounded, that his clothes were soaked with blood.

Dimitroff Hurls Charge Against Presiding Judge

LEIPZIG, Germany, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Accusing the court of denying him a free choice of counsel, Georgi Dimitroff, Bulgarian political refugee, assumed the offensive today in the trial in which he and four others are charged with firing the German reichstag building last February.

Justice Wilhelm Buenger, the presiding officer, asked the communist leader not to persist in repeating that 2,000 Bulgarian communists were "innocently murdered."

"You assert this without proof," the officer thundered.

To this the 51-year-old Bulgarian replied:

"If I had had a free choice of counsel, I would have supplied proof. But you hamper me in my defense. I never before knew the attorney you assigned me. The eight lawyers I suggested were rejected."

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Edward Rightor, chairman of the Louisiana public works advisory board, said after a public hearing here today that the committee would take under advisement the proposal to construct a $7,000,000 railroad-vehicular bridge over the Mississippi river at Baton Rouge.

'Baby Face' Joyner and 7 Others Arrested at Hot Springs

CHAPMAN ELUDES NET

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Keeping their catch here a secret for two days while they set up a fruitless trap for Charles Chapman, accused bank robber, police today announced the arrest of Earl (Baby Face) Joyner, one of the leaders of the bloody break from the Angola, La., prison farm two weeks ago, and seven other men and women.

Chapman, erstwhile prosperous road contractor, sought for several bank robberies, failed to appear at the place in Magnolia, Ark., where heavily armed officers were waiting for him to keep an appointment with his brother, Brewer.

Police sought to keep from Chapman the knowledge of the arrest of his brother and the Joyner gang with which they said he was connected.

Joyner, one of the 12 convicts who shot their way to freedom from the Angola prison farm, resulting in the deaths of seven persons, was released to officers from Crockett, Texas, who wanted him for bank robbery.

Arrested with him were his wife and W. R. Robertson, accused by Louisiana prison authorities of having smuggled in guns to the Louisiana convicts with which they shot their way out. He escaped from Angola farm alone two months ago. Others held are Robertson's wife; Joe Curtis Wilson, released last year from Angola, and his wife; Luther Gimble, alias Joe Robertson, released recently from Angola.

All were caught in a raid on an apartment house here. Joyner said he came here to see his wife, who had been here several days. The three women are said to be sisters. The wives of Joyner and W. R. Robertson were said by police to be under bond in connection with a bank

COTTON DELEGATE DENOUNCES 'REDS'

"Certain delegates of the distinct 'red' type, especially a contingent of the South Carolina delegation and one or two of the Georgia delegation, have given to the press a number of interviews since leaving Washington Tuesday night that were evidently intended to embarrass the four assistants of Secretary Wallace and to harrass the entire administration. Personally, I regret that such men should have been sent to Washington to discuss with any one in authority such a momentous problem as cotton prices. The Washington, D. C. 'mind', like much of the 'mind' of the whole country, is at this critical period in a state of chaos with respect to many phases of economics, business and finance. Finding a reluctance on the part of the four splendid gentlemen who are serving as aids to Secretary Wallace to prescribe a 'cure-all' for the cotton situation, some of these near-red delegates proposed unworkable, unwise plans and schemes for the relief of the cotton industry, and then when all such blue-sky plans were turned down at the department of agriculture, their proponents left the conference in a huff and told the country through the Associated Press that Secretary Wallace 'ran out' on the meeting, that his assistants told the delegates that 'there's nothing the department can do to help you' and other statements well calculated to create prejudice against the government in general and the secretary of

Allen Applies for Pork To Feed State's Hungry

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Application for 1,980,000 pounds of pork to feed Louisiana's hungry during the winter was made to Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency administrator today by Governor Oscar K. Allen.

The pork poundage the governor requested was the amount specified by Hopkins as Louisiana's allotment for the period from October to March.

Hopkins wrote Governor Allen that the relief administration would obtain the meat through cooperation with the agricultural administration, and that one-quarter of Louisiana's allotment would be available by October 7 or earlier, and the second quarter by November 1.

SHREVEPORT COPS HOLDING FOUR MEN

Quartet Arrested After Bloodstains Are Found in Automobile

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Police this afternoon were holding four men for investigation after discovery of bloody clothes and bloodstains in a car in which they were riding, Police Chief D. D. Bazer, reported.

The quartet was detained by detectives who became suspicious of the car which they found on a downtown street.

Officers said that a window of the car was shattered, apparently by bullets. A revolver was found in the car.

The car which they were riding is a wine colored coupe bearing Texas license No. A-13199 and bore motor No. 3423699.

The men gave their names as Sam Harrison, Smackover, Ark.; W. T. Keeler Longview, Texas; Glenn Hampton, Shreveport, and Herschel Harden, Smackover.

They were taken to the police station for questioning. Chief Bazer reported that no explanation has been given by the four for the bloodstains in the car.

Blind Former Governor Regains His Eyesight

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 23.—(AP)—A campaigning Baptist minister who came to Florida with a wife, seven children and $500 and four years later was the state's governor, can see again after five years of blindness.

But even being blind couldn't keep the Rev. Sidney Johnson Catts, sometimes farmer, mailman, cowboy, preacher, politician and governor, from running a successful farm and fertilizer business at Defuniak Springs, Fla., and filling a pulpit whenever a brother minister wanted to rest.

Yesterday in New Orleans a physician removed bandages from his eyes after a three weeks' treatment and Catts greeted his daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Paderick, with "Why, Bess, I didn't remember how pretty you were."

Manhunt Is Launched in Caddo Following Holdup

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 23.—(AP)—A manhunt was inaugurated here this afternoon for a youth who is suspected of having held up and robbed Mrs. G. B. Palmer and her sister-in-law, Miss Ethel Palmer, who reside a short distance from Shreveport.

The youth, at the point of a pistol, forced the two women to give up their cash, the exact amount not known, forced them from their car and drove away in the machine.

According to a report made to the sheriff's office, the youth, who Sheriff Hughes said, has been identified as Joe Tagliaferro, 17, who lives near here, was given a lift by the two women who were on their way to Shreveport. The youth drew a revolver and forced the women to drive out a lonely road where he forced them from the car, took all their cash and drove away.

Four Alarms Answered By Fire Department

Four alarms were answered Saturday by the Monroe fire department, but no damage or only slight damage resulted in all instances. One alarm was to a house fire, another was in the business district and two were grass fires.

Slight damage from smoke was caused at the Siegle theater when fire broke out at 4:46 p. m. Companies Nos. 1, 2 and 6 responded and extinguished the flames.

At 6:18 p. m. companies Nos. 1 and 2 responded to an alarm to 2109 Desiard street, where a house belonging to W. M. Jackson and occupied by Frank Coleman, negro, had caught fire. Only slight damage resulted.

Company No. 1 extinguished a grass fire at Ouachita parish junior college at 5:25 p. m. and company No. 3 extinguished a grass fire at 1809 North Fifth street at 1:54 p. m.

Monroe Furniture Co. Features Estate Range

Electrically lighted tops, built-in range top toasters that light at the turn of a gas cock, knife sharpeners and individual chromium monograms are only a few of the features of the new Estate gas ranges shown at Monroe Furniture company this week.

According to Harry Kuhn, sales manager of that firm, the new Estates, with the famous "Fresh Air" the Monroe Furniture company ovens, are offered in a special trade in campaign all this week at pre-inflation low prices and easy credit terms. A feature of the event is a 26-piece set of silverware included with any range sold.

Mrs. Alan Martin, Monroe housewife and culinary expert, will be at throughout the event, at which time she will demonstrate the features of the new Estates by actual baking Mr. Kuhn stated.

Long-Lost Church Bell Is Again Being Used in City

The large, silver-tongued bell in the belfry of the First Presbyterian church, silent for nearly three decades, will peal forth today to welcome worshippers to the several services. It surprised people downtown last Sunday when it pealed forth without warning. Today it will in a somewhat lesser degree, repeat the experience.

An interesting story is told concerning the secret of the belfry. One is to the effect that when the present Presbyterian church was erected the bell, used in a former edifice, became misplaced. Building material, one version says, was piled so high that the bell was lost sight of. Recently an inspection of the belfry, this same informant declares, revealed the bell still in perfect condition.

Other versions differ, the statement being made that the bell for some reason—just what is not disclosed—was not used, but was never lost. At any rate it is "in the running" now and will hereafter peal forth each Sunday morning and evening.

Some of the older members of the church recalled Saturday that they had years ago heard this bell and that it sounded natural after a rest of fully 30 years.

"Just like to hear it again," one woman declared, "seems so like old times come back again. I hope it will never be silenced as long as the church stands."

MILLER IN CHICAGO

A. V. Miller, superintendent of the Southern Gas line, is in Chicago attending a national gas association convention and incidentally A Century of Progress. The Thursday night meeting of NRA here was not conducted the past week because of Mr. Miller's absence. He is chairman of the committee east of the river in Ouachita parish.

City Briefs

The Ouachita parish singing convention was held Saturday and will be continued today at Frantom's chapel, located about 17 miles from West Monroe.

Yesterday's sessions were devoted to business affairs of the convention, while today there will be the usual monthly all-day musical programs of sacred music. Dinner is to be served on the grounds at noon.

A board meeting is slated at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday at the Camp Fire Girls' rooms on St. John street, where plans for the fall season will be formulated, stated Mrs. Charles Mitchell, president.

Mrs. Mitchell is of the opinion that the coming year will be an important one for Camp Fire. There are now three groups in West Monroe and seven in Monroe. Mrs. F. B. Neeley is Camp Fire executive.

The city directory of Monroe and West Monroe will be ready for the printer inside of a few days' time now, C. B. Page, who is preparing the volume, assures. The work of canvassing West Monroe is now near completion, while the city of Monroe was finished a month ago. The book is to be printed by the Monroe Printing company and will be distributed early in November.

Announcement is made by Walker Bros. grocery, of the opening of a delicatessen department at its store, Third and Olive streets. The new department will be in charge of Miss Zoella Farrar. S. W. Tucker is again connected with the store in the capacity of manager of the meat department.

Mrs. Louise G. Kellogg Files Petition in Court

Petition for appointment as administratrix of the estate of Robert L. Kellogg, who died July 24, was filed Saturday in district court by his widow, Mrs. Louise G. Kellogg. An inventory and appraisal of the property also was asked.

In the petition, Mrs. Kellogg represented that she was the surviving widow and that the children of the couple were the only heirs. Children were said to be Mary Stuart Kellogg, 8, and Rhoda Long Kellogg, 5.

We're happy to announce this New Local Dealer for Plymouth and De Soto Cars

WE'RE happy to make this announcement! Proud to tell you that De Soto and Plymouth cars will be sold by this new organization.

Hundreds of you will welcome this news! For hundreds of you know the individuals of this company and the high type of sincere service they have always given. Now they have two new cars in their showroom . . . De Soto and Plymouth!

De Soto thrilled Europe's smartest people . . . and now it's setting the style in America. But with all its smartness, it costs only a trifle more than the very lowest-priced cars you can buy.

And Plymouth has upset all value-standards in the very lowest-priced field. The new Standard Plymouth, for instance, is the lowest-priced six-cylinder 4-door Sedan in America! It's too big a value to miss seeing!

See these exciting cars! They embody entirely new ideas in motor car designing, engineering and styling. There's a special showing of De Soto and Plymouth now going on . . . drop in today and see both of these cars.

TAXPAYERS URGE ACTION TO EASE BURDEN IN STATE

which parish schools had received in 1928 to 1931. He also expressed belief that activities of taxpayers would result in action by the governor.

J. Porter Burgess, chairman of the commission, in a brief talk offered a general resume of the needs of the state for relief and explained the movement needed to secure it. He declared it would take just such meetings as was being held in Crowley over the entire state to secure the needed action.

Senator C. A. Gardiner, of Sunset, declared that unless a tax reduction program is provided, farmers will not only lose their farms, but property owners and citizens will lose their homes. He told the listeners that he had endeavored to write both Governor Allen and Senator Huey P. Long urging a special session of the legislature. He stated that he had not received a reply but that Senator Long was engaged in his now famous "Long Island episode."

Real Estate Transfers

Real estate transfers were filed Saturday in the office of clerk of court as follows:

Edward A. Lawson to W. N. Reynolds, the north half of the northeast quarter of section 10, township 16 north, range 3 east; consideration, $650.

W. G. Banister to Fred G. Bernal, lot 8 of square 3 of P. C. Endom's re-subdivision of lots 5, 6, 7, 8, 14, 15, 16 and 18 of square 5 of Terminal Heights addition in section 41, township 17 north, range 4 east; consideration, $390.

M. D. Swayze to Swayze's Dairy, Inc., the western 63 1-2 feet of lot 3 of square 6 of Stubbs' Railroad addition, being 147.87 feet deep; a parcel of lend in block A of Stubb's Railroad addition, being 50 by 148.37 feet, and lots 13 and 26 of block 2 of Stubbs' Railroad addition, fronting 143.4 feet on Harrison street and running back 148.37 feet. Consideration was shown to be assumption by the corporation of certain mortgages and indebtedness and the issuance to grantor of 30 shares of stock.

In a sale of personal property J. L. Bowman conveyed to St. Anne Antique Shop, Inc., all of the furniture and fixtures in the shop, which is located on Maple street, for a consideration of $1,000.

Over $670,000.00 Already Paid In Cash Benefits

One cent a day ($3.65 per year), invested in a National Protective Policy, will now buy more accident insurance benefits than can be secured from any other Company for any amount up to $10 per year. This new policy, providing benefits up to $100 each month or $1,000 to $1,500 at death, is now being sold to all men, women and children, between the ages of 7 and 80 years, whether employed or not.

The benefits for auto accidents of $100 a month (instead of the usual $50 a month) is said by many to be alone worth the entire cost of $3.65 per year. Yet this is but one of the many features of this new and unusual policy.

The National Protective is the largest and oldest company of its kind in the world. It has paid over six hundred seventy thousand dollars ($670,000.00) in cash to thousands of its policyholders when cash was most needed.

Send No Money

For 10 days' free inspection of policy, simply send name, age, address and name and relationship of beneficiary to National Protective Insurance Co., 639 Pickwick Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. No medical examination or red tape. After reading policy which will be mailed to you, either return it or send $3.65, which pays you up for a whole year—365 days. Send today while offer is still open. (Adv.)

AT CAPITOL TODAY

Another Hergesheimer novel, "Tampico" has been transferred to the screen under the title of "The Woman I Stole," playing at the Capitol theater today only with Jack Holt, and Fay Wray as the principals. This new novel is expected to exceed in popularity the acclaim given Hergesheimer's "Tolable David." Jack Holt is his rugged fighting self as the man who takes a liking to his superintendent's lovely wife and makes no bones of the fact that he plans to take her away for himself.

officials were treating with the strikers in an attempt to secure the release of the 16 persons.

Down the island, in Camaguey province, Juan Blas Hernandez continued his revolt, reports reaching here saying he had engaged government soldiers in a skirmish near Jatibonico. ROOSEVELT ACTS ON CREDIT PLAN linked with the plan of credit extension, farm officials said. They expressed belief this would guard the government against monetary losses and that the credit extended would reflect the administration's own confidence in its drive for recovery and better prices and remove the efforts from the realm of price fixing or stabilization.

Both Secretary Wallace and George N. Peek, the farm administrator, prepared for early meetings with representatives of producers of major crops to consider definite plans for applying a method similar to the cotton loan program which they announced yesterday after conferences with President Roosevelt.

One purpose of the plan is to boost farm prices at a rate commensurate with increases in industrial prices. There have been complaints that the prices of materials farmers buy have been increasing at a much more rapid rate than the farm commodities.

Wallace declined to amplify a statement made to newspapermen in explanation of the cotton plan that:

"We don't want the farmer to get hocked in the next two or three months."

He refused to say whether this was a hint that the administration contemplated an inflationary program by December 1.

Asked if the effort was intended to halt a rising tide of rural sentiment for inflation, he was again non-committal.

The cotton loan plan is an effort to put a bottom under cotton prices by offering loans of up to ten cents a pound on all cotton held by farmers, provided they agree to join in production control plans for the next year.

The loan plan will operate on the theory production control will assist in cutting the potential future supply of the staple to such an extent as to assure better future prices.

Through it, farm officials hope to reflect at once gains in the prices they expect to come later from the production control plan.

They regard the job of getting prices up without delay essential because the largest proportion of many crops is marketed between now and December 1 and in the case of many crops farmers are without facilities or are financially unable to put off their selling for any extended period beyond harvest time.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Monroe and West Monroe Troops Hold Election of Officers

Under the leadership of Scoutmaster L. B. Pettit and Assistant Scoutmaster B. H. Myers the scouts of troop 29 conducted a reorganization of patrols and election of troop officers Friday night as follows: James Bradley, senior patrol leader; Joseph Young, troop bugler; James Wallace, patrol leader of Running Fox patrol; Bob Wene, patrol leader of White Eagle patrol; William Wene, patrol leader, Flaming Arrow patrol, and Humble Zeagler, patrol leader of Flying Eagle patrol. Patrol Leaders Zeagler and Wm. Wene have full patrols. Carl Carson, James Bradley, Charles Hull and Henry Tingle were elected assistant patrol leaders of the above patrols, in the order listed. Other items of business completed were the appointment of committees on recreation, discipline and dramatics. A number of new boys were voted in at the meeting.

Troop 37 under the leadership of Assistant Scoutmaster Eric LeBrocq held its regular troop meeting Friday night and elected the following troop officers: Raymond Fox, patrol leader and Chas. McComb, assistant patrol leader of the Fox patrol; H. B. Graham, patrol leader and Clyde Brown, assistant patrol leader of the Eagle patrol. Billy Gannaway was elected senior patrol leader and Clyde Culver, troop scribe. Assistant Scoutmaster LeBrocq announced that an award of a patrol flag or badges would be made to the first patrol recruiting their patrol to full strength.

Scribe Bob Hanna of troop 31 of Monroe, reports the acceptance of two new members, Lamberth Cudd and George Patterson at their meeting Friday evening at the Grace church. Scoutmaster Ashcraft led in the formal opening and then each patrol had a short meeting. Patrol leaders reported on articles being assembled for the scout window display during the first week of October. Following the business meeting a game period was held.

Scribe Joe McCormick of troop 34 of Monroe reports completion of plans for reelection of troop officers at the next regular meeting of the troop Friday, September 29. At the meeting Friday all patrols were represented and the following patrol leaders present: Chas. North of Cherokee patrol, Gilford McCleery of Wolf patrol and Phil Dunning of Antelope patrol. The meeting was opened with the troop repeating the scout oath and games of hot hand and swat tag were played after the business period.

Scribe Joseph Rivoire of troop 27 reports a good representation of the troop present at their meeting Friday evening under the leadership of Father John Vandegaer. The major portion of the meeting was given over to scouting instruction and test passing, followed by a game period. The opening and closing ceremonies included the repeating of the scout oath and the singing of "America."

Scribe Bryant King of troop 65 of Monroe reports the completion of plans to present a first aid demonstration during the mobilization of scouts Saturday, October 7. Scout executive G. W. Simpson visited the troop and urged the necessity of recruiting every member of the troop for the demonstration Saturday, October 7. New officers were elected as follows: H. Boudreaux, patrol leader and Paul Oxley, assistant patrol leader of the Beaver patrol. Junior Cavaness, patrol leader and Leander DeMasterson, assistant patrol leader of the Wolf patrol; Howard Hunt, patrol leader and Edward King, assistant patrol leader of the Eagle patrol. Bryant King was elected troop scribe.

The troop was served refreshments by Mrs. Bob Lankford, Mrs. Loyes DeMasterson, Eloise Cottingham, Ruby Lee Gossett and Margaret Graff.

Scout Howard Hunt led the troop in the scout benediction as a part of the closing ceremony.

Scribe Eugene Eby of troop 13, West Monroe, reports that the following troop officers were elected at the meeting Friday evening: Senior patrol leader, Sol Meyers; Earl Jenkins and Mathis Joiner, patrol leaders; Eugene Eby, scribe. New names will be selected for the patrols and report made at the next meeting. Plans were also completed for first aid demonstration to be put on by troop 13 at the scout mobilization on Saturday, October 7.

The Monroe Morning World is an independent newspaper. It prints the news impartially. It supports what it believes to be right. It opposes what it believes to be wrong without regard to party politics.

Policy and Principle

A gangster chief in a certain American city went to a commissioner of police and said, "I hate to see all this unfriendliness between us. Why can't we cut out all the rough stuff and get together harmonious-like?"

The commissioner, who is of that not too familiar type which has nothing in common with gangsters, replied: "The matter is in your hands. If you will obey the law there will not be any trouble. But if you keep on with your rackets, there will be plenty of trouble. You haven't seen any trouble yet. I've just started to work on you."

Needless to say, that police commissioner won't retire from office with a half million dollars, but he will go out with the respect of the community and his own respect of himself, which is worth more than a half million dollars. There is a vast difference between the conflict which arises from divergence of opinion and that which is born of a violation of a principle.

It is quite possible for two persons to become bitterly embroiled, yet both be well within the law. Two neighbors living side by side, each with a flock of barred Plymouth rocks, might get into a dispute over the ownership of a hen and each be honestly convinced that he was right. Men have been known to open gunfire on each other for more trivial causes. And how foolish!

Wouldn't it be better for either neighbor to say to the other: "If you think the hen is yours, you can have her. But let us not under any circumstances fall out over a fifty-cent chicken."

And the other might reply: "All right. I'll take the hen and you folks come over to our house Sunday for a chicken dinner."

But suppose that some great, vital principle is at stake. Suppose that a man you know to be crooked in his business and personal dealings, a man who has double-crossed you or your friends, should come to you and proffer his friendship on the basis of your mutual material advantage, what are you going to do about that? You don't like him for what he has been and what he has done. But he says, "Let's get together; we are worth more to each other as friends than as enemies. We can both make money working together; we can't make it working apart. Let's bury the hatchet."

You know the man is not trustworthy. You know that he is not at all sorry for what he has done in the past. You know he has not repented, but that for selfish reasons he wants to make a compact with you. He is professing friendship for you, not because he has a change of heart, but as a matter of expediency. Perhaps you will be willing to forget the past because of the chance to make money; you will sacrifice principle just for temporal advantage. That is one of the troubles the world is suffering from today, the fact that men are willing to make compromises with evil for their own selfish advantage. It may be "good policy"; but it is not good principle. And in the end it never pays.

But when there is a conflict between persons, no matter what the cause, whether it be merely a difference of opinion or a stand on principle, if the other fellow is genuinely sorry, if he has had a sincere change of heart, if he wants to do right and get on the right side, then, that is a sound basis on which to strike hands and get together, even though we never forget.

The genuinely repentant person is always entitled to sympathetic consideration and cooperation, for repentance is the first step toward regeneration.

SIGN OF RECOVERY

That those house-to-house canvasses to enlist consumers in the ranks of the NRA can have a direct and beneficial effect on the nation's buying habits is indicated by a current statement from an executive in a large chain of retail shoe stores. This man flatly says that the NRA house-to-house campaign has been "one of the greatest stimulants to retail buying."

His company has stores in every city of 100,000 population or more in the United States; and in the period immediately following the NRA appeal to consumers it enjoyed business 300 per cent better than that for the same period in 1932.

It does not take very much pondering to make one realize what an enormous impetus business will get if such a pickup in retail sales is general.

It's the gold eagle we are particularly interested in.

More Truth Than Poetry

By JAMES A. MONTAGUE

WORTH REMEMBERING

Lord Byron, I've been often told,
Imbibed potations manifold,

And Fitz, who taught the world to quote
The Quatrains old man Omar wrote,

Was a robust and jovial soul
Who nightly looked upon the bowl.

And even Mr. Tennyson,
When he had got a poem done

And for a season need not think,
Was jocund with the Demon Drink,

Full many a bard of other days,
Who penned profound immortal lays,

Instead of staying on the wagon
Would hoist the stein and lift the flagon

And would today have felt small awe
Of Mr. Volstead's well known law.

But just the same, I'm pretty sure,
That not a bard whose works endure

Wrote any stuff worth while to read
When he was jingled, lit or teed.

Nor do I think the Vikings bold,
Whose feats have been so much extolled,

Crooked elbows when they sailed their ships
Upon those transatlantic trips.

The stuff's small help to anyone
Who has real work that must be done.

HOPEFUL INDICATION

ALWAYS BUSY

There never seems to be any unemployment among contract teachers.

A HARD LIFE

A good many thousand ex-aspirants for office have learned that they are the forgotten men Mr. Roosevelt used to talk about.

A Happy Marriage

By BRUCE CATTON

Those unsavory court proceedings at Los Angeles, where the law tried to find out whether a former movie star did or did not swipe a young woman's husband, are just about entitled to rank as the most depressing news of the year.

That's not so much because the details were unusually salacious. They weren't; they were probably milder than is usual in a case of this kind. It's just that the whole business displayed such a lamentable misconception of the marriage relationship, such a complete failure to comprehend the philosophy that must underlie any successful marriage.

People have been handing down advice on marriage for a good many centuries, now, and the thing has been discussed more freely and frequently in the last few years than ever before. But still the world seems to be full of people who just don't get the idea.

It happens over and over. A man and a woman fall in love, get married, and wait for life to bring them a placid happy-ever-after continuity. Then, pretty soon, he starts flitting about with some other woman, or she begins to tag around with some other man, and the fat is in the fire. There are tears, accusations, angry scenes—and pretty soon the divorce courts have another job, not infrequently of the sort that has to be handled with pitchforks.

Most of this, probably, could be avoided if young husbands and wives could only realize that there isn't any easy recipe for the happy-ever-after business. Marriages aren't made that way. They are built up on disillusionment, disappointment and sorrow, as often as not, and you have to work with all your soul for the rewards that a successful marriage offers.

There are bound to be times when a wife feels her husband is a stupid, obtuse and thoughtless brute; there are bound to be times when a husband feels that his wife is flighty and unreasonable. But what of it? Human nature is imperfect, and it probably always will be. The price of a successful marriage is forebearance and forgiveness and a determination to make a go of it.

But so mny people won't realize that. They expect marriage to be one long idyll. It isn't; it never has been and it never will be; but when they find out they cry to heaven that they have been shamefully used, instead of gritting their teeth and pitching in to make a success of it anyway.

How About Everything

By E. W. HOWE

A new book on sociology by a college professor is like a new memorial to Abe Lincoln; it is not actually needed. Professor L. P. Jacks, of Oxford, has just erected another monument of 408 pages to the ideal society which expresses itself in providing comfortable homes for the poor, drunkards, fallen women, orphans, criminals, etc., with hope of reclaiming the subjects of our charity.

If our race ever attains an ideal social arrangement, there will be no poor, drunkards, fallen women, orphans, or criminals. A man's greatest injustice is that he is hampered in his efforts to successfully care for himself by being taxed to care for those less industrious. Only of the man animal is it demanded that he carry a part of another's load.

Say that in the natural march of man, the natural load of each one is 40 pounds; to carry 40 pounds all day turns out a considerable task by evening. But we have increased the load of every reasonably hearty man to certainly 50 pounds. Some others are carrying only 30, 20 or 10 pounds, or no load at all. Indeed, many worthless persons are being carried in litters from camp to camp by the stronger.

We often hear of a boy that is "wild." Only I know how wild I was when young, or how much tamer I am now, and, through all my reflection is realization I would have been better off had I been tamed sooner. We are all masters in our natural dispositions, never fully realizing we are subjects, and must patiently earn what we get in competition with others as kingly as ourselves. Children in nurseries show the princely disposition, and are punished; young men lately out of school look for kingdoms to reign over, and encounter overwhelming rebellion. Some of them, when old, still babble of sovereignty to be realized beyond the grave. I know nothing of the undiscovered country, but have tried to understand the known world in which I have so long lived.

I do not like poets, but frequently admire a sentence they have written. Wordsworth wrote of "the mighty sun of things forever speaking." Here is sufficient brevity, originality and common sense, but as a rule poets color their product too highly, and prose suits me better than the jumbled way in which versifiers arrange their lines. The sentiment I quote from Wordsworth appeals to me because it is my natural way to pay constant attention to the mighty sum of things forever speaking. There are so many of these mighty voices clamoring to be heard I can give one only a few lines.

William Feather: I published this paragraph: "No man can go completely to the devil without a great deal of determination." . . . Ted Robinson, the newspaper columnist, retorted: "That's wrong. Some can go to the devil just by standing still" . . . I do not intend to let Mr. Robinson dismiss in a few words the most important practical philosophy ever formulated. E. W. Howe, of Kansas, says success is easier than failure, and has written much on this theme. . . . Consider the man who stands still on a sidewalk. He is jostled and cursed by those who are moving, and who want him to get out of the way. The most comfortable way is to be going somewhere. Over-drinking, or over-indulgence of any kind, is followed by a headache. Over-spending or over-speculation is followed by the barking of creditors. Violation of the criminal law is followed by arrest and sentence to the workhouse. Every turn he suffers more than the man who behaves himself. Never does he rise in the morning without a warning that unless he reforms, his troubles will increase. His wife scolds him, his employer threatens him, and his friends avoid him. It takes the strongest kind of will to ignore the signs on the road to hell, and to bear the cross of self-imposed failure. . . . Think about this, and you'll admit it is true; Success is easier than failure.

I often feel apologetic because I so frequently write of subjects I have written about before; if other writers do not, they are too big feeling, and perhaps exhibit the fault frequently in other ways.

For several years, an hour before eating my one considerable meal of the day, I have had the habit of taking a swallow of tasteless mineral oil in connection with a pinch of sea weed called agar. I suppose some one induced me to try it, and, as it did me no harm and some good, I continued it. Once I was at table with a quite noted doctor and health specialist, and said to him:

"Every noted man is pestered somewhat by those to whom he is introduced. I shall bother you with only a simple question." Then I outlined my habit, and asked:

"Is it a good idea?"

"Well," the great man replied (he is upwards of eighty), "I do it." I purused the inquiry no further; but what I started out to say is that time passes so rapidly when one is old that it seems to me now I take mineral oil every hour instead of every twenty-four.

I don't know much; I can only muddle along, and make the best of my mistakes. About the best that may be said of any man is that he has done better than the average with his mistakes.

Before submitting to any dangerous operation, or engaging in any dangerous enterprise or action, try and find out what the common sense in the case is. The advise of any expert who gets a fee on his side of a transaction is very likely to neglect the common sense of the customer's side. . . . I like doctors and bankers well enough, but if I should engage in a pill or bond transaction with them, and could get a little the best of them, probably I would do it; and, plague take them, I know they have the same disposition, in trading, with me.

EXPLANATION OF SATURDAY'S CARTOONS

MYSTERIOUS IVORY BALL—A curious exhibit on view at the Believe It or Not Odditorium in Chicago is a unique Chinese ivory carving—26 balls in one, carved inside of one another out of a single piece of ivory.

I purchased the carving in Canton, China, last year at which time I visited the workshop where it was made. A solid ivory ball is first drilled in a series of conical holes, which reach almost to the exact center of the ball. Then the shells of other balls are deftly carved with fine instruments, masterfully worked from the holes, leaving a series of shells daintily carved with filigreed figures and each ball will revolve freely. But the exact process was not revealed to me as it is a carefully guarded secret of the ivory carvers.

HAMBONE'S MEDITATIONS

Lights of New York

By Julia Blanshard

NEW YORK.—Political exfles always are pathetic figures. Yet those who think of Cuba's deposed President Machado as sitting sunk in depression, in Canada, are all wrong, apparently. A New York toy firm has just received a check for $650 from him, ordering an electric train to be sent to him in Montreal.

Machado always has been an enthusiastic electric train fan and took great pleasure in toy trains and tracks that he owned in Cuba. Apparently he had to leave in such a hurry that he couldn't take them along with him. So this order is for an exact duplicate of that left behind.

Benito Mussolini is another electric train fan. He owns one of the largest and most expensive sets in the world. It set him back $5,000. It is a replica of our "20th Century Flyer," is all nickel-plated, with pullmans upholstered in plush, with berths that can be made up, an observation platform with chairs, and the whole thing lighted by electricity just as a real train is. All the details are perfect. The large cities, where the train stops—Albany, Buffalo, and Chicago—other stations that are miniatures of the real depots in those cities. Even cut off.

Food for Thought

A dozen or so noted writers are meeting this week in Wilton, Conn., to become creators of a new kind of product—preserves and canned stuffs.

All live on farms nearby, in the summer time. So they have set aside two days to get their canning and preserving done. Together they will harvest their apples, crabapples, blackberries, peaches, pears and tomatoes to make cider, spiced fruits, relishes, marmalade and preserves.

Included in the group are Konrad Bercovici, Howard Woliforth, James Reid, Selma Robinson, Mildred Gilmore. They will pool their fruit and vegetables and together will put them up. Each author has his or her pet recipe which they will try out.

Notes on Ford

An old friend of Henry Ford's just back from Dearborn, lays a wager that Ford by now is assiduously playing mechanical music rolls on his pipe organ; he always does when worried. Another of Ford's diversions is the reading of McGuffey's readers. He owns complete first editions of these old-time primary classics. Also he knows and likes to recite many simple nursery rhymes, such as "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

Ford still drives his own car and loves to make repairs himself, ruining plenty of suits by ducking under the engine. However, he retains a tailor on a yearly basis, with an office in the scientific laboratories at Dearborn, who makes him unlimited numbers of gray suits.

None having a meal with Ford in the company restaurant dares order meat. Ford is a rabid vegetarian. In addition to vegetables, Ford permits himself nuts, wholesome bread and raisins.

Also, at the Ford factory, everyone who gets less than $10,000 a year has to punch a time clock.

Date for Tri-State Fair Is Announced

TALLULAH, Sept. 23.—(Special)—The Louisiana Delta Fair association, Inc., has announced the sixteenth annual tri-parish fair will be held in Tallulah Oct. 3-6. The association is composed of the parishes of East Carroll, Madison, and Tensas. The following officers were elected: W. M. Scott, Tallulah, president; N. C. Williamson, Lake Providence, vice-president; J. P. Allen, St. Joseph, second vice-president; R. R. Taylor, Talla Bena, third vice-president; P. O. Benjamin, Tallulah, secretary and treasurer.

The purposes of the fair association are the encouragement of immigration, the raising of better and more livestock, and the getting together of people. This is intended to be the great educational, enjoyable and profitable event of the year.

WORK EXPLAINED BY WORTHINGTON

Employment Bureau Operates to Aid in Providing Jobs

While many persons are familiar with the functions of the national reemployment service, there are still many who still do not understand its workings, stated J. W. Worthington, local manager, Saturday. The local unit is organized under the United States department of labor and is formed as a sort of clearing house, operating free of charge, for both employer and those who seek to secure positions of any nature, either for skilled or unskilled lines. Many people are of the opinion that there is a fee charged, stated Mr. Worthington, but such is not the case. Others think that if an employer needs, say 10 men to go to work, that 10 will be sent him from the bureau and that he will have to engage all those who are thus sent. This is by no means the case, said Mr. Worthington. In such a case quite likely as many as 20 or 30 men would be sent and from this number the 10 men desired can be selected.

The local unit is here to stay if the people want it and will cooperate with it, it was stated. All employers who need help of any kind are asked to register their requirements with the bureau. Prompt and satisfactory results will be obtained and without cost, Mr. Worthington assured.

In the backfilling and mattress work on the new traffic bridge at Louisville avenue, all help will be supplied through this reemployment service. There will be required 60 unskilled and 18 skilled men who will find employment on this job for from four to five months' time. Unskilled labor will receive a minimum of 30 cents an hour while skilled labor will be paid not less than 50 cents an hour.

Singing Convention to Be Held in November

The Louisiana singing convention will meet on the first Sunday in November at ward five high school in Caldwell parish, which is located on the West Monroe-Columbia highway. This announcement has just been made by J. L. Medaries, an active member of the association.

Spring sessions are usually held in Ruston, while the autumn conventions are held in different places.

West Monroe expects to entertain the state singers in November, 1934.

How often have you met yourself coming down the street?

NRA

DURING the Age of Imitation, which we trust is now drawing to a close, it has been the mortifying experience of virtually every woman to "meet herself coming down the street"—not once but again and again. Of course you understand precisely what we mean.

Whether you bought an exclusive origination or an inexpensive reproduction, you shortly learned, to your deep regret, that you were attired in a "uniform." The satisfaction you may have derived from your selection was utterly destroyed by the frequency with which you met yourself on the street or in the theater or at the country club—everywhere, in fact.

It is our feeling that we can render no greater service to you than by providing distinctive apparel, fully protected from the copying procedure that has deprived you of your individuality of appearance. We are co-operating with the Fashion Originators' Guild of America, the organization of the nation's pre-eminent creators, in a movement to eliminate the piracy of designs. In our apparel departments we are concentrating upon originations solely. We are doing this, not only to spare you the chagrin of "meeting yourself coming down the street" but also we believe that the "copying down" of original fashions retards economic recovery. It curtails employment by diverting production from the type of merchandise requiring painstaking workmanship to that which needs only a fraction of the labor entailed in the making of the original.

ROAD FINANCING JOLTS TAXPAYERS

was not suffering. But in the face of a staggering interest bill, amounting already to some $17,000 per day, and threatened with staggering additions in this new highway adjustment scheme, the taxpayers are likely to consider first their own troubles.

Upon its highway bonds alone, Louisiana will this year pay interest of $3,471,125, not to speak of the cost of bond redemptions. The state's entire 1933 interest bill is $6,383,542. This is about $532,069 per month, or $17,733 per day. If the bond issues provided for by Governors Long and Allen during the past five years were eliminated from this year's bond financing, Louisiana's interest bill would be only $487,379 for 1933, or $1,353 per day. The Long-Allen regime, therefore, has increased Louisiana's daily interest toll 1,200 per cent. And more is to be added!

New Orleans Port commission interest is included in the above total. The aggregates for this year is $1,931,959. With this item excluded, Louisiana's daily interest bill would be $12,333, or about nine times what it was when Huey P. Long was given charge of the fiscal policies of the state.

The legal right of the Louisiana highway commission to incur debt beyond its ability to pay, is seriously questioned by many. This is the second time the commission has been plunged into debt beyond its immediately available resources—once under Chairman Allen and once under Chairman Tugwell. The obligations in each case were met in practically the same way—with depreciating state securities. The difference between the two situations, if there is a difference, is that under Chairman Allen the debts were incurred in a political campaign and clearly for political purposes, while under Chairman Tugwell they were deliberately entered into.

Many Louisianians recall the debt left by the Payne commission, amounting to some $5,000,000 and the comment of Senator, then Governor, Long respecting it. Mr. Long made quite a point of being forced to settle this debt, which he claimed was beyond the resources of the Payne administration, but which Payne's friends claimed was quite within them since they were based on anticipated revenues. Nevertheless, the then governor complained that he had to take care of an illegal highway debt which to some extent "cramped his style" in the matter of road construction.

However, the claim is now made by some who are interested in trying to keep the state's finances at proper levels, that the offense of the Payne highway administration, if it were an offense, is smaller in both volume and character than that of the present highway regime. With the bond market in a state of semi-paralysis, there was no certainty when $10,000,000 worth of debts were created that they could be met, except at a sacrifice of dollars on the part of the creditors or, in the alternative, increased cost of highway and bridge work.

"From past experience," said one contractor, "the men and firms dealing with the highway commission know just what to expect when they performed the services for which they are now offered bonds. Therefore, many of them protected themselves. This does not include the railroads, of course, which must haul materials at established rates."

The $10,000,000 indebtedness of the commission for which it is proposed to issue bonds is represented by outstanding warrants or certificates of indebtedness. The right of the commission under the law to issue these certificates of debt is also attacked in some legal quarters. Some of the holders of the certificates of indebtedness have been legally advised that they hold nothing more than promissory notes not guaranteed by the state.

Nevertheless, the warrants and certificates were issued and much sensational talk has been indulged in as a result of their circulation. It is reported that certain favored holders of these certificates have been advised by friends inside of the commission of the accumulation of cash in the bank accounts of that body and have, as a matter of political favoritism, been permitted to convert their certificates into cash warrants. Another apparently well-grounded report is that a member of the highway commission had cashed certificates aggregating $1,800 for a brother. In other words, it is reported that some of those creditors who are "on the inside," or politically helpful to the administration, will not have to accept bonds.

Mr. Tugwell's scheme for financing what are termed by many legally unauthorized obligations, is to form a syndicate of the railroads and large creditors, to purchase the bonds, through a trustee. In his circular letter to the creditors, Chairman Tugwell uses this language: "The proceeds derived from the sale of the bonds will be devoted to the redemption of the warrants held by the members of this syndicate and the bonds so acquired by the syndicate will be distributed by the trustee to the members thereof in proportion to their interests therein."

This is the same plan previously followed. Only, there was a large cash consideration then, as a syndicate of bankers was formed to purchase, through a holding company, a major portion of the bonds for cash. Nevertheless, it is stated at Baton Rouge that many of the creditors who then received certificates are holding them yet; but someone made a great deal of money out of that bond deal.

Report has it that speculative individuals have been buying up a number of these certificates at a discount as low as fifty per cent of face value —and sending them to Baton Rouge to be converted, through politically influential representatives there, into cash warrants.

Counting confidently without reason, upon help from Uncle Sam in the form of a $2,000,000 purchase of unsold bonds, the commission originally promised its creditors that it would make a generous distribution of cash. In fact, it actually promised the creditors 66 2-3 per cent in real currency. Just how it expected to pay two-thirds of $10,000,000 with $3,000,000 is not clear. But the circular letter to the creditors signed by Chairman Tugwell and issued on September 7 last, reads just that way.

On the theory that the average creditor of the highway commission doesn't read or doesn't think, the circular letter of Chairman Tugwell might seem impressive. But, if that idea be discarded, it appears to be what Roark Bradford's Mississippi river characters call "slick talkin'." Here is a sample statement:

"The bonds will bear five per cent per annum interest, payable semi-annually April 15 and October 15, and for their payment the proceeds of the four per cent gasoline tax, automobile licenses and all other revenues of the Louisiana highway commission will be pledged. In addition thereto, the full faith and credit of the state of Louisiana will be irrevocably pledged for the payment of the bonds at maturity."

The natural inference to be drawn from this paragraph is that all of the revenues of the highway commission, including gasoline taxes and motor licenses, are behind the $10,000,000 of bonds which it is proposed to hand the creditors. This is not strictly true. All of these revenues are behind the $82,845,000 of bonds issued for road and bridge purposes and only a proportion of them is behind the $10,000,000 which it is now proposed to issue.

Again, Chairman Tugwell makes this rather cryptic statement:

"The bonds, of the denomination of $1,000 each, will be dated October 15, 1933, and will mature serially at the rate of $500,000 per year in the years 1936 to 1940. The bonds, however, will be subject to call at the option of the state of Louisiana, 12 months after date, or on any subsequent interest payment date. Not only will the bonds be subjected to call, but the commission hereby guarantees that the bonds scheduled for maturity on October 15, 1939, and October 15, 1940, will be called for redemption on October 15, 1934, and October 15, 1935, respectively. Hence, under this plan, the $2,500,000 issue of bonds will be redeemed at the rate of $500,000 per year in the years 1934 to 1938, inclusive, instead of 1936 to 1940, inclusive."

This guarantee applies only to the second $2,500,000 issue which, under the terms of the circular letter, will have actually earned a year's interest, or $125,000, at the time of issuance. However, if the commission can guarantee calling of the bonds five years in advance of their maturity, fiscal experts will want to know why the short term bonds are not actually dated to mature in 1934 and 1935 instead of 1939 and 1940.

It is obvious from the letter of Chairman Tugwell that the "purchasers" of the $7,500,000 issue to be sold on September 30 can hope for nothing but the arrival of maturity dates in ordinary course. "Purchasers" of the 2,500,000 issue will make a little better deal, if the guarantee of the commission, for which there is no legal authority, is worth anything.

But the creditors to whom less than $1,000 each is owed by the commissioners are going to be given trust receipts "representing equities in the undistributed bonds." And this is what Chairman Tugwell says about that:

"The trustee may find it possible to negotiate a loan against the undistributed bonds, or the value of the bonds may enhance to such an extent as to enable the trustee to dispose of the bonds prior to maturity. Otherwise, the undistributed bonds will necessarily have to be held for maturity and the proceeds distributed to the individual members in proportion to their respective interests in the syndicate."

It is expected that about $2,000,000 of the $2,500,000 issue of bonds will be distributed and the remainder, $500,000, covered by trustee's receipts. So, the advance maturity pledge goes to the big boys and not to the little ones.

Since the Louisiana Highway commission has twice adopted a plan of paying creditors with syndicated bonds for which there was no possible sale in the open market, Louisiana taxpayers will remember with anguish that there is still $13,000,000 of the constitutional issue of $75,000,000 which the commission may dispose of in the same way.

Groaning under an annual interest bill, the extent of which it never dreamed of, Louisiana sees the charges rapidly mounting while, at the same time, revenues are rapidly decreasing. There is not only no relief in sight but the situation grows steadily worse. With or without authority, the highway commission continues to create indebtedness for the state which must be met out of the pockets of the taxpayers.

With $13,000,000 yet to be drawn upon, there is no pledge that the $10,000,000 of highway bonds about to be thrust upon helpless creditors will constitute the last offense of the present highway regime. As for the creditors, they are "hooked"; and, in order to make it appear that constitutional requirements are being met, must pretend to buy bonds and pay themselves for 100 per cent of service with 90 per cent of bond securities.

It is a great game if nobody weakens—except for the taxpayer. It is well to say here, perhaps, that the highway commission shows no sign of weakness. It hasn't even publicly listed the debts which the $10,000,000 of bonds are to be used to discharge.

Girls Clubs Will Be Given Ride on Boats

The five girls clubs of the Young Women's Christian association will be guests of State Senator and Mrs. James A. Noe and Captain and Mrs. G. B. Cooley on Wednesday night at 6 o'clock.

The party, to the number of about 80, will make a trip on the two boats, that of Mr. Noe and Mr. Cooley, up the river. A picnic will be held on the sandbar a few miles north of the city.

The clubs that are to participate will be those of Morgan and Lindsey, Woolworth, W. T. Grant, the resident club from the "Y" and the Business Girls' club.

Hastings Serving His Ninth Year in Monroe

Rev. L. T. Hastings, pastor of the First Baptist church, is now entering upon his ninth year as pastor here. He came to the church on September 19, 1925, eight years ago the past week, succeeding Rev. Frank Tripp. The membership of the church at that time was 1,335. Now, eight years later, the membership is 1,909. This makes a net gain of 574 members and is regarded as an excellent showing.

The Sunday school and other church activities have all shown much growth the past few years and the building is so small, due to rapid expansion, that a new educational building and auditorium are proposed.

A buy-a-brick campaign has been in progress and nearly or quite sufficient brick supply has already been obtained for the requirements of the proposed construction.

One of the most surprising letters I have received in a long time came recently. A man wrote to ask why I had "abandoned the low-price field."

We found the writer of that letter. He had used only Ford cars; his present car had served him seven years; he hoped sometime to replace it with a new Ford;—but, as he saw the Ford V-8's grow thicker on the streets, and noted their style and action, he just naturally jumped to the conclusion that these must be expensive cars, and that therefore "Ford had gone out of the low-price field."

Besides that, "did not this new Ford have 8 cylinders?" "Did not that prove that the car was not low-priced—for are not all 8's expensive?"

Hence his letter. He complained that after 30 years of making cars for the low-price field I had deserted my old customers for those who were used to spending more money.

Of course, a price-list soon showed him his mistake.

He was helped to his hasty conclusion by seeing a new class of people riding in Ford cars the last four or five years. It was once believed that no one who could afford a high-priced car would use a low-priced car.

But that has changed. The matter of value now comes first, the matter of price second. America used to buy price-tags, now it demands quality.

That explains why tens of thousands of Americans who can afford to pay higher prices, prefer to buy the Ford at a lower price, because in the Ford V-8 they get the quality, the performance, the comfort, the style which are supposed to be exclusive in very high-priced cars.

To be low-priced, a car is not necessarily cheap. A really cheap or inferior car never could become low-priced. Not enough of them would be bought to make a low price possible.

That means that to keep my prices low I must remain in the high-quality field, for it is impossible to have the price right unless the car is right too.

What I have done is to adapt the expensive V-type 8-cylinder engine to the low-price field, making it simple, and less expensive to own and drive than the 4-cylinder cars were.

There is one thing I would make clear to my friends:—my field is the low-price field and will always remain so.

SCOUT PROGRAM TO OPEN OCT. 2

Will Bring Attention of Public to Varied Activities

An ambitious program, which is designed to bring to the attention of the public the diversified activities of the boy scout organization in the Ouachita Valley council, has been planned for the week of October 2, 10, according to announcement by Scout Executive G. W. Simpson. The program will include demonstrations of scout work before the various civic service clubs of Monroe and will be duplicated in other sections of the council area. The climax of the demonstrations will occur on Saturday, October 7, in a general mobilization of the scout troops at the Monroe city hall, following which the different organizations will be assigned to various sections of the city where they will demonstrate phases of boy scout work. These will include life saving, wall scaling, knot tying, igniting camp fire by friction, and other things for which scouts are noted.

The demonstrations are intended to prepare the public for the annual council-wide drive for funds to carry on the work during the ensuing year. A budget of $4,500, for the year's work and $3,500 to permit liquidation of old debts, has been approved by the board, according to President W. M. Harper.

All districts in the 15 parishes which comprise the Ouachita council have accepted their allotments of the total budget and the Ouachita, Tallulah, Winnsboro and Concordia districts have already completed their plans for the campaign during the second week in October.

The Ouachita Valley council had an increase of 201 scouts, said Troop Organization Chairman F. X. Shaughnessy, during the period October 1, 1932, to September 15, 1933. This has been accomplished through the organization of 19 new troops, bringing the total membership in the council to 854.

Troops have been organized in Bastrop, Hodge, Ruston, Monroe, West Monroe, Dubach, Harrisonburg, Mangham and Jonesville.

This increase in troops and scouts has been accomplished despite the necessity of dropping a number of rural troops which have been unable to continue due to economic and leadership problems.

The launching of the ten-year program in scouting nationally, the latter part of 1932 has done much to stimulate the enlistment of the 12-year-old boy as he reaches that age. Our objective, said Mr. Shaughnessy, is to reach one of every four boys reaching the age of 12 and give him the benefit of a four-year training in scouting. Our slogan is "One of every four new male citizens to be a four-year scout trained man."

Three thousand boys in the Ouachita Valley council reach the age of 12 each year. Our objective, said Mr. Shaughnessy, is to have a registered membership of 1,200 boys by the end of 1934.

Cubbing, the scouting program for younger boys (age 9 to 12) has been inaugurated in the council with a cub pack at Tallulah and one at Ruston. Plans are going forward for the organization of a cub pack in Monroe and West Monroe.

SHAPELY CHORUS TO BE SEEN AT THE PARAMOUNT

Here are some of the chorus in the big musical revue which comes to the Paramount theater for a two day stay, next Monday and Tuesday. "The Parisian Follies" boasts of a cast of over twenty famous entertain... singers and dancers and features such well known stars as "Slim" Vermont, ace blackface comedian long featured with many of the biggest minstrel shows, also Billy Van Allen, nut comedian from Earl Carroll's Vanities. Three stage shows will be presented daily and the feature picture is "What Price Innocence," a flaming drama of today.

TODAY'S AMUSEMENTS

One enormous scene is an amusement park which covers nearly three acres. There are the old-time Ferris wheel, the horse drawn merry-go-round, shooting gallery, doll-racks glass-blowing factory, roller coaster and concessions of every sort from a pink lemonade stand to a greased-pig show.

There's a huge German beer-garden, featuring a 40-piece German band. A livery-stable, buggy factory, the smalltown parlor.om with its Wooden Indian marker, and many forgotten relics of an antiquated transportation system—stage and mail coaches, sulkeys that spin brilliantly behind thoroughbred trotters; phaetons with their haughty footmen; buggies, hacks and swanky victorias—all so popular in the early 1900's.

"One Sunday Afternoon" is a refreshing romance of the early 1900's. With Gary as the star, it concerns a dashing young blade who is blinded for life by love at first sight. Through love-blind eyes he worships a woman who really doesn't exist. This false memory becomes the bitter rival of the girl who gives him all her love and devotion.

The secret emotions that rule his heart are laid bare in this story, from the successful Broadway stage play of the same name, written by James Hagan.

AT THE CAPITOL: No more engrossing struggles between men and men and between groups and groups have marked any industry than those which have been part of the getting out of the world's oil supply. And in the photoplay "The Woman I Stole," which shows Sunday only at the Capitol theater this is the basic theme.

On the edge of a Moroccan desert the Alianza and Pan Kansas Petroleum corporation are struggling over oil, and Jack Holt—always a fighter in his pictures—is battling with Donald Cook over a woman and the fair object of the struggle is the lively Fay Wray.

Then there is also a perfectly grand bandit general to stir things up still further. He doesn't care which oil company he raids so long as he gets the loot. And he's a jovial giant, a picturesque character played by the colorful actor, Noah Beery.

And then there's a tempestuous flaming little Spanish dancer to add piquancy and still further beauty to the general situation. This is young Raquel Torres, well known through her last picture, "So This Is Africa," with Wheeler and Woolsey.

"The Woman I Stole" was adapted from the famous Joseph Hergesheimer novel "Tampico." It is complete with color, sweep and action from beginning to end! Irving Cummings directed.

Mothproofing Service Offered by Local Firm

Announcement was made yesterday by Joe Isaacman, vice-president and general manager of the Monroe Furniture company, that the firm had secured the exclusive license for the Spradlin insured mothproof service in this territory.

"The Spradlin service, after sixteen years of intensive effort, has been developed to the point that authorized agents are able to absolutely guarantee security, after one treatment against all moth damage to furs, clothing, blankets, woolens, furniture draperies, rugs, etc., for a period of years, regardless of how many times the article is washed or dry-cleaned," stated Mr. Isaacman.

"Spradlin has proved that the annual loss from moth damage exceeds that by fire." Mr. Isaacman stated. "Fire losses are covered by insurance, but losses from moth damage to clothing, furniture, etc., have never been. This non-cancellable policy guarantees freedom from loss by moth damage for a period of five years, regardless of conditions.

A special department has been established at the Monroe Furniture company, with trained "Spradlinizers" to give prompt and efficient service in this unusual line of work, Mr. Isaacman explained.

Boundaries of Election Precincts to Be Changed

The boundaries of the five election precincts of West Monroe will be changed, effective January 1, equalizing the number of voters within the city who will cast their ballots at precincts 1, 2, and 3, and placing precincts 4 and 5, outside the city limits.

The new arrangement will save some expense but the chief reason was to make voting more convenient for the public and to more evenly distribute the number of voters in each precinct.

BARBECUE IS GIVEN

A well attended barbecue was held last night at the rear of the George E. Breece Lumber company's plant in the Grayling bend. Employes of the company and specially invited friends participated.

Neville Night School To Open About Oct. 16

Night school at Neville high school will not open for some time yet, but already more inquiries than ever have been received at the office of Principal Charles E. Kenney.

Plans contemplate the initiation of courses on or about October 16. There will be classes in commercial subjects and languages and science or other subjects that may be sufficiently in demand.

Night schools were established two years ago at Neville high school.

FARMERS RECEIVE COTTON PAYMENT

302 Checks Are Delivered Locally Under Plow-Up Plan

A total of 302 checks for farmers who plowed up cotton in compliance with the government's cotton retirement program have been received here by E. R. Strahan, agricultural agent, and all except 17 have been delivered to the farmers. Notices have been sent out to the other farmers but they have not yet called at the agricultural agent's office.

Checks received thus far amount to $25,612 in cash, which means that this amount has been placed in the hands of the farmers either to spend or to pay off their crop production loans.

The number of checks already received is somewhat less than one-third of the number that will be received by the farmers of this parish. Approximately 1,040 farmers of the parish plowed up cotton and will receive checks. In some instances the checks cover cotton plowed up by a number of tenants on one plantation, so that the actual number of farmers who plowed up cotton is greater than the number of individual checks. Money to be received by the farmers of this parish will amount to $102,779.50.

In addition, many of the farmers will have an equity in about 2,192 bales of option cotton. Instead of taking all their money in cash, some of the farmers selected an option on cotton equal to the amount it was estimated their destroyed acreage would have produced.

Sample copies of the cotton option contract have been received here by Mr. Strahan. As soon as he receives the contract blanks he will make announcement and begin issuing them.

Under the terms of the contract the farmer may buy at six cents a pound basis middling 7-8-inch staple cotton, as quoted on the New York Stock exchange, the number of bales estimated to have been destroyed on his property. If the price of cotton advances he may order the cotton sold at any time, so that if cotton reaches a price of 10 cents, he will have a profit of four cents a pound. In no event shall the producer be liable for any financial loss.

The option is non-transferable and expires May 1, 1934, unless exercised before that date. Any exercise of the option must be for the full amount of the cotton covered thereby.

Since January first, Chevrolet has sold in excess of 425,000 passenger cars and trucks.

Can there be any stronger recommendation for a car than this

Chevrolet leading in sales by the widest margin in history! So far ahead of its field that no other car comes near it! Headed straight for its third consecutive year in first place—its fifth year out of the past seven.

What more could you possibly want as a recommendation for a low-priced car than that?

America can't be fooled when it comes to spotting the best "buy" in any field. America knows too much about motor cars for that. So when one certain car wins almost as many buyers as the next two put together, you know the answer: IT MUST BE BETTER. And that's what the new Chevrolet Six most certainly is.

Better looking—it has long, sleek, aer-streamed lines—Fisher's smartest styling. Chevrolet has better bodies—they're built not just of steel alone, but of steel reinforced by a sturdy hardwood frame. Chevrolet has a better engine—six cylinders for lowest gas and oil consumption, cushion balancing for killing vibration. And Chevrolet gives more and better features, including a Starterator, Syncro-Mesh gear-shift and Free Wheeling.

Now, in September, is the time to start thinking about a new car for winter! And when you do so, think of the way Chevrolet is leading all other cars in sales. Could you ask for any stronger recommendation for a low-priced car than that?

agriculture and his assistants in particular.

"Briefly, the facts of the whole conference are these:

"Beginning with a 10 o'clock meeting in the Hamilton hotel Monday morning, the conference was in almost continuous session until late in the afternoon when resolutions were adopted and a committee named to confer with President Roosevelt and with Secretary Wallace. Monday's newspapers stated that the president was confined to his bed with a cold, with more or less uncertainty as to when he would be able to see visitors. So when the delegation reached the executive office on the White House grounds Tuesday morning, it was told that the president was still unable to see callers. From the White House grounds, the delegation moved quickly to the office of Secretary Wallace, where it found him ready to leave his office for a conference with the director of the budget. Explaining that his engagement with the budget director had been made some days earlier and that it involved an appropriation of $10,000,000 for his department, and further, that he was obliged to leave Washington at 4 o'clock that afternoon for Chicago where he was scheduled to speak Tuesday. After this explanation, the secretary remained long enough to listen to the reading of the resolutions our group had adopted Monday night. Leaving our group in charge of Agricultural Administrator Peek, with his able assistants, Chester A. Davis, Oscar Johnson and General Westerveldt, Secretary Wallace left his office. Directed by Messrs. Peek, Davis, Johnson and Westerveldt, we went to a conference room in the department of agriculture building where the four assistants of Secretary Wallace listened patiently to our proposals. And this in spite of the fact that the 'reds' in our group complained bitterly about the secretary having run out on us' when we called on him.

"Fortunately, our group contained such able men as Senator Bankhead of Alabama, Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma, ex-Senator Robert L. Owen, Oklahoma; Representatives John Rankin, Will Driver, Will Whittington, Mississippi; Riley Wilson, John Sandlin and Rene De Rouen, Louisiana, together with a number of private citizens who think and speak soberly on all questions. It was with the counsel and advice of these men that our three-day conference placed squarely before department officials and before President Roosevelt the actual plight of the cotton farmer, along with specific proposals to remedy some of his troubles at least. That Secretary Wallace, together with Messrs. Peek, Johnson, Davis and Westerveldt, will do what ever lies in their power to help President Roosevelt find a way to relieve the cotton growers distress, I have not the least shadow of a doubt.

"I sincerely hope that the southern farmers will not be misled or misinformed about this conference by reading the prejudiced, prejudice and wholly untrue reports emanating from certain 'red' newspapers who, among other faults, left the scene of conferences before the business in hand was attended to."

BATON ROUGE, Sept. 22.—(Special)—Commissioner of Agriculture Harry D. Wilson today issued the following statement to "correct reports that do injustice to Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace":

"I note from press reports that Secretary of Agriculture Wallace was accused by some of those that attended the cotton conference in Washington this week, of 'running out' on them.

"As a member of said conference and one of the nine members of the resolution committee, who worked all day Monday, I want to deny this accusation.

"After being in session all day till late Monday night, Tuesday morning members of the conference went to the White House to see the president. Unfortunately Mr. Roosevelt was suffering with a cold and running some temperature and we were unable to see him. Then our delegation proceeded to the U. S. department of agriculture, about 11 o'clock a. m. On our arrival, we met Secretary Wallace and several of his assistants. Mr. Wallace was preparing to leave at once to attend an important conference that had been arranged several days prior in Chicago. He met us most courteously and explained the situation and informed us that Mr. Peek, Mr. Oscar Johnson, Mr. Miller and Mr. Cobb were present and would confer with our delegation on any matter that we had to lay before them.

"I knew, and I am sure many others in our crowd knew, that Secretary Wallace had the Chicago engagement before we went to his department. It would have been quite different if he had had an engagement with our delegation prior to the Chicago arrangement and then left us. In my opinion, it was very unfair, under the circumstances, to accuse Secretary Wallace of running out. To me it sounds like the voice of the demagogue.

"Messrs. Peek, Johnson and others received and conferred with our delegation for over two hours. They informed us that they were glad to see us and wanted any constructive suggestion that we had to make.

"Mr. Oscar Johnson, one of Mr. Wallace's assistants, is the best posted man on cotton in Washington. A Mississippian and very much interested in our troubles.

"Again I want to say that such a charge or report was very unkind, uncalled for and very unfair to the secretary of agriculture."

FAMOUS FAMILY COMING

ELIZABETH AND "POODLES" HANNEFORD

England has produced innumerable circus acts, but probably, no troupe has ever met with greater favor in America than "Poodles" Hanneford, and the original Hanneford family of bare-back riders. "Poodles," said to be the greatest riding clown in the world, was a sensation following his debut in New York. Each succeeding season he has continued as first ranking clown in the equestrian field. This marks his third season with the Highest Class Circus on earth.

The Hannefords are really a family combination. The mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hanneford, acts as ring-master, while the principle riding roles are handled by Elizabeth Hanneford, her husband, Ernest, and Mrs. Grace Hanneford, the wife of "Poodles." The little daughter, Grace, is also learning the art of riding, and within a year or two, will make her debut in the saw-dust ring.

The Hanneford family will be among the outstanding features with the great Hagenbeck-Wallace circus, coming to Monroe Friday, Oct. 6. Two performances will be given starting at 2 and 8 p.m., with the gates opening one hour earlier, allowing time for a trip through the huge menagerie, largest on tour in the world, before the big show commences.

robbery at Liberty, Texas, for which Joyner was returned there.

W. R. Robertson, alias Allan Harris, was taken to El Dorado to face charges of robbing a drug store and later kidnaping Dean W. C. Ware of the El Dorado junior college last Sunday night.

Chief of Detectives Herbert Akers said Joyner and Robertson confessed they and Lester Brooks, held at DeQueen, staged the El Dorado robbery and kidnaping. Ware later was released.

The same three men are believed by officers to have robbed a drug store at Nashville, Ark., after binding and gagging Night Marshal Lonnie Morris.

Joyner talked freely of the Angola break, Akers said. He disclosed that Charles Frazier, another leader of the break, who is among the four convicts still at Liberty, was shot in both legs by pursuing posses.

Joyner described how he and others in his party carried Frazier at various times between seizure of automobiles, and in crossing the Mississippi river, took him across on a log.

Negro Is Charged With Disturbing the Peace

Charged with disturbing the peace on a public highway near a dwelling house, Arthur Farmer, negro, was arrested Saturday night by members of the sheriff's department. The disturbance was said to have occurred about eight miles west of West Monroe.

Fred McCullum, negro, was held in the parish jail on a charge of stealing cigarettes and Bennie Warfield, negro, was held for possessing stolen property. McCullum was said to have confessed that he stole a quantity of cigarettes from H. F. Sheppard's store at 3400 DeSiard street and turned them over to Warfield to sell.

When Warfield was taken into custody he had 11 cartons of cigarettes in his possession and was trying to sell them to a merchant, officers said.

In his confession, McCullum told officers he had stolen about 68 cartons of cigarettes, at different times, from Sheppard's store, where he worked.

Jack Armstrong, who gained fame by winning the Safety Plane Trophy recently, has now turned inventor. While working with Capt. Hughes, noted designer and inventor, on a new gun-gyro-plane, he developed a model which was bought by the Daisy Manufacturing Company, makers of Daisy Air Rifles. However, Jack Armstrong, who also plays the lead in the Jack Armstrong radio program, arranged to secure a number of the planes to be given away to boys and girls who eat Wheaties, the whole wheat flake cereal advertised on his radio program.

The invention of Jack Armstrong, The All-American Boy, famous athlete and aviator, this marvelous SHOOTING PLANE is really a model of the gyro principle. All you do is hook the gyro-wheel on the end of the gun—wind it—And Pull The Trigger!

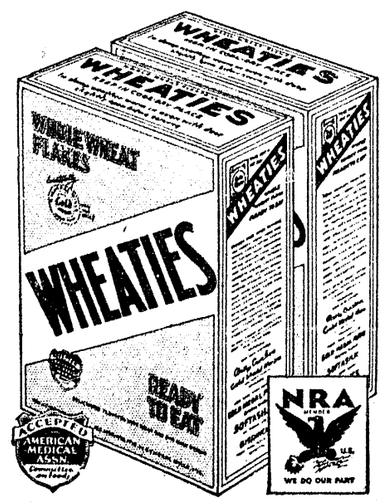
Then—watch it soar 65—75—85—100 feet straight up in the air and then come slowly back to you.

Or—shoot it straight away. Hit targets with it. Shoot it at the ceiling. And watch it stay up there—then circle down by itself! Have races to see who can make the longest distance flight.

It's beautifully colored. It's strong. It's new. It's not a toy! It's something wonderful and you should be the first one in your neighborhood to have one.

Why Given Free

The reason this amazing SHOOTING PLANE (which you would have to pay as much as 35c to buy) is given free is to get you to eat WHEATIES—"The Breakfast of Champions." And if you are the kind of boy or girl who wants to be a star athlete—like Babe Ruth, Jimmy Foxx, Lefty Grove, Jack Armstrong—you'll love Wheaties! These famous stars say—"Wheaties with milk or cream and sugar give you the muscles, the energy, the speed it takes to win."



Because Wheaties are delicious crisp-toasted flakes of real whole wheat. Which contains almost twice as much protein (which makes muscles) as such foods as corn or rice. In other words, in this respect one bowl of WHEATIES equals nearly two of corn or rice foods. So—the thing to do then is eat WHEATIES! They're on sale at any grocery store—so you'll have no trouble getting them.

To get one of Jack Armstrong's famous SHOOTING PLANES Free—simply tear the tops off from two packages of Wheaties and send them with the coupon at right (print your name and address, please). For the LOVE of EVE

CHAPTER I

It was a brief and hurried marriage ceremony, not at all the imposing affair Eve Bayless had dreamed her wedding would be.

Just she and Dick, at the little stone church, with the rectory housekeeper and a young civil engineer whom Dick knew for witnesses. Monday noon—and the hastily performed ceremony was like an anti-climax to the passionate scene of parting Thursday night when Eve had decided she wanted to be Dick's wife with as little loss of time as possible.

And now, even while she was being married to Dick, there was the menacing ghost of the morning hovering between her and her happiness.

To Eve her wedding was like a disturbing dream. Would she get back to the store before Mr. Barnes sent for her? Would Dick be angry and storm when she told him what had happened that morning. Or would he be hurt and silent? Well, she wouldn't tell him until she had learned for sure—this evening after dinner. No use to spoil the afternoon for him. She tried to focus her attention on the words that were binding her to Dick, but there were so many thoughts that kept interfering.

Now the earnest young rector was giving them his blessing. Dick's ring was on her finger. Dick's arms were around her. Dick's lips, possessive yet very, tender pressed to hers. Eve's heart melted. In that moment she was almost ready to give up everything for Dick. Her work, the coveted goal almost within reach, the career she was moved to heap on love's altar as a sacrifice.

It was Dick who broke the spell. Abruptly his arms released her. It was he who suggested, almost brusquely, that they'd have to hurry or they would be late to work.

But by the time his roadster had nosed its way through the noonday traffic to the side entrance of Bixby's department store, where Eve was employed as a copy writer in the advertising office, Dick's mood had changed again. His hand closed over hers. "Eve, sweetheart, don't go back! I don't want my wife out earning her living. Let me take care of you, darling. You know—the kind of marriage we talked about last night—that's what I want. A little house with a fireplace and a garden and—a baby—"

"Dick," she pleaded, "let me go! We can't thresh that out again. At least not here. Not now. Wait for me here this evening. I'll try not to be late, but I don't know. Something came up in the office this morning—something unexpected and terribly important. I'll tell you about it this evening. 'Bye, dearest."

Eve consulted her watch when she reached the third floor. She had just five minutes to change from the brown ensemble which was her wedding costume into her smart but simple black office dress. The change was accomplished in the allotted time and the brown costume and the corsage of creamy, fragrant rosebuds with tawny orchids that Dick had sent, put away in her locker. Thank goodness none of the girls whom she knew at Bixby's had spied that corsage! They could scent a wedding months away.

She slipped off her wedding ring, the little circlet of pale yellow gold engraved with orange blossoms which she had chosen instead of platinum because it matched the golden lights in her amber eyes and honey-colored hair and harmonized with the October browns and yellows that were her favorite colors. She put the ring in the chamois envelope which guarded her money and trinkets. Eve had told no one at Bixby's that she was to be married today. She would not tell them for a while—not until she was certain she wished them to know.

Oh, she should have waited until June to be married, she told herself unhappily as she went into the office. If only they could have been married Saturday instead of today, it would have helped the situation some. But the state law had been changed and a three-day notice was required before a marriage license could be issued. She knew she should not be thinking about all this now. She must keep her nerves steady and her mind clear for that conference with Mr. Barnes at 2 o'clock. She hoped, yet feared, the outcome of that conference.

Eve was relieved to find there was no one in the advertising office except Marya Vlad, the fashion artist, who was working at her drawing board in a corner by the window. Perhaps Marya was not so oblivious to what went on about her as she seemed. Perhaps her candid blue eyes were more penetrating than her fellow workers realized, but at any rate she was too courteous and considerate to ask questions that might prove unwelcome. She merely looked up and smiled as Eve entered.

"Did anyone ask for me?" Marya knew of the conference with Mr. Barnes, scheduled for 2 o'clock.

"No one. How lovely you look today, Eve."

"Oh, I'm glad you think so! I have a special reason for wanting to look well today."

"Is that so?" echoed a voice in gay raillery and Arlene Smith, Earle Barnes' stenographer, entered the office, only a few steps behind Eve. "Don't tell us you are turning to such tactics to land a promotion," Arlene went on. "Not after the way I've been bragging to my family about the highmindedness and all-around superiority of this office force!"

"Goodness, no!" laughed Eve. "The promotion, if any, hasn't a thing to do with my wish. I just came in from a date with a very special man. He's the marked victim of my fatal charm—not Mr. Barnes, nor yet Mr. Bixby."

"Oh, I know," said Arlene. "The strong, silent one who parks that yellow roadster at the side entrance at quitting time about five evenings a week. Listen, dearie, any time you get a chance to pass up this madhouse in exchange for a permanent seat in that roadster and the privilege of operating a kitchenet and can-opener for that young man you'd better grab off the prize."

With a quick look to see that no one was near, Dick gathered her in his arms.

"Sometimes I really believe you prefer domesticity to a business career," Eve said.

"Just watch me help myself to the first chance at sweet domesticity that comes my way," was Arlene's fervent reply. "I'm fully as domestic as Marya, here, and twice as domestic as you, Eve. But do the men see that? They do not! I'm all right to play around with but when they begin to shop around for an engagement ring they have some sweet young thing like you or Marya in mind."

Eve laughed uneasily and slipped a fresh sheet of paper into her typewriter. The conversation was on dangerous ground. It had been on the tip of her tongue a moment ago to tell Arlene and Marya about the wedding that noon in the Little Stone Church, but she was not ready for that disclosure. Too many things were crowding themselves into this day.

The second of the most important events of Eve's life was to take place within two hours after her wedding. Two sharp sounds of the buzzer summoned her to the office of Earle Barnes, advertising manager of Bixby's. Although her work took her to Barnes' office many times each day, Eve felt half-sick with trepidation this time. She trembled involuntarily, and her head throbbed with a dull ache. Yet she strove to maintain an appearance of outward calm. A swift glance in the wavy old mirror hanging over the washstand in the corner reassured her, and the group gathered about Barnes' desk little suspected that the lovely, flushed face and eager, bright eyes of the girl joining them masked real fright. Eve's chin was held high, however, and she managed a smile as she acknowledged the salutatory nod of white-haired Mr. Bixby, founder and owner of the store. So much depended upon the outcome of this conference.

Barnes drew up a chair for Eve, next to Alice Marshall, who was first assistant advertising manager. Mr. Bixby brought from his vest pocket a pair of Oxford glasses which he unfolded and adjusted on his dignified nose. "The better to see you, my dear," thought Eve, and she felt that with the aid of those powerful lenses he could piece through to her innermost thoughts and discover her secret.

"Miss Bayless," he began with customary dignity, "you are undoubtedly aware that it is the policy of the Bibxy store to watch carefully the progress of each of its employes. From the time you joined us we have noted with satisfaction your spirit toward your work, your cooperation and your initiative." Mr. Bixby smoothed the narrow black ribbon attached to his glasses before he went on.

"Miss Marshall is leaving us, as you, of course, know. And it becomes necessary for us to choose a successor to fill her position. Mr. Barnes and I discussed the matter of the New York trip after my talk with you this morning, Miss Bayless, and it has been definitely decided that you are to go."

"Oh—how nice!" Eve managed to articulate.

"It will give added interest and importance to the launching of your special column and ought to give you talking points for many weeks to come. Women read department store advertising primarily for the purpose of learning of bargains and new merchandise. I've always contended, however, that in addition advertising should be chatty and interesting in itself. Well, we're counting on you to make Bixby's advertising chatty and interesting.

"What this change may lead to eventually depends largely upon yourself—the selling power of your copy, your initiative and the ability you display in other ways."

"Thank you. I'll do my very best," Eve promised. "Do you—did you definitely decide that I'm to go tonight? I could go a little later just as well." Eve was praying in her heart, "Not tonight. Dear God, don't let it be tonight!"

Mr. Bixby frowned slightly. "Yes, you are to start tonight. I thought that point was definitely understood. As you know, Miss Marshall leaves Saturday. We want you here the following Monday.

"Go up to my office," Mr. Bixby went on, "and Miss Birney will take care of your expense money. She's wired for a hotel reservation and ordered your transportation. Take whatever time you need this afternoon to go home and pack or for shopping." With an indulgent smile he dismissed an exultant yet frightened Eve.

Eve knew that this trip to New York meant that the management at Bixby's had almost certainly decided upon her as the successor to Alice Marshall. When she accepted the expense money for the trip, she felt she had sealed her fate. It was the thing she had wanted, of course. She had slaved to get where she was. Eve's work always had come before her pleasures and ever since she began working she had bent all her energy toward one goal—to become manager of an advertising office. This promotion was a long and important step toward that ambition.

The expense money exchanged for Travelers' checks and tucked safely into the chamois bag with her precious wedding ring, Eve went to the Y. W. C. A., where she had roomed ever since coming to Lake City, and packed a bag for the New York trip.

The small, shabby room at the Y that she had occupied these last busy, happy months of her girlhood already seemed a little strange, a little deserted. Eve had stayed on here even after she could have afforded more attractive and comfortable quarters. This decision was prompted entirely by economy. The building was conveniently near her work and provided room and board at a very reasonable rate. Eve preferred to economize thus and put the money saved into pretty clothes and educational advancement. Eve was careful; thrifty. She did nothing without a definite purpose.

From the little table that served as a writing desk the pictured face of Eve's mother smiled at her from its cheap frame—the warm, steady mother-smile that had been unfailing all through Eve's life. Now she paused contritely before that picture of Kate Bayless. It was wrong, of course, not to have written to her mother that she was marrying Dick today. It was the first time she had ever shut her mother out from any important event of her life. True, she and Dick had decided hastily. And of course her mother was certain to approve of Dick, Eve reflected proudly. Her father, too. Dick Rader was exactly the sort of dependable, industrious young man to please the most exacting parents. Nothing to worry about on that score.

Suddenly Eve was conscious of that cheap, nondescript frame that held her mother's picture. Always she had planned to buy a better one, but always there had been something she had wanted for herself. Now she was ashamed that Dick should see her mother's picture in this frame. It almost seemed to her that he would know about the various things she had bought for herself with money that might have bought a frame. She would buy a new one in New York—a lovely, silver one.

As she packed for the trip Eve remembered regretfully that she really had very little beside her clothes to take to her new home. She had never, as do so many girls, bought pretty things to adorn her future home. Esther, her sister, had dozens of lovely gifts to take with her when she married. But Esther had had a long engagement to a home-town boy, showers, engagement parties, and a wedding to which a wide circle of relatives and friends were invited. Those things meant so much to Esther. With Eve marriage was important, but so was her career.

Eve recalled how she had started at Bixby's. Determined to get a foothold as a copy writer, she had made the rounds of all the agencies and all the stores in Lake City before she reached Bixby's. The fact that no one needed a beginner and frankly told her so, had not discouraged her but merely put her on her mettle. Then she did what she considered a daring, preposterous thing. She went to Bixby's, most exclusive store of all, and begged Earle Barnes, the advertising manager, to give her a trial. "Never mind discussing salary now," she had said. "Let me work two weeks. Then give me what you think I'm worth." And that astute gentleman, who prided himself on his shrewdness in judging an applicant's character and ability, had told her to go ahead.

"But remember," he warned her, "I'm not promising you a definite job. There isn't an opening here at present. You'll have to make a place for yourself. Browse around here and there in the store. If you see merchandise that looks to you like news, write about it. If you make good—"

And Eve had made good. Now Barnes was demonstrating his faith in her ability by giving her a column in Bixby's daily advertisement to fill with chatty comment on the fashions, new merchandise and the like. And to give the column an impressive start, Eve was to have a week in New York. Two days with Freda Carter, the dress buyer, on her way home from Paris with trunks filled with gowns from the Rue de la Paix, and the rest of the week to look about for herself. Eve's heart should sing, she told herself, instead of lying like a lump of lead and interfering with her breathing. Her heart should sing because she was Dick's wife. But this evening—the evening of their wedding—she was going to New York without him. And Dick had not yet been told that she was going.

It was 5:40 that evening before Eve, almost breathless with haste and excitement, emerged from Bixby's. Dick was waiting. There was something almost pathetic about the way she approached him. "Oh, Dick, I've kept you waiting!" she cried, penitent, as she slipped her arm through his. And something reassuring, protecting, in his answer that he would always be waiting for her.

The November day had turned stormy and Eve brushed the snow from Dick's shoulders as they reached his roadster. How handsome he looked in his new navy-blue camel's hair overcoat. There was an air of unassuming prosperity about him. Dick tucked her in, pressed her hand and closed the door. When he slipped behind the wheel and started the motor, Eve leaned over and kissed him. With a quick look to see that no one was near, Dick gathered her in his arms for a brief instant and as quickly let her go. She would tell him now. Might as well have it over.

"Dick," she began, "I have something very, very important to tell you."

"Better wait till we get out of this traffic," he warned. "We'll have a lot to talk over then."

And Eve was glad for the delay. It was not going to be easy to tell him. They followed the boulevard out toward the Heights. Dick driving at the rate of 25 miles an hour to keep with the green lights and avoid abrupt stopping on the slippery asphalt. Eve was sick with worry. She snuggled as closely as she dared to Dick's arm.

"Happy?" he asked.

"You know I am," she told him and managed to smile.

They drove to Mission Inn for their wedding dinner. Eve was glad that Dick had selected this charming place. The evergreens outside the imposing, tile-roofed stucco building were mantled with Christmas-like whiteness. Inside, soft organ music came from the chapel.

At their table—a small one set for two—the southern California influence for which Mission Inn had been named was even more in evidence. A starred ceiling of heavenly blue shut out the winter night and storm. Wisteria trailed along the eaves and hung in purple clusters. Brilliantly colored parakeets looked saucily at the diners from their ringed perches near the fountain. Here was a lemon tree in a green tub and there an orange tree or an oleander. The air was fragrant with exotic blossoms. On a wrought iron balcony above sat a senorita in yellow, wearing a black lace mantilla and a red rose in her hair. She was picking out soft melodies on a golden harp.

Dick had reserved the table and ordered the dinner. Excited and worried as she was, Eve realized that she was hungry. She remembered now that she had eaten nothing since breakfast. She sipped the mushroom soup, with its unusual piquancy of flavor, for which the inn was famous and ate with relish the baked squab which was another specialty of the place. When the dessert arrived—frozen cream molded in the form of mission bells—she looked thoughtfully across the table at Dick.

"Our wedding bells, Dick," she smiled wistfully.

"I like it this way," he said. "Without all the fuss and excitement. Just we two in a world by ourselves."

"By ourselves . . . by ourselves," Eve murmured. Then she took the plunge.

"Darling," she began, "I've been trying to tell you for an hour. I—nothing has ever been so hard for me! I can scarcely begin—but would you feel dreadfully if I had to leave you?"

WILSON EXPLAINS DELAY OF CHECKS

Agriculture Commissioner Pays Visit to Department at Capital

BATON ROUGE, Sept. 23.—(Special)—Commissioner Harry Wilson gave out an interview defending the U. S. department of agriculture in Washington for the criticism in the apparent delay in sending out checks to compensate farmers who plowed up cotton during the summer.

"I, along with many southern cotton farmers, was at a loss to know why they had not received the cotton plow-up checks long before now. After a visit of over three hours through this particular division of the department of Agriculture, Tuesday night, I was convinced that there was a real cause for the apparent delay. I found something like three thousand men and women working day and night, three shifts a day, using adding machines, card separating machines, typewriters, automatic check signing machines that are signing thousands upon thousands of checks. They are turning out twenty or twenty-five thousand checks daily, and over a million dollars per day is being mailed out to southern cotton planters.

"I was surprised at the magnitude of this part of the plow-up program. Every contract must be checked four to six times before it is finally approved and check sent out. Many complications have arisen, such as two or three and sometimes five or six parties have equity in the crop. Of course, in such cases, the checks must contain or show the names of all parties interested in the cotton plowed up before check is mailed out. Another complication is the government seed, feed and fertilizer loan that was made last spring or winter. This must be considered, and the government deducts either in part, or in some cases retains the full amount due the farmer on plow-up cotton.

"Again let me say that this is a 'whale of a program.' It reminds me of the activities that were in progress back in 1917 and 1918 during the World war period. This division of the U. S. department of agriculture has a tremendous task, and in my humble opinion, are making a fine job of it. You must understand that the department was compelled to employ new and untrained help who had no experience in this line of work. It may require 60 days or more yet to get all checks mailed out. If the farmers could only see the mountains of contracts, letters of explanation and correction cards that are piled high and wide over thousands of feet of floor space, they would readily understand why everyone has not received his check."

Farm Feed Shortage Is Predicted by Strahan

Asserting that Ouachita parish faces the likelihood of another feed shortage, E. R. Strahan, agricultural agent, said Saturday that he planned to mail to 1,000 farmers in the parish cards urging them to plant plenty of fall feed crops. Continuing, he said:

"Fall sown oats is one of our surest feed crops and we have an excellent opportunity to plant it. With a light rain we will have sufficient moisture, land where cotton was plowed under is in good condition and the cotton crop will be out of the way within a few days.

"Oats produce best when planted on land cleanly cultivated during the year, and planted with a grain drill, disc harrow or plowed in shallow. Do not flatbreak deeply just before planting.

"Sow two to three bushels to the acre as soon as possible. This will almost guarantee a supply of feed after the first of June next year.

BICYCLE STOLEN

Theft of a bicycle was reported to police headquarters Saturday by Randolph Hart, living at 600 Mississippi street. The bicycle was described as a blue Keller, bearing serial No. 463085.

CRIME CHECKED BY POLICE WORK

Co., and the daughter of Franklin A. Batcheller, wealthy Yonkers resident and stock broker.

The kidnap scheme upset plans for her wedding, brought federal agents to the Batcheller mansion as house guests and converted an elaborate church ceremony into a comparatively simple house wedding.

The nurse held is Virginia Antoinette de Palma, 23. The filling station manager is James Medley of Yonkers. Thomas S. Cullen, in charge of department of justice agents in New York, said the couple had admitted the crime and told him they sought money so they could be married.

A federal judge here issued a warrant against both charging them with conspiracy to violate the "Lindbergh" act.

The dramatic events that brought the plot to light began early last month when Mrs. Dougherty, then Miss Helen Batcheller—gay and beautiful—was preparing to wed Dougherty.

A woman's soft voice telephoned Mrs. Batcheller and told the wealthy society matron she needed $10,000.

The voice said:

"And if we don't get it, we are going to kidnap your daughter, Helen, and blow up your home."

Mrs. Batcheller was terrified. Invitations for her daughter's wedding had been mailed and all was ready for the event. A few days later, the threat was repeated and letters began to arrive. The Batchellers notified Police Chief Edward Quirk of Yonkers, who urged that department of justice agents be called.

BAILEY AND BATES GET NO CONSIDERATION

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Unprecedented ruling by Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught today swept aside demurrers of nine defendants in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping conspiracy trial, won freedom for one man and a deferred judgment for two others.

Harvey Bailey and Albert Bates received no consideration from the judge, who overruled their defense motions without comment.

Bailey, bank robber, machine gunner and prison breaker, is alleged to have directed the kidnaping plot. Bates and George (Machine Gun) Kelly, the latter still a fugitive, were named in government testimony as the actual kidnapers.

Charles Wolk, one of seven defendants from Minneapolis and St. Paul, was ordered released. Isadore Blumenfeld and Peter Valder will learn Monday morning whether they must leave their cases to the jury.

The four others—Barney Berman, Clifford Skelly, Sam Kronick and Sam Kozberg—were given no encouragement by the judge, who declared that they may not have known they were handling Urschel money, but that they knew they had "hot" money in their possession.

The prosecution traced $1,800 and $500 of the $200,000 paid for Urschel's release to these four Twin Cities defendants, whose plea is that they knew nothing of the kidnaping but handled the money in a liquor deal.

OBITUARY

TUEY FUNERAL

A large representation from the Barkdull Faulk post, No. 13, American Legion, attended the funeral services held for S. B. Tuey, 42, overseas veteran, at the Mulhearn funeral home Saturday afternoon. Mr. Tuey died in Shreveport late Thursday after a lingering illness that confined him to a hospital there.

Following the services at the mortuary, the body was taken to Riverview burial park where the interment took place.

LABOR in the TWIN CITIES

By R. L. JOBE of Typographical Union

Painters and Paper Hangers Notes

We wish to take this opportunity of telling everyone that Local No. 901 of the Painters, Decorators and Paper Hangers of America is a member of the NRA.

The Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paper Hangers of America was founded in 1887. It is the only organized representation for the workers of the painting and allied industries. Local No. 901 is a member of the Brotherhood and has been in continuous good standing since 1913. It is anxious to help you; will you do your part?

LEE L. THOMPSON,
Recording Secretary.

Electricians not now affiliated with the Electrical Workers Union will remember that this union is accepting applications for membership at a greatly reduced rate during the remainder of September. W. S. Adcock is secretary of this craft.

The local Typographical Union is in receipt of the news of the death of its 62-year-old third vice president, John McArdle. He was also president of the Mailers Trade District Union.

Mr. McArdle was a native of New York City and a charter member of the Mailers Union No. 6, N. Y. Served as organizer for the New York State Allied Printing Trades Council and had been treasurer of the Greater New York Allied Printing Trades Council. He died suddenly August 6, while on vacation with his family at Mountain Lake, N. J.

Secretary Frank Morrison of American Federation of Labor, early in August, said that since July 3 he had issued 155 charters on behalf of the federation. At that time no available figures were at hand on the number of charters issued by affiliated national and international unions.

Purchase of the product of foreign unorganized labor with American union-earned dollars is neither wisdom, thrift nor loyalty.

Carpenters and Joiners Notes

We are glad to announce the renewal of Local Union No. 1811, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America. We are looking forward by the help of the NRA and the support of the general public to better progress. With the cooperation of our contractors under such conditions we hope for better assurance.

Up to the present the union has grown rapidly. Every Monday night at the meeting we have received new members. As other workmen of our craft become more interested, we hope to become 100 per cent as before. In shorter hours and better wages, we are glad to cooperate with our brother members, in their troubles and daily efforts of life and in sharing our work with each other. With these efforts we endeavor to give better service to our contractors and complete satisfaction to the public.

We therefore thank and appreciate all the help that is received from one and all.

ERNEST BACLE,
Chairman.
JESSIE BARNETT,
Vice Chairman.
C. C. BURKET,
Secretary and Treasurer.

SOCIETY

BY EVE BRADFORD

GOOD MORNING! Lest you allow the complex life of today to crowd out of your minds the glorious heritage of Autumn, let us suggest a walk this morning among the russet, brown and red leaves that are now doing a huddle in every hollow . . . just yesterday we felt like giving them an extra kick for staying so long, but today with a decided drop in the temperature, the heat of the past summer is just a memory . . . With September strewing the ground with bright colored leaves for golden October to walk upon we have put aside the things of summer and in place of tinkling ice cubes in our morning orange juice, find the aroma of steaming java most divine . . . Now that women are dieting for curves rather than the frail silhouette, breakfasts will once again be the happiest meal of the day . . . Just picture a silver rack holding toast with crust the color of Rembrandt gold . . . sugar and cream in little silver vessels . . . coffee such as the heroes of Disraeli's novels used to drink . . . silver covers and beneath them . . . ha! griddle cakes, grilled bacon, poached eggs . . . orange marmalade perhaps or late bacon . . . ha! buttered muffins and orange marmalade . . . a bowl of pomegranates or Japanese persimmons from your own trees . . . Yes, we must admit, breakfast is the meal that creates happy family life . . . it is the occasion when people have a right to satisfying thoughts and to make personal happiness the goal of life . . . A happy life is the only justification for living, after all. . . .

Now suddenly, we are to have two Sundays, or the equivalent of two Sundays in our lives . . . the Sunday of our past has been, somehow a shorter day than the other six . . . Saturday nights have a way of stretching past midnight and well into Sunday and then the Sunday papers . . . the long, luxuriant bath . . . the dabbling in face cream and all the little things carried over from the week before . . . The NRA has given us an extra day . . . how will we use it? . . .

There was a time, back in our grandmother's day when every town boasted of one great "belle," meaning of course its reigning beauty . . . "the belle of the ball" was a phrase often used in grandmothers day . . . not so today . . . fancy a dance event today with one girl getting all the cutins . . . or a more formal occasion with one sole woman selected the "reigning belle" . . . The thought came to us Tuesday night on the Virginia roof where Monroe society gathered for the Junior League style revue, that we certainly have a lot of decorative women . . . it would have been well nigh impossible to select a "reigning belle" . . . we thought Merrill Bush, quite the loveliest thing imaginable as she trailed a blue velvet negligee down the aisle and then Katie Mae Thornhill appeared in a velvet hostess gown and again we included her in the category of beautiful women . . . By the time each model appeared we knew it was impossible to select a single belle . . . Elizabeth Platt was really beautiful and so completely beguiling . . . Elizabeth Green was the essence of charm with her sleek, marcelled head, beautiful brows and brown eyes . . . Alma Summer Potts, the perfect model, never looked lovelier and then of course there was Louise Graves with her radiant smile and perfect teeth . . . Betty Isaacman, mistress of ceremonies, trailed around in a peach colored chiffon evening dress . . . when she removed her frilled cape we caught a glimpse of her perfect back . . . Helen Sherrouse, as fresh looking as a young debutante was there in a misty blue chiffon evening gown . . . we noticed, as never before, an irresistible sweetness about her . . .

It was nice to see Vada Bancroft again gracing social affairs after devoting all of her time for the past few months to her interesting little family of children . . . We never saw Frances Kennen looking so well . . . she was wearing an unusually becoming gown of beige lace . . . and by the way did you see that artistic flower stand near the entrance to the garden? . . . it might interest you to know that Mrs. Kennen designed it herself and had it made right here in Monroe . . . Talitha and Dick Downes, seated at one long table with a party of friends watching their smiling faces we guessed the reason of their great popularity . . . Talitha was wearing a new fall model of King's blue with blue sequins . . . John Theus, also a member of this party, found the style revue much to his liking . . . of course you know the reason why . . . and by the way we hear that the Millsaps cottage on Riverside is being completely overhauled and will be ready for occupancy in November for a pair of newly weds . . . We ran across Lessie Garreson the other day while shopping and discovered all over again what a lovable sort of person she really is . . . without a doubt she is the most sincere, most wholesome person it has ever been our good luck to know . . . Katherine Pegram shoved off for New York last week, joining friends in Savannah for a steamer trip over the briny deep . . . certainly do envy those friends her gay companionship . . . Happy Hudson is again seized with the wanderlust and is planning to leave very soon now for eastern shores . . . Don't you think True Hudson, Happy's mother, is youthful looking . . . we saw her in a jersey sport suit the other day and thought how wonderful it must be to have strangers mistake your daughters for your sisters. . . .

Here is a lovely little poem, "Tomorrow's Faith," we would like to leave with you for the coming week:

"Tomorrow, friend, will be another day."
A seer wise of old was wont to say
To him who came at eventide, in grief,
Because the day had borne no fruitful sheaf.

O Lord of Life, that each of us might learn
From vain todays and yesterdays to turn,
To face the future with a hope newborn
That what we hoped for cometh with the morn!

The musical Coterie held its first meeting of the year on Friday, September 22, at the home of Mrs. F. V. Allison with sixteen members present. The following program was given:

Lesson, "What is American Music?", Mrs. George Moffett.

Violin, "Chant Negre," Kramer, Mrs. M. C. DeLarot.

At the close of this program, delightful refreshments were served to: Mrs. M. B. Biedenharn, M. C. Delarot, R. L. George, Grayson Guthrie, Louis Hullum, H. H. Land, Hadley Leavell, George Moffett, M. B. Pearce, R. B. Rush, Clyde Sanders, J. E. Walsworth, Henry Whitfield, Miss Florence Zeigler, Beatrice Skirvin, and Gertrude Hart.

Mrs. Walter Moss and Miss Bertha Moss of Lake Charles will arrive today to visit in the home of Mrs. Moss' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grayson Guthrie, at their plantation home.

Lovely Affairs Given in Honor Miss Edwards

One of the lovely events honoring Miss Gertrude Edwards bride-elect, of Bastrop, La., was a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. J. V. McCorvey and Mrs. C. O. Golson at the home of Mrs. McCorvey on Wednesday afternoon. The reception suite was decorated with colorful flowers. A miniature bride and groom were in the center of an altar of pink roses and maidenhair fern which formed a background against which the many lovely gifts were displayed. Misses Judith Willey and Dorothy Hathcox welcomed the guests as they entered. The bride elect was unusually lovely in a handsome gown of black velvet with a corsage of pink roses. Misses Ruth Williams and Martha Davidson and Mesdames Hassell Clark, Jr., and C. L. Nelson, Jr., assisted the hostess in extending the courtesies of the afternoon. After guests had written in the "wishing book," pink and white brick ice cream and individual cakes embossed in pink rosebuds were served to the guests.

Mrs. C. W. Montgomery and Miss Martha Vaughan of Bastrop, were the gracious hostesses at a four-table bridge party given Friday afternoon in honor of Miss Gertrude Edwards at the home of Mrs. Montgomery. After five games of bridge, prize for high score, a lovely bottle of perfume, was awarded to Miss Elaine Hotze, who graciously presented it to the bride-elect. Mrs. Montgomery presented Miss Edwards with a beautiful box of dusting powder. After which Miss Martha Vaughan and her charming mother, Mrs. Eugene Vaughan, served a delectable salad course to Misses Ruth, Mary Emma and Jane Williams, Maybeth and Lois Thiboudeaux, Elaine Hotze, Omega Braddock, Carrie and Martha Davidson, Frances and Katherine Michie, Melba, Eloise and Gertrude Edwards, Alice Bell, Wilma Jordan and Ella Mae Higginbotham and Mesdames C. L. Nelson, Jr., and Robert Parcells.

Anniversary Supper for Mr. and Mrs. Harper

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harper were pleasantly surprised by friends Thursday night when Mrs. L. Rinehart and Mrs. E. S. Harper arranged a charming supper party in commemoration of their first wedding anniversary.

A feature of the evening was the presentation of handsome gifts to Mr. and Mrs. Harper for their new home which they anticipate moving into at an early date. This home, which will undergo extensive improvements, is the old home of Mr. Harper's grandmother, Mrs. McClendon and when completed will be one of the most attractive residences on the west side.

The guest list on this happy occasion were limited to members of the immediate family.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dante who reside in Dumas, Ark., are the proud parents of a handsome baby son, whom they have named Charles Herrman Dante. Mrs. Dante is at the Clinic where she will be glad to see her friends. Mrs. Dante is a sister-in-law of Mr. Edgar Masur of this city.

Mr. Charles J. Cascio, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Cascio, left Friday morning for Baton Rouge where he will enter upon his junior year at L. S. U.

Literary Attainments of Monroe Club Woman Get Noteworthy Recognition

A distinct honor has just been conferred upon Mrs. H. J. Fernandez, whose literary attainments recently gained national recognition. A request has just come for a collection of her poems to be displayed at the annual exposition or Women's Arts and Industries at Hotel Astor in New York city on the twenty-fifth of September. The favorite poems of favorite poets will be represented in this exhibit, attended yearly by more than 50,000 men and women, prominent in the literary world of America.

Mrs. Fernandez' poem "Tis Spring" won first place at the Fifth District Federated club meeting last spring and was sent to the Century of Progress among other prize-winning poems appearing in a book compiled by the Louisiana Federated Women's clubs.

Mrs. Fernandez is also an artist of note and has contributed several sketches and paintings to various magazines. A charming little sketch, recently was featured on the cover of the State Recreation magazine.

Mrs. Fernandez in addition to her work in the Sketch club which she founded and acted as president for one year is one of the most enthusiastic members of the Fine Arts club, the welcome branch of the Twentieth Century Book club, member the state board of the Louisiana Parent-Teacher association and past president of the Barkdull Faulk Parent-Teacher association. In addition to her club activities many demands are placed upon her by other organizations and it can be truthfully said of her she never refuses her services if in doing so, she can benefit the community.

'TIS SPRING!
Let's see, I hardly know
Where to begin, which way to go.

The dishes to wash, the bed to make,
A picture to paint, a cake to bake.

There's a poem I'd like to write,
My! This house is a fright!

There's just no time to mend or sew.

The out-of-doors is calling me,
The call of bird and bumblebee.

The wisteria is heavy with perfume,
So why stay here and fret and fume.

I'll take time to paint the flowers,
Outside enjoy the golden hours.

Events of Interest Fill With Pleasure Engagement Days Of Miss Martha Coenen

Mrs. David Tomb and Mrs. Lane O'Neal of Rayville entertained Saturday afternoon with a garden fete in honor of Miss Martha Ellen Coenen whose marriage on the twentieth of September claimed the interest of friends.

The guests were invited into the garden where gayly striped umbrellas shaded the yellow linen covered tables centered with green crystal bowls filled with marigolds. A clever contest "The Romance of Flowers" supplied interesting diversion. Miss Marie Kelly claimed the trophy and Miss Marguerite Coenen claimed the trophies.

A distinct feature of the afternoon was the clever manner in which Miss Coenen was showered with gifts. Two pickaninnies were privileged to carry an immense clothe basket filled with cooking utensils in bright colored enamals, and later, Miss Coenen was invited to the far end of the garden where an array of beautiful trousseau gifts hung from ribbon clothes lines. Mrs. James Green, disguised as a black mammy removed the "washing" from the line.

Misses Catherine Green, Mary Eleanor Tomb and Elaine O'Neal assisted by "black mammy" served a delicious ice course with the cakes embossed with gold double wedding rings of gold and for-get-me-nots.

Tuesday afternoon from four till six, Mrs. L. M. Lamie and Mrs. T. J. Coenen entertained with a beautiful shower for Miss Martha Ellen Coenen, lovely bride of last Wednesday.

The reception rooms were banked with beautiful flowers for the occasion.

Two dainty little girls, Gladys Corry and Eula Croxton brought in a large basket containing beautiful gifts for the bride, The hostesses presented her with a lovely bride's book and each guest was privileged to write therein. A delicious salad course with tea was served by Misses Barbara Nan Corry and Marguerite Coenen.

Club Women To Meet Here for Convention

The annual convention of the Louisiana Federation of Women's clubs is the outstanding event of the year to club women over the state, and this year it is the pleasure of the clubs of the fifth district to hostess the convention which will take place in Monroe on November 7 and 8.

Mrs. Addison Thompson, fifth district president of Ruston, is general chairman of arrangements, with Mrs. Harvey Trousdale and Mrs. Henry Whitfield, co-chairmen.

The convention will be of particular interest to club women as a revised constitution will be adopted. And like our national, industrial and social life, the federation must undergo changes to meet changing conditions.

Social features of the convention will be a press and publicity luncheon with Mrs. W. B. Holloman of Lake Charles, state chairman of press and publicity, acting toastmistress. The Louisiana products dinner will be presided over by Miss Mabel Brasher of Alexandria. Mr. John Breard of Monroe, state president of the Louisiana Police Jury will be in attendance and introduce Mr. W. B. Clark who will speak on "Louisiana, The Bountiful." Miss Carmen Breazeale of Natchitoches will preside at the fine arts luncheon. At this time the prize winning poems will be read, and prizes awarded by Mrs. W. S. Streator of Lake Charles, state chairman of poetry. Mrs. Isadore Leiber of Shreveport will award the prizes in art and address the assembly on the subject, "Is Art Necessary?"

Mrs. Edward Pilsbury, state president of New Orleans will give her address on the evening of November 7. Her subject will be "The Strength of the Organization." Following her address every club president in the state will make a one minute talk. The evening's program will be climaxed by a reception.

The convention will close on the afternoon of November 8, with the assembly singing of "Auld Lang Syne", and repeating Battie Monroe Sippel's prayer.

Mrs. Sackett Hostess At Luncheon Bridge

Mrs. Vicor ackett entertained at bridge last week in honor of Mrs. W. S. George of Beaumont, Texas, who is visiting her mother, Mrs. E. W. Long on Louisville avenue, and Mrs. H. K. Poulan who is leaving soon to make her future home in Florida.

Mrs. Hal Perry and Mrs. A. G. Hoge claimed the handsome linen bridge sets presented for high bridge scores. The guests of honor were favored with linen handkerchiefs.

Luncheon was served at 12 o'clock to the following: Mrs. George, Mrs. Paul Parsons, Mrs. Poulan, Mrs. E. W. Long, Mrs. Hal Perry, Mrs. A. G. Hoge, Mrs. S. J. Struben.

Marion Wene and Matt Redmond were appointed members of the program committee of the Neville Junior Hi-Y club at the first meeting of the year. Bobby Oliver was admitted for membership at this time. During the social hour a contest was featured : :d resulted in Mac McCoy, Pete Pe: y, Kirk Touchstone and Bob Hanna winning the prizes. Refreshments were served by Barry Stubbs and Matt E. Redmond.

Autumnal Beauty Features The Marriage Ceremony of Miss Edwards and Mr. Sims

A wedding of unusual beauty and affectionate interest to a wide circle of friends was that of Miss Gertrude Edwards of Mer Rouge and Mr. Alton Y. Sims of Shreveport, which was solemnized Sunday afternoon, September 17, at 5:30 o'clock.

The altar, banked in southern smilax interspersed with bows of golden tulle and colorful autumn flowers, formed a perfect setting for the impressive double ring ceremony, performed by Reverend H. M. Bennett.

A pre-nuptial concert was rendered by Miss Elaine Hotzie and Mr. Henry Padgett, who sang "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly."

The bridal party walked down the center aisle strewn with rose petals scattered by the little flower girl, Mary Ann Lange of Little Rock, Ark. Mrs. J. H. Edwards, the bride's mother, acted as matron of honor. She wore a charming advanced fall model of golden brown with accessories of eel gray and carried a beautiful arm bouquet of golden blossoms. Misses Eloise and Melba Edwards, sisters of the bride, and Miss Martha Vaughn were maids of honor. They were also frocked in golden brown and carried exquisite bouquets.

The bride walking with her father who gave her in marriage, wore a smart fall model of brown faille with hat, slippers and gloves of the same beautiful shade. A gorgeous arm bouquet of yellow Talisman roses and valley lilies completed the distinctive costume.

Mr. Vernon Sims, brother of the groom, acted as best man and Mr. Jack Yeldell and Mr. Herbert Sims of Mer Rouge and Mr. Ray Jewett of Shreveport were the ushers.

The marriage of this popular couple was the culmination of a romance begun in early school days.

Miss Edwards attended Ward-Belmont, Kid-Key, and graduated from Centenary college. She is a member of Alpha Zi Delta sorority.

Mr. Sims, after graduating from high school attended Louisiana State university, and Centenary college. He is a member of Theta Kappa Beta fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. Sims will be at home in Shreveport at 1054 Mildred street.

Nuptial Event Claims Interest Many Friends

Of sincere interest to a wide circle of friends was the marriage of Miss Martha Ellen Coenan and Mr. William McKenzie Seaman, son of Captain and Mrs. Horace Seamon of Waterproof, La., solemnized at the Catholic rectory, Monroe, La., Wednesday, September the 20, with Father B. A. Scallan officiating in the presence of near relatives. The bride wore a smart ensemble of navy blue triple sheer crepe with hat and accessories to match. She also wore a corsage of yellow pernet roses and lillies of the valley.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of the bride's cousin, Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Renaud on Louisville avenue. Later they left in their automobile for New Orleans, La., to be guests at the Monteleon hotel. Upon their return they will be at home in Waterproof, La.

Raymond Sackett, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. Sackett, observed his ninth birthday anniversary with a party. The afternoon was devoted to the playing of games directed by Miss Mae Lieber. The trophies were won by Buster Long, Jeanette Clarkson, Harry Bell and Betty Jane Thompson.

The pleasures of the afternoon were completed by the serving of ices, delicious cakes and ice fruit punch. The following friends responded to the invitation each bearing a handsome gift for the celebrant: Berny Handy, Virginia Newman, Jean Carsons, Caroline Bowers, Dorothy Ling, Jeanette Clarkson, Barbara Sackett, Jerry Lockbaum, Buster Long, Harry Bell, Billy Davis, Victor Duncan, Tommy Sandridge, Lloyd Steen, Raymond Sackett, Mrs. E. V. Cole and Mrs. V. Sackett.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Salmon of Fairbanks have returned home from a visit with Mrs. Salmon's parents in Manton, Michigan.

Mrs. Edward Strong and Miss Peggy Strong have returned from a visit with friends and relatives in Houston, Texas.

Little Theatre Will Present a Clever Comedy

An event of interest in Little Theatre circles will be the workshop production "The Mayor and the Manicure" by George Ade, under the direction of Miss Babette Kraus, on the twenty-eighth of September.

In the cast will be such favorites as Herbert Levy (Mayor of Springville), Miss Jenny Hanna (Ruth Foster), Miss Reginia Moffett (Genevieve LeClair), Mr. Francis Barnet (Mr. Milford's son).

The setting of the first act finds Mr. Milford and Ruth Foster eagerly awaiting the arrival of Mr. Milford's son who has recently completed his college course. Ruth and Wallie are engaged to be married. Genevieve LeClair, the college widow, arrives ahead of Wallie and plans to see Mr. Milford to collect heart balm. Mr. Milford, a clever politician, outwits Miss LeClair but gives her a small sum as compensation. Ruth and Wallie continue to make their plans for their marriage.

Georgia Tucker P. T. A. will hold the first regular meeting in the school auditorium, Thursday, September 28, at 3:30 p. m.

Mrs. George Lester, president, stresses the importance of all mothers who have children in Georgia Tucker school, to be present, whether or not they have membership in the P. T. A. organization. There is nothing as important as contact between parent and teacher and with this idea in mind practically the whole meeting will support this movement. If mothers can be brought to realize the significance of such contacts, Georgia Tucker P. T. A. will have accomplished much.

Mrs. George Wesley Smith will be in charge of the program Tuesday night at the Business and Professional Women's club house. All members are requested to be present.

Friends of Mrs. Stanley Blower will be glad to know that she has recovered sufficiently from a recent operation at the clinic to be removed to her home in Fowler, La.

A Motor Trip Through the East Told in Interesting Manner by Monroe Woman

Mrs. Parker McComb has returned from an extensive motor tour in the east and is most enthusiastic over the beauty of the countryside, the educational value of such a trip and the ease with which motoring is now accomplished. Let her tell you in her own words about this journey:

"Had I two loaves, one would I sell,
And buy white hyacinths to feed my soul."

So chanted the poet. And indeed one would have to be devoid of feeling not to enjoy Nature in all her glory as displayed in the Shenandoah Valley.

"This summer I had the opportunity to take my three children, Dorothy, Charles, and Donald, and drive north on the Broadway of America. The first day out, we visited the National cemetery at Vicksburg, Miss., and later that afternoon, passed over to the red clay hills of Alabama where we spent the night at Tuscaloosa. An early start was made the following morning and we saw the university located there before climbing small mountains on the way to Bessemer with its steel mills, and then Birmingham, a big, busy railroad center. Much later in the day, we cut through the northwest corner of Georgia and on in to Chattanooga. It was along this road we saw Lookout Mountain on whose peak was a magnificent but deserted hotel glistening in the sun. After leaving Chattanooga we climbed above the city and on its splendid concrete roads made good time driving to Knoxville, Tenn., where we located a tourist home recommended by the A. A. A., and spent the night.

An early start the next morning gave us rare opportunities to enjoy the great Smoky mountains at sunup. Good roads, no car trouble and such scenery! Then the mountains began in earnest—the one at Pulaski being 4,500 feet altitude. Grades were easy and I made 45 to 50 miles in high. That evening just at twilight, we entered Natural Bridge at Virginia. Never will the majestic solemnity of the bridge and surroundings leave my mind. A rich baritone voice from the tree-tops singing, "At the End of a Perfect Day" and what a fitting end it was! Worshipped by the Monican Indians and discovered by pioneers and surveyed by George Washington for Lord Fairfax. Even the original survey stone Washington carved his initials on, was there.

Our fourth day was devoted to historical sight seeing. At Lexington, Va., we visited the Washington-Lee university accompanied by a cadet who took us to the gym swimming pool, athletic grounds, showed us the barracks, tailor-shop where all uniforms are made, the library, recreation hall, and chapel. We went leisurely through the museum where General Lee and Stonewall Jackson's war relics are—saw the interior of the Lee Memorial chapel and sat in the chair General Lee occupied during services. Listened to a detailed account of the chapel and how all the portraits were given by the Washington family. Saw Lee's statue and the vaults where the ashes of his entire family are resting. A guide book rendered valuable information when we rode past the steel markers telling of the various engagements of the Revolutionary war, and of Indian massacres, and the location of forts. Early in the afternoon, we came to New Market, where we left the highway to climb another mountain to view Luray Caverns, 1,200 feet above sea level. A guide conducted our party and made the walk of one and a half hours without re-tracing our steps, a most enjoyable one though we wore coats as the temperature was 54 degrees, though not at all damp as one might imagine. Words fail to tell of the beauty of these immense formations made over a period of a thousand years by water seeping so gradually through the earth's surface. Indirect lighting helped to create many weird and fantastic scenes. Once again we drove away speechless.

Washington, D. C., just at dark—and the flash of motors from all over the country hurrying by. The capitol all ablaze, with lights. I felt as if I were a spectator looking at a movie screen. But we were pressed for time and motored on to Baltimore and Havre de Grace, Md., where we spent what was left of the night. The following morning made Lansdowne, Pa., where I visited mother and sister. As Lansdowne is part of Philadelphia, we had much of interest to see there. Like all true Americans, we made our first visit to Independence hall and the Liberty bell and historic relics. The next day we drove 50 miles to Longwood Gardens on the DuPont estate. And what a beautiful estate it is—even to the natural outdoor theater! Another day was a trip to the navy yard, where a pass permitted us to see how airplanes are made from start to finish. A visit to the drydock and Admiral Dewey's flagship, Manilla. At another time we went to the hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., where the Los Angeles and Macon were anchored. There for sale was the auto of the ill-fated commander of the Akron. It was quite pathetic to hear first hand the account of that last voyage.

On Sunday, we attended service in Christ church which was built in 1695. There we saw the pews of Benjamin Franklin, Washington and his wife, Martha, Lafayette, and Betsy Ross. After church, came a visit to Betsy Ross' house and the fireplace with the Dutch blue tile in the room where Mrs. Ross made "Old Glory."

Another afternoon we visited Curtis Publishing company, and were conducted through the entire plant and shown how The Ladies' Home Journal, Saturday Evening Post and Country Gentleman magazines are made from start to finish. In the ladies' cafeteria all the wall panels are decorated with life-size paintings on various subjects by Maxfield Parrish. So realistic, and so beautiful the blending of colors! Just inside the lobby of the building, is "The Dream Garden," a mural decoration executed by Tiffany Studios from a painting by Maxfield Parrish. It is the largest piece of mosaic work in the world and is composed of over a million pieces of specially fired glass.

One Saturday afternoon was spent in the surf at Ocean City, N. J., and still another day we were all over the Valley Forge battle grounds; in the museum, the Washington headquarters where rooms are fitted up for housekeeping as in colonial days; in the Memorial chapel, and finally, at dusk, ate a picnic supper on the grounds by the National Carrillon while the bells (one named for each state) played semi-classical music. It was a thrilling experience recalling the courage and bravery of the men who had once fought so bravely on those very grounds.

Three days were spent with friends on the mountain top near Pompton Lakes—ere we left on a three-day excursion to New York city. As it was the third time our children had been to New York city, and both my husband and I had lived there for years—naturally I took them to see entirely different things this time. And so we did certain portions of the museums of natural history, which included the Indian section, birds, meteorites, jewels and Dr. Beebe's recent discoveries under seas, plant and animal life. Though the day was hazy, we ventured with a friend to the 102nd floor of the Empire State building to see New York city in miniature. Another day, came a trip to the Aquarium, the sub-treasury, Wall Street, and a service in Old Trinity church, walks on Broadway and minor points of interest.

Just a few days ere leaving Philadelphia, we drove to Washington's Crossing, where he and his brave soldiers crossed the Delaware river that bitter winter's day.

Finally, after two months' of varied interests, came the day to hit the long long trail awinding—and home.

Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Shahan, Miss May Dell Shahan, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Morris and two children of Fort Worth, Texas, completed a visit in the home of their cousin, Mrs. Edward Strong, and returned to their home, last week.

George Bruce and Frank Shaughnessy departed last week for Baton Rouge where they entered the state university.

Miss Avice Ponder, Miss Naomi Speakman, Miss Katherine Strong, Miss Natalie Hudnall and Miss Kathleen Baldwin, formed a congenial group to visit the world's fair in Chicago.

Mr. W. E. Hannah of St. Louis, and brother, Clifford Hannah, and daughter, Vesta and Agnes, of Crofton, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Jones of Popular Bluff, Ark., have returned to their homes, after spending the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Hoge.

Miss Dorothy Lewman, who graduated from the Ouachita junior college last year has matriculated this year at the Illinois State Teacher's college n Charleston, Ill.

Outstanding work is being done for the Palmer Orphanage at Columbus, Miss. Mrs. W. M. Harper spoke on "Christian Education and Ministerial Relief." Mrs. Brown on "Young People's Work." Annual rally day will take place Oct. 1, 1933, at Sunday school. Mrs. Chester in the absence of Mrs. Jno. Hay, secretary of foreign missions, spoke on "Our Work in the Foreign Field." Mrs. Wharton Brown, secretary of literature, suggested that all read "Missionary Survey," "Christian Observer," or "Presbyterian of the South."

An impressive consecration service was conducted by Mrs. Morrice with all officers and secretaries of courses standing in front of white cross lighted with seven tapers. Meeting closed with prayer by Rev. Ernest Holloway. During social hour an interesting social contest was conducted. Circle 3 was hostess.

Mrs. Effie Jones and Mrs. Bessie Snider entertained with a bridge Thursday afternoon for the benefit of W. B. A. No. 26. Mrs. Thomas Dupree and Mrs. A. E. Dakin were presented with toilette accessories for high score. Delicious cakes and fruit punch were served during the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Masur and daughter, Miss Bertha Alice Masur returned yesterday from a six weeks' visit in Chicago and New York City.

Miss Ann Hardie is having quite a wonderful time in New Orleans as the guest of her aunt, Miss Ella Hardie.

Former Local Girl Weds In California at the Historic Wee Kirk O'the Heather

Friends of Miss Geraldine Oakley Mangham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Mangham, formerly of this city will be interested in the following account of her marriage in Los Angeles, Cal., on the twenty-eighth of August. The bride spent several weeks in Monroe last year as the guest of her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Oakley, Miss Louise Endom and Mr. and Mrs. W. D. King.

The romance of Miss Geraldine Oakley Mangham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Mangham of 3856 Seneca, Los Angeles, and Cleveland G. Voorhies, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Voorhies of Los Angeles, was culminated in marriage Monday, August 28, 1933. The wedding took place at 8 o'clock last night in the Wee Kirk o' the Heather at Forest Lawn Memorial park.

Rev. David B. Loofbourrow, pastor of the Central Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, officiated.

The music preceding the service included vocal solos, "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly," sung by Dr. Joseph Marple of Glendale, Dr. Charles C. Anderson of Los Angeles, played the organ selections.

"Annie Laurie" was rendered as the guests were assembling. It is the Wee Kirk tradition that Annie Laurie be played just before the bride appears.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white satin trimmed with rose point lace. It was fashioned on empire lines with a court train. Her long tulle veil, embroidered in seed pearls, was attached to a cap of rose point lace also patterned in pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Evelyn Schwab, the maid of honor, wore a blue silk crepe dress with hat to match, and carried sweetpeas.

Mrs. Miriam Sabate, of New Orleans, matron of honor, was gowned in pink silk crepe with hat harmonizing. Her flowers also were sweetpeas.

The bridesmaids were Misses Elizabeth Brown and Marjorie Walker. The former wore yellow crepe, trimmed in maline, the latter green, with matching accessories.

Josephine Hammett, daughter of Dashiel Hammett, the well known author, was the flower girl. She wore a frock of pink and blue.

Don P. Greenfield of Los Angeles was the best man. The ushers were Earle C. Voorhies and John J. Sabate.

An impressive feature of the ceremony was the shower of white rose petals which fell like a benediction on the bride and groom following the plighting of the marriage vows.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents for relatives and intimate friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Voorhies plan to reside in Glendale after their moneymoon trip.

The bride is a native of Louisiana, but has resided in California for a number of years. She is a graduate of Belmont high school in Los Angeles and attended Woodbury college and Glendale junior college. She is an honorary member of Bethel No. 79 of Job's Daughters.

Mr. Voorhies is a graduate of Franklin high school and of Woodbury college. At present he is associated with his father in business in Los Angeles.

Mrs. R. F. Jones and children, Jo Ann and Billy, of Bernie, Missouri, are visiting Miss Eleanor Krogmire of 1614 Jackson street. Mrs. Jones is affectionally remembered here as Miss Frances Krogmire.

Mrs. D. I. Hirsch and Mrs. Abe Arent have returned from New Orleans where they attended the national florists convention.

Friends of Miss Alma Summer Potts will be grieved to learn that she is ill at her home on Breard street.

Miss Oma Bivens and Mrs. O. E. Huey of Oak Grove, and Mrs. I. Buchanan have returned from Chicago where they attended the Century of Progress exposition. En route home they enjoyed a visit in St. Louis.

ACE HURLERS TAKE MOUND IN DIXIE SERIES TODAY

GILBERT BLAMES NIGHT BASEBALL FOR TWO LOSSES

Pels Vow Vengeance as Series Is Resumed at Orleans Today

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 23. — (AP) — Trailing the San Antonio Missions 2 to 1 in the Dixie series after three night games in Texas, New Orleans' Pelicans came back home tonight more sore than ever at the guy who thought up after-dark baseball and vowing vengeance in the remaining day games to be played here, starting tomorrow.

The Pels never did like the night game and proved it in San Antonio by some ragged playing, interrupted only by Thursday night's temporary show of snap for a 7-4 victory. San Antonio sailed through their home-town opener 3-1 and repeated last night 6-3. Today was an off day to allow for the shift of scene.

"They'll find things tougher here," said Manager Larry Gilbert as he steered his Pels into port.

Hank Severeid, the catcher boss who sent his San Antonio club through a complicated Shaughnessy plan playoff to its first Texas league championship, just grinned, looked confident, and said he was looking for a short series, pointing out that the Missions already had half of the wins necessary for a Dixie championship.

The ace twirlers of the two clubs drew the pitching assignments for tomorrow afternoon's fourth contest here.

The Southern association champions will call on their veteran, Fred Johnson, who has won 21 games for the Pels this season, to lead the way toward a comeback. It will be his first start in the series.

San Antonio will again send to the mound Fabian Kowalik, the young Pole who has 25 wins in 1933 to his credit, including the 3-1 polishing handed to New Orleans last Wednesday night.

As the scene shifts, the dope books show that only two men of the 11 used by San Antonio in the three first games failed to get hits. Severeid and Pitcher Abe Miller, each of whom were in only one game, show .500 ratings with two out of four times up. But the real big guns in the average columns are Pid Purdy, at bat 13 times for 6 safeties and an average of .462, and Larry Bettencourt, connecting 5 times in 11 times up for .455.

Eddie Rose is at the top of the Pels batting column with five out of 12 for .408, followed by Jack Ward, 5 out of 13 for .385, Eddie Moore, 5 out of 14 for .357 and Eddie Morgan and Andy Harrington, each with 4 out of 12 for .333.

Five of the 13 men used by New Orleans failed to connect.

The San Antonio team average is .291, New Orleans' .279.

Approximately 13,000 witnessed the three Texas games, with gate receipts in the neighborhood of $17,000. New Orleans, with a much larger seating capacity, is preparing for full houses for the series here.

Local games will start at 3 p. m.

VALLEY OPENER WON BY SWARTZ

Cordell Holds Clarks to Three Hits and Wins 3-0 Victory

With Cordell holding the Lumberjacks to three hits, Swartz blanked Clarks yesterday, 5 to 0, to win the first game of the series for the Ouachita Valley league championship.

Cordell was invincible, holding the Lumberjacks to one hit for the first eight innings. The other two Clarks safeties came in the first half of the ninth. Besides limiting the opposition to three hits, Cordell struck out 12 batsmen and issued but one base on balls.

Swartz touched Brooks, Clarks hurler, for 11 hits and climaxed their attack with a three-run rally in the fifth inning. The Carbon Blackers added another run in the sixth and their fifth tally in the eighth.

Godwin led the hitting for Swartz with three hits in four trips to the plate, including a double. Bagwell, Patterson and Takewell each got two hits for the winners. Frickie hit a double for Clarks.

The game was well played and fast, requiring only a hour and 35 minutes.

The second game of the championship series will be played at Clarks today, starting at 3 o'clock.

Terry Confident Hubbell Will Beat Nats in Opener

Giants' Manager Relies on Pitching Strength to Win Series

By Edward J. Neil
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(AP)—One-half the batteries for the opening game of the world series can ring out as loudly now as they will in the Polo Grounds a week from Tuesday.

"For the Giants Hubbell pitching, Mancuso catching. For Washington. . ."

Bill Terry believes the Senators will start Earl Whitehill and of course Luke Sewell will catch. That pleases him.

"We'll beat Whitehill, then we'll beat Al Crowder. Hal Schumacher will pitch the second game here. The Senators won't hit him. I'll have Freddy Fitzsimmons for the third game in Washington. He's smart and he'll use every bit of that big field down there."

The gamblers have made Hubbell a 7 to 5 choice to beat anyone who starts against him, whether Joe Cronin's choice be Whitehill or Al Crowder. Schumacher, because of his baffling sinker ball, is even money for the second game even though the Senators, are a 7 to 5 choice to win the series.

Terry ran through the powerful slugging array his crack pitching trio must face and waved it aside, unconvinced.

"There's Heinie Manush, .332; Joe Kuhel, .321; Buddy Myer, .312; Cronin, .304; Fred Schulte, .300. Of course we can't equal that," he said.

"But you'll notice that there isn't a man there of the type that has been the exact difference between the American and National leagues in the world series of the past few years—I mean a Babe Ruth or a Lou Gehrig. Those two could murder a club all alone. These Senators are good hitters, but not that kind. And in Hubbell, the greatest pitcher in baseball today, and Schumacher and Fitzsimmons, they're facing pitching they've never seen before."

The Giants have been working out for two days with the American league ball.

"The difference," says Terry, "is amazing. It travels faster, rides farther. Don't overlook that when you consider the Washington hitting. They've been belting that rabbit all season. They'll get a shock when they get a hold of the "downers" Hubbell and Schumacher throw and they dribble into easy outs."

"Manush, Goslin, Schulte—that's a sweet outfield.

"I've got better pitchers, they figure to hit harder, but they won't. In the infield Buddy Meyer, at second shades Hughie Critz in hitting but not fielding, and while Joe Cronin at short figures to stand out above our Blondy Ryan, don't bet he will in this series. Travis Jackson at third will match even up with Ossie Bluege.

"Me? I'll hold my own with Kuhel at first or break a leg trying."

SOFTBALL TEAMS TO MEET TODAY

West Monroe Champions Play Shreveport at McGuire Park

Two of the best softball teams in north Louisiana, West Monroe and Shreveport, will tie up today at McGuire park in the first game of a championship series. The game will start at 3:30 o'clock.

Preparations have been made for a large crowd. Bleachers seating 1,000 persons have been erected and the park diamond improved. There will be no admission charge.

Both teams are heavy hitting outfits and each has a star pitcher to start in the opener today. The Shreveport club recently won the city championship, while West Monroe emerged victorious in a series with the National Guard club for the Twilight league title here.

The West Monroe club will start with the same lineup which won the city series. Red Clark will catch, Carter will be on first, with McGee at right short, Bell at second, Welch on short, Watkins at third and Terry, Maxie and McNeal in the outfield.

Ford Hines, West Monroe's ace, will be on the mound, opposed by Ray Stump, Shreveport's crack pitcher, who is rated as one of the best in the state. The rest of Shreveport's lineup will be as follows:

It is probable that a double header will be played between the two teams next Sunday.

DODGERS DEFEAT CHAMPIONS TWICE

Bill Terry Uses Many Substitutes in Dropping Double Header

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The Giants made their first public appearance on the ball field today since they clinched the National league championship and took a drubbing from the Brooklyn Dodgers in both ends of a double-header. The scores were 7 to 4 and 3 to 0.

Mungo

The Giants started out with most of their regulars in the lineup but by the time the second game got under way Blondy Ryan was the only one left and Van Lingle Mungo had little trouble shutting out the reserves with four hits. It was Mungo's 16th victory of the year and his ninth in the last 12 starts. It also was the tenth blanking administered to the Giants this season.

Emil Leonard, rookie right hander, pitched the first game for the Dodgers and received strong support from 14 hits off Bill Shores and Watson Clark. Tony Cuccinello put the game away with a homer with two aboard in the seventh.

Johnny Salverson, allowed to start a major league game for the first time, kept pace with Mungo for five innings of the afterpiece. Joe Hutcheson bounced a home run off the upper stand.

BRASWELL WINS OIL BELT MEDAL

Local Golfer Leads El Dorado Field With 77; Ellis Has 78

EL DORADO, Ark., Sept. 23.—(Special)—Morton Braswell, Monroe linksman, bested a fine field here today to win medalist honors in the annual Oil Belt tourney, played over the El Dorado Golf and Country club links. Braswell posted a 77 for the medal.

Braswell's chief competition came from a fellow-townsman, Prioleau Ellis, who was second with a 78. Thus two Monroe golfers established themselves as favorites to capture the title.

In first round matches, played this afternoon, Braswell defeated Dick Brown, of El Dorado, 4 and 2. Braswell took an early lead and was never headed, although Brown staged a strong rally toward the close of their match. Ellis defeated Earl Harter, of Shreveport, 2 up, in a closely contested battle.

In the semi-finals Sunday morning, Braswell pays L. L. Vann, of New Oreans, runner-up in the recent Riverside Labor Day tournament, and Ellis meets Charles Trimble, of El Dorado. The finals will be played Sunday afternoon.

Following the completion of the championship match, prizes will be awarded the winners and runners-up of the various flights.

AT TOP WINS MARQUETT

Perry Beats Satoh and Retains Pacific Crown

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 23. — (AP) — Frederick J. Perry, the national champion, retained his Pacific southwest tennis championship today by defeating Jiro Satoh, steady-playing Japanese star, at his own game.

The British Davis cup star stood on the baseline through the greater share of the match and displayed a consistency of shots that out-steadied one of the most persistently steady players in the game.

The scores were 6-4, 1-6, 6-3, 7-5.

Miss Dorothy Round of England defeated Miss Alice Marble of San Francisco to win the women's singles title, 6-2, 6-2.

Perry came back to play the mixed doubles final with Miss Round and was a party to a sound lacing 6-1, 6-1, by Ellsworth Vines, Jr., of Pasadena and Miss Elizabeth Ryan, of England.

LIONS NEED BUT ONE VICTORY FOR LEAGUE PENNANT

Ward and Sweeney to Be Opposing Pitchers at Bastrop Today

With Oak Grove holding the commanding lead of three games to none, the championship series of the Big Six Industrial league will be resumed today at Snyder park at Bastrop. The game will start at 3 o'clock.

Oak Grove has "southpawed" the Kraftmen into submission and "Lefty" Ward, one half of the Lions' left-handed pitching staff, will be sent back at the Bastrop hitters in an attempt to make it four straight today. Ward held the Kraftmen to four hits in winning at Bastrop last Wednesday. "Foots" Richbourg, another southpaw, defeated the Kraftmen last Sunday and again last Thursday.

Determined to stop the heavy hitting Lions, Manager Louis Ulmer will start Sweeney, Bastrop's Dixie league hurler, today. The Lions have found a liking for Sweeney's work in two previous games but Ulmer believes the righthander will turn the trick in his third attempt. If Sweeney isn't right, Ulmer will fall back on Paul Spencer, the chunky little pitcher who carried most of the hurling burden during the regulation season. Ulmer also has Trask and Ward available and will use any or all of them in the attempt to stop the Lions.

The Bastrop club has been in a hitting slump during the series and Ulmer doesn't believe it can last forever. Paul Easterling and "Cowboy" Jones, two sluggers of proven ability, have failed to come through against Richbourg and Ward, but it isn't reasonable to expect these two heavy hitters to fold up consistently. Nathan Blair, the L. S. U. flash, is the only Bastrop regular who has been able to find the range. Strangely, too, Blair hits lefthanded and has had unusual success against the two Oak Park southpaws.

The Bastrop lineup will find Cantrell behind the plate, Cecil Jones on first, Biggs at second, C. Spencer at short, Loomis at third and Easterling, "Cowboy" Jones and Blair in the outfield.

Polvogt will catch for Oak Grove, Manager Walker will be on first, Swain at second, Bennings at short, Wilcox on third, and Sutherlin, Tucker and Fryer in the outfield.

If the Lions win today, it will be the first time in Big Six league history that a team has won the playoff in four straight games.

Capacity crowds have witnessed the three games and another big turnout is expected at the Bastrop park today.

Sun Archer Wins $10,000 Handicap and Pays $43.40

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 23. —(AP)—Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Archer, a rank outsider, today won the $10,000 Potomac handicap, defeating 10 other three-year-olds over one and one-sixteenth miles. E. R. Bradley's Barn Swallow was second and Joseph E. Widene's Golden Way third.

Lightly regarded in the wagering, Sun Archer paid $43.40, $17 and $9.80 across the bars and returned his Binghampton, N. Y., owner, $8,100. His time of 1:44 4-5 for the one and one-sixteenth miles was only four-fifths of a second off the track record.

THE NEW RULES

The effects of the new sideline rule, whereby the ball is brought back to a point ten yards from the sideline any time it is downed closer than ten yards to the boundary, were apparent here for the first time Friday night in the Neville-Junction City football game. The new rule certainly is a boon to quarterbacks.

No longer is it necessary to waste a down in order to get the ball nearer the middle of the field. Many an offense has bogged down simply for the lack of the one down that was thrown away because the ball rested near the sideline. Yet there was little else to do but take 'er out of bounds in order to move out 15 yards on the playing field. This sacrifice has proved costly in many instances.

Now the quarterback can call any play he likes and if the ball is downed closer than ten yards to the sideline, the referee will obligingly move it inside to that 10-yard stripe.

It is believed that the new sideline rule will have the effect of popularizing the lateral pass and thereby open up the defense, which has been increasingly difficult to pierce near the goal line. There always remained the danger that the lateral pass would result in the ball being downed near the sideline.

The only other change of importance in the new football code is the broadening of the definition of clipping, so that blocking by running or diving into the back of a player who is not carrying the ball now constitutes a foul. The penalty for clipping was reduced to 15 yards from the point of the foul, in the belief that officials will be less hesitant in calling fouls than with the former heavy penalty of 25 yards.

"WHO DO YOU LIKE?"

The annual world series guessing contest is on, the experts are comparing the two teams man for man and before another week has passed, all the returns will be in, even from the outlying precincts. So far, it looks like a close race between the Senators and Giants in this pre-series popularity contest.

"Who do you like?" has been asked us not less than a hundred times a day lately. The answer is, the Senators.

And why? Because Mister Cronin has a finely balanced ball club, with a tight defense, lots of power and some pretty fair country pitchers. Mister Terry has just as good a defense and his pitching will stack up with the best, but the old punch isn't so hot. That's our answer in a nutshell.

Mind you, we're not a fortune teller. If we had such occult powers that we could foresee the results of such events, we'd immediately go into a trance and tell you the winner in the fourth at Havre de Grace, and wouldn't we all clean up?

THE COMICS RETURN

Anyway, we ought to have a lot of good clean fun in this series. Nick Altrock and Al Schacht will be back with all their funny stuff.

It has been some years since Nick and Al have performed for the series customers but there doesn't seem to be any way to keep them out this year, in view of the fact that their own club will be one of the contenders.

It used to be the practice to hire the Washington clowns to entertain the crowds, regardless of the participants in the annual classic. But when the Yankees began their string of series engagements, the management thought such events should be carried through on a serious plane and all that sort of thing, so Nick and Al were given the pink slip.

Now that Washington is again in the money, the Altrock-Schacht team will function as of old. Despite the fact that the boys have turned temperamental and won't even speak to each other outside of working hours, they're busy now thinking up new ones to take the place of the pantomimes that have entertained the customers at Washington for so long.

YANKS WIN WILD GAME FROM SOX

Ruth and Company Pile Up 23 Hits to Beat Boston, 16 to 12

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The veteran Herb Pennock of the Yankees was credited with beating Lloyd Brown and the Red Sox 16 to 12 today, but his work was merely an incident in a wild afternoon of baseball. New York used three pitchers and Boston four in the slugfest. A total of 39 hits were made, 23 by the Yanks. Lou Gehrig hit his 31st homer of the year in the first inning and Babe Ruth equalled it in the fourth.

Chapman

Young Mel Almada contributed a four-bagger to Boston's scoring; Ben Chapman stole his 25th and 26th bases of the year and was put out of the game when he was caught trying to steal again in the ninth and protested Umpire Emmet Ormsby's decision.

LOCAL BOXERS TO MEET SHREVEPORT

Another Stellar Card Is Lined Up at Stadium for Tuesday Night

The Monroe Athletic club mittmen clash with the Lowe McFarlane post American Legion scrappers of Shreveport here Tuesday night in a card featuring two tri-state champions.

"Wild Boy" Herbert Sorey, Monroe's middleweight contender, meets Tiny Klein, tri-state middle weight champ, in the main squabble of the night. Sorey dropped a close decision to Klein during the Golden gloves tourney at Shreveport recently and is expected to give Tiny a tough battle Tuesday.

The featherweight Tri-State champion, Monroe McNaughton of Rayville, in the ring for the locals, will be up with his leading contender Syndie Parham. McNaughton and Parham led the boxers of their class at the tri-state tourney and their next meeting is expected to be a real treat for the fans.

Joe Falletta will again brave the squared arena after suffering a busted lip in a battle last week. Arthur Mellow, another tough middleweight, will be Falletta's opposition.

Lawrence Knecht, former interscholastic lightweight champ, comes from the C. C. C. at Chatham to bolster Monroe's chances by taking on Buster Steward, a hard punching youngster who has been making a good show during his ring appearances.

Two other matches on the card will see LeRoy Francis in a middleweight clash with George Thomas, and Sid White, a newcomer in the local arena, will appear against Arden Ballard.

The fights will begin at 8 o'clock. Officials will be announced tomorrow.

The story of BILL TERRY by Daniel

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of six articles on the life of Bill Terry, by Daniel M. Daniel, baseball writer of the New York World-Telegram.)

By Daniel M. Daniel

NEW YORK, Sept 23.—William Harold Terry's real start toward the baseball pedestal he holds today, as pilot of the champion Giants, was made with his sale by Newnan, of the Georgia-Alabama league, to Shreveport of the Texas league. Bill pitched well enough for Shreveport in 1916 to merit a fine advance in salary, and a closer scrutiny by the agents of the major leagues.

In 1917, Southpaw Terry developed into a brilliant prospect by winning 14 games for Shreveport. The 19-year-old kid from Atlanta was a willing worker and hurled 246 innings in no fewer than 40 games. His fast ball accounted for 81 strikeouts.

A Rich Young Man

All through his baseball career, Terry has been a shrewd business man. In fact, it is said that with the exception of Babe Ruth, who has about $400,000 salted away, Terry is the wealthiest ball player in the country. He owns considerable real estate in Memphis and his English-Scotch strain of thrift and shrewdness has kept him away from such things as stock markets and oil wells.

At the close of the 1917 season, young Terry, who had married a Memphis girl, began to take stock of his financial situation, his chances and his future.

War had been declared. Baseball, especially in the minor leagues, was very much unsettled. Texas league salaries took a dip. Financier Terry decided that baseball was not a good business at that particular time, and in the spring of 1918 he quit the Shreveport club and took a job with an oil company in Memphis.

Stays Out of Game

Little did Terry dream that instead of moving away from baseball he was going deeper into the game, and a career in it. What Terry did not know when he retired in 1918 was that Kid Elberfeld, the old Yankee shortstop and manager, had bought him for his Little Rock team of the Southern league.

Elberfeld tried every conceivable way to get Terry to report, but it was no go. The oil company supported a ball club and Terry took charge of that.

For four years Terry remained out of league competition. Time after time Elberfeld tried to get him to change his mind. The war had ended. Baseball had come back stronger than ever. Crowds were larger. Players' salaries had risen.

But Terry had made a place for himself with the oil company in

PARISH ELEVEN BEGINS GRID CAMPAIGN SATURDAY

OUACHITA TEAM MEETS LISBON IN SEASON'S OPENER

Neville High Squad Tackles Vicksburg Club Friday Night

The Ouachita parish high school Lions open their 1933 football campaign Saturday night against the Lisbon Eagles, Coach Ben Rush announced last night. The Lion schedule has not been completed, Rush said, but two dates now open are expected to be filled.

The Neville high school squad, which opened the season Friday night with a 20-0 victory over Junction City, also plays here this weekend, tackling the strong Vicksburg eleven Friday night at Forsythe park.

The Lions have plenty of weight this season but the team will lack experience. Rush said. Only four lettermen, Johnson, Staples and M. Trimble in the line and Stron in the backfield, returned. Several players who will necessarily start have never had football experience before, the Lion mentor said.

The Lions wound up their second week of training with a scrimmage at Forsythe park last night. It was the first night workout of the season for the Ouachita entry.

The Parish line will be slightly stronger than its backfield, with the three returning lettermen to bolster the front wall. Johnson will be shifted back to center, with Thornhill as an understudy. Poulan and Mitchell, two men, are the guards and the tackles will be selected from Staples, Avant, Hamilton and B. Trimble. Monroe Trimble, a veteran, will hold down one terminal post, while Boyce or Renwick will get the call at the other end.

Harry Stron will return to his old position at fullback, with Bowles or Honeycutt at quarterback. Bowles is a fast and shifty runner and probably will carry much of the ball-carrying burden. Honeycutt has had slight experience. The halfbacks will be White and Butler or West.

The Ouachita team will average about 165 in the line and 155 in the backfield. Coach Rush said. There is some likely looking material on the Lion squad but it is primarily a first-year team and the Parish mentor has no championship hopes.

Following is the Ouachita schedule:

Sept. 30—Lisbon, here (night).
Oct. 6—McGehee, Ark., here (night).
Oct. 16—Farmerville here.
Oct. 20—Delhi, here.
Oct. 28—Bastrop, here.
Nov. 4—Open.
Nov. 11—Ruston, here.
Nov. 18—Open.
Nov. 24—Choudrant, here.
Nov. 30—Bolton, at Alexandria.

Coach Rush said that he is attempting to fill either the Nov. 4 or Nov. 18 dates with Haynesville.

Coach Percy Brown expects a real test against Vicksburg next Friday night and will push the Tigers through an intensive practice program the first of the week. The Tiger mentor wasn't exactly pleased with the performance of the team against Junction City but expects the squad to work out of its kinks this week. In all, the light Neville squad made a fairly good showing, considering that it was the first game of the season.

Brown announced yesterday that the game with Dubach would be played in the afternoon of Oct. 6, instead of at night. The Ouachita-McGehee game will be played at night. Both games will be played at Forsythe park.

Ole Miss Held to Tie By Southwestern of Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Southwestern's light but determined Lynx opened the football season auspiciously here today by fighting the University of Mississippi to a 6-6 deadlock on Fargason field.

The Lynx were outplayed during most of the battle, but when pressure was hardest, they tightened their defense. Brad White, Ole Miss half, raced across the visitors' touchdown in the last minute of the first half. Southwestern scored in the third quarter with Neal Tapp, right half, taking a pass from Dick Whittaker, quarter, to count. Both teams failed in the try for extra point.

Ole Miss gained 251 yards to 141 for Southwestern. The Lynx were inside the visitors' territory only twice. Mississippi threatened no less than half a dozen times, and once lost a touchdown because of a penalty.

Governor Futrell of Arkansas was among the 6,000 spectators.

CUBS WALLOP REDS

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Paul Derringer, the majors' "losingest" pitcher, suffered his 27th defeat of the season today as the Chicago Cubs defeated the Cincinnati Reds, 7 to 1, in the opening game of their series.

Guy Bush went the route for the Cubs for his 19th victory and was deprived of a shutout only by Jim Bottomley's home run with one out in the ninth.

Ray Kolp, Derringer's successor, was the victim of a home run by Gabby Hartnett. It was the 16th of the season for the big Cub catcher.

BRAVES, PHILS DIVIDE

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23—(AP)—The Phillies and Braves divided a doubleheader today, the locals winning the first game, 5-4, and the visitors taking the second, also 5 to 4.

Both games were "see-saw" contests in which the lead changed hands several times.

DANIEL'S STORY OF BILL TERRY

Memphis. A son had been born to the Terry family. Bill had joined the Episcopal church in Memphis and was singing a rich baritone in the choir every Sunday. He had bought a home.

No More Minors!

"Kid, it's no use. I will not play minor league baseball again," Terry told Elberfeld. "If you can get me a chance in the majors, and they will give me what I want, I'll go back to baseball. But not with Little Rock, not with any other club either, if it's in the minors."

Terry had begun to play first base when he wasn't pitching for the Polarines, and now a new Terry began to blossom. It was a Terry who had grace and skill in the field and a terrific punch at the bat. A left-handed hitter with a natural, straightaway cut at the ball which produced powerful line drives.

McGraw Gambles Again

Elberfeld realized that he had a future great of the major leagues. He went about the business of selling Terry's release, which had cost Little Rock $500.

Several major league teams declined the invitation to pay $1,000 for the chance to satisfy the demands of the oil man from Memphis.

But John J. McGraw, always the gambler, was willing to take the chance. The Giants took over Little Rock's claim to Terry, and then it was up to McGraw to get Bill to sign.

Golfers Urged to Post Scores in Club Tourney

Golfers of the Municipal Golf club who intend to enter the championship tourney are urged to post their qualifying scores today, Professional Lund Harper said last night. Several players already have qualified.

Although the qualifying round does not close until next Sunday, Harper is anxious to have as many players qualify today as possible.

The Muny course is in excellent condition, Harper said.

Vandy Sophomores Trim Cumberland Eleven, 50-0

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 23.—(AP)—A quartet of fleetfooted sophomores led Vanderbilt university to an easy 50 to 0 victory over Cumberland university here today.

In the starring role was Bobby Oliver, blond-headed half back from Valdosta, Ga., who turned in a great exhibition as he scored four touchdowns, one of which came after a dazzling sixty-nine yard run. His other scoring jaunts were for 18, 29 and 36 yards.

Randall Dixon counted twice with runs of 45 and 17 yards, Pete Curley ran 35 yards to score and Doug Simpkins broke through to sprint 19 yards for the final touchdown.

A'S TRIM CHAMPIONS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The Senators, American league champions, took a 3 to 1 beating today from the Philadelphia Athletics.

Monte Weaver held the Athletics to five hits, but four of these came in the sixth and seventh to net enough tallies to win the ball game.

Manager Joe Cronin began easing up on his Senators who meet the New York Giants in the world series. He shifted his line-up from time to time, Boken relieving Myer. Rice going in for Manush and Harris for Schulte.

TIGERS BEAT BROWNS

DETROIT, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Stanley (Bucky) Harris today submitted his resignation as manager of the Detroit Tigers just after his newest recruit, Luke Hamlin, had pitched the Bengals to a 5 to 2 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

Harris had been subjected to criticism by some fans who charged that a lack of fighting spirit held the Tigers in the second division. His resignation came as a surprise to Frank Navin, owner of the club.

The Tigers showed plenty of fight in the sixth inning today when led by Hamlin, they piled up four runs for the winning margin. The young hurler started things off with a double down the third-base line, and Rogell's triple scored him.

George Blaeholder had kept the Bengals well subdued until the sixth, allowing only two hits. West's homer in the third inning marked the high point of the St. Louis offensive, but they were unable to overcome the Tiger lead.

CHISOX DOWN INDIANS

CLEVELAND, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Clint Brown's pass of Al Simmons in the 11th inning today enabled the Chicago White Sox to nose out the Cleveland Indians, 6 to 5, in a nip-and-tuck struggle.

Appling followed Simmons' walk with a single and Brown purposely passed Swanson, whereupon Berry sent a fly to the outfield to score Simmons.

Brown had relieved Mel Harder in the sixth inning when the Sox staged a 3-run uprising and had pitched effectively against Joe Heving, who had succeeded Leslie Tcitje in the same stanza.

POOR SHOWING IS GIVEN AS REASON FOR RESIGNATION

Loss of Rowe and Other Breaks Hurt Tigers, Says Harris

DETROIT, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Explaining that he felt somebody else should have a chance to see what he could do with the Detroit Tigers, Stanley R. (Bucky) Harris today submitted his resignation to Frank J. Navin, the club's president.

Harris

Navin reluctantly announced his manager's resignation at the close of today's game with the St. Louis Browns, adding that he had been unable to persuade Harris to change his mind.

Harris said he was resigning because he felt it only fair to Navin that he step aside and give someone else an opportunity to direct the team. "Perhaps he can do better," said Harris referring to his successor who Navin said he had not yet selected.

"I am not going to sit around and blame the breaks," Harris said. "I dislike to sever my connections with the Tigers, but under the circumstances feel that it is the only fair thing to do."

Harris said he had no plans for next season but remarked that he hoped to remain in the American league.

The Tigers' retiring manager came to Detroit in 1929, succeeding George Moriarty as the team's pilot. Although he won two American league championships and one world's series for the Washington Senators before coming to Detroit, Harris was unable to make any headway in his efforts to give Detroit a winning team.

During the five seasons Harris has managed the Tigers he has virtually rebuilt the team. Despite his efforts fifth is the highest the Tigers have finished under him. That was in 1932.

"When the current season began," Harris said today, "I honestly believed we had a club that would finish in third place and no lower than fourth, at least. We had what looked like a fine hurling staff and a crop of likely looking youngsters at various stations in the outfield and infield.

"With this talent to help us I felt we could beat out both the Macks and Indians and still feel we would have done so had not the breaks gone against us. The loss of Schoolboy Rowe has been a severe blow to the team."

Rowe, who showed great promise as a pitcher earlier in the season, developed trouble with his hurling arm and was unable to play during the last three months.

There have been those who accused Harris of failing to instill sufficient fighting spirit in the Tigers this season but his supporters insist that he has been handicapped by lack of good material.

Navin said that Harris' resignation had come so suddenly that he had not had time to even consider candidates for the managership.

Ferriday Eleven Plays Nine Games This Season

FERRIDAY, Sept. 23.—(Special)—Coach Hugh A. Bateman of the Ferriday high Bulldogs has announced the following schedule for the 1933 season:

Selma at Ferriday, Sept. 30.
Lake Providence at Ferriday, Oct. 6.
Waterproof at Ferriday, Oct. 13.
Crowville at Ferriday, Oct. 20.
Olla-Standard at Olla, Oct. 27.
Winnfield at Ferriday, Nov. 3.
Winnsboro at Winnsboro, Nov. 10.
Natchez at Natchez, Nov 17.
Mangham at Ferriday, Thanksgiving.

The Bulldogs are not as powerful as in former years but expect to give the opposition many hard struggles. The mainstays of the team this year are Leroy Adams, a back, and Charlie Loomis, an end, with the rest of the lineup both light and inexperienced.

BEST SERVICE AT SPARCO STATION

High Quality Products Offered at Fourth and Stubbs Station

During these days when it is so pleasant to be out of doors, motorists who are using their automobiles overtime should take care that their cars are properly lubricated, that the right kind of gasoline is used and that they are getting the proper service that is available at a first class service station.

Such an institution is the Sparco Service station, located at Fourth and Stubbs, that popular shopping center for residents of the North side. Every service available at downtown stations may be had at Sparco, under the expert direction of Clyde Hatten, manager.

For instance, there's the greasing of your car. Only the best grease is used and attendants at Sparco know just where to apply the grease gun so that your car will be properly greased. They're experienced at Sparco.

Sparco handles only the best oils and greases. It is not economy to pour inferior oil into your crankcase, even if the initial cost is less. Nor do cheap greases properly lubricate your springs, chasis or other important working parts of your automobile. It pays in the long run to use only the best oil and grease, and Sparco furnishes that, plus the proper application.

Motorists also will find that the new Sparco gasoline, at no extra cost, gives that quick start and dependable performance usually found in premium gas. Sparco gasoline provides speed when you need it and extra power at all times. This extra power from every gallon means many extra miles from every tankful.

Try a tankful of the new Sparco gasoline and learn for yourself just what it means to have that extra speed and power for any emergency. Sparco costs no more than ordinary gas.

Motorists daily are finding that it pays to trade with Clyde Hatten at the the Sparco Service station. You'll find courteous service awaits you there.

Mr. Hatten is cooperating with other progressive merchants in the present campaign to popularize Fourth and Stubbs as a community shopping center for residents of the North side. You will find modern, up-to-date shops at Fourth and Stubbs. There's plenty of parking space there and it's a convenient place to trade.

Besides the Sparco Service station, other merchants cooperating in the campaign are the North Side Pharmacy, Mitchell Denoux, proprietor; Weil Cleaners, owned by D. B. Weil; Sur-Wa Store, No. 5, Buddy Burford, manager, and the North Side Barber shop, owned by J. B. Glass.

comes a doctor's certificate that a baby, weighing four pounds, three ounces, normal, healthy, has been born to a Hindu girl not yet seven years of age. The child's mother suffered from fright for three days.

Those who believe the British should be kicked out of India, should remember that if it were not for the British, tens of thousands of Hindu girls, under ten years of age, would be married, often to middle-aged men, every year.

MORE IMPORTANT news for women. Beauty parlor experts who call themselves "beauticians" while undertakers call themselves "morticians," announce that "beauty patches" are coming back.

With small hat please wear the patch near your eye. With a big hat wear it near the mouth. With common sense, don't wear it at all, but beauticians don't tell you that.

Dresses are to be very loose in the back, a semi-night gown dressing gown effect, and very tight in the front making every detail of the figure plain. How that can be done, we don't know, but unless you do it you are not fashionable.

THIS OUGHT to interest young men.

Helen Godehart, a fine, big, good-looking girl, 17 years old, won the American farm girl championship at Pomona, Calif., milking cows, husking corn, churning and raking. She ought to marry the champion young American THINKER of about 30, whoever he may be, and then become the champion mother.

Unfortunately, that champion young thinker will probably marry some wisp of a girl that could not curry a guinea-pig, much less milk a big cow, but can paint the human face prettily. And so it goes.

NEW YORK CITY is interested in its recent catch of alleged murderers, kidnapers, including, it believes, the "first real hired killer" captured in a long time.

Murder, in these gangster-racketeer-kidnap-prohibition days, is a real industry, and professionals that often combine use of cocaine with assassination, are hired in business-like fashion for each "job." Somebody puts the victim "on the spot," identifying him in some way for the killer who has never seen him.

The killer kills, gets his money, and waits for the next.

FRIDAY IN Chicago criminals holding up a federal reserve bank automobile, taking two bags of money containing $500,000, killed a policeman and escaped under a heavy smoke screen, for which they had arranged in advance.

It will take some time to suppress the wave of crime, so handsomely financed by prohibition-bootlegging.

ENGLAND, FRANCE and Italy agree on "disarmament and arms control," but haven't quite decided what "penalties" will be inflicted on disobedient nations.

The Associated Press, says Mr. Norman H. Davis, American representative, is expected "to give general support to the plan."

Americans, at home, dealing with problems here, feel that they have enough to do to give general support to NRA without supporting anything as distinctly European as persuading Europe's nations not to cut each other's throats, for profit or pleasure.

H. G. WELLS, who has mapped out world's history for 150 years ahead, doesn't think much of today's history, and calls Hitler's movement "a rebellion of the clumsy lout gaainst civilization, against thought, sanity and books."

Wells doesn't think much of conditions in Italy or Russia either, where dictators hold the stage and power. He even worries a little about England, saying:

"Luncheon parties for literary men may give place to lynching parties before my time is out." He spoke at a literary luncheon party.

Louisiana-Made Cigar Proves One of Most Popular Smokes

The El Cuba cigar is always able to maintain its position in the esteem of smokers because of the good quality of materials used, the popular price, the fact that they are made in Louisiana and primarily because they are always fresh and never stale.

Whenever you go to a cigar stand and ask for El Cubo cigar you should notice the statement made on the label of the box, "Havana and domestic blend, long filler cigar." That is for the quality and the material used. They are always good.

Then also the cigar has always been sold at so popular a price during the past 50 years that it has been made and put on the market of Monroe and surrounding territory.

And in addition when it is an El Cubo that is bought the money stays right in Louisiana where the Phil D. Mayer and Son. Ltd., operate and make the cigar.

Finally the dealers know what the demand for El Cubo will be. They realize that it is a "staple" product of the cigar industry and that its smokers do not change to any other brand. Consequently they are always able to keep a fresh supply on hand, a priceless boon to the smoker.

These several facts, it may be said, can be taken to show whey the El Cubo is so high in the preference of the smokers.

City of West Monroe Will Drill New Well

The city of West Monroe has signed a contract with the Layne-Louisiana company, Inc., to drill a new artesian well immediately at Pine Crest, near the site of the present well. This is being done because of the fact that the water supply of the city of West Monroe is becoming exhausted, creating an emergency that requires need for an augmented supply at once.

Terms of the contract call for a well to produce a minimum of 1,000 gallons of water per minute.

For the drilling of the new well and the necessary additions and extensions to the present pump, the Layne-Louisiana company is to receive $5,850, of which $1,850 is to be paid on or before November 15, and the remainder is to be divided into four quarterly payments. In case the city pays cash for the well, a discount of 10 per cent is to be allowed.

KULKE EXPERT IN PIANO MECHANICS

Modern Shop Maintained at Brook Mays Company by Craftsman

With experience in all phases of his work, Max Kulke has devoted his life to the intricate details of piano construction.

Mr. Kulke, whose shop is located with the Brooks Mays company, 128 South Grand street, first entered the piano repair business in 1903. He came from a family of piano makers of Berlin, Germany, and is thoroughly trained in the manufacture of pianos from one end to the other.

He had approximately 16 years of factory experience in Germany, England and the United States. Mr. Kulke spent seven years in the factory and warerooms of the Steinway company.

He has been a resident of Monroe since 1920 and now operates a shop that is completely equipped to take care of any work from a simple tuning job to the complete overhauling or rebuilding of the most expensive piano, both inside and out.

Mr. Kulke has built an enviable reputation since he came here and Monroe piano owners had explicit confidence in his work. They know who and what they are getting when they call on Mr. Kulke.

The equipment in Mr. Kulke's shop includes a key polishing machine and a spraying outfit that turns out finished work which equals a factory job. In fact, he is thoroughly equipped to take care of any job that requires the skilled craftsman that he is.

Postmaster's Exam Is Held at Newellton

FERRIDAY, Sept. 23.—A civil service examination was held this week at Newellton for the position of postmaster of Newellton. The following took the examination, given by the local civil service commission: Mrs. Lottie D. Taylor, Mrs. Annie B. Netterville, Mrs. Cornelia Horton, George D. Bland, Edward Newell Fultz, Robert L. Horton, Mrs. Edith M. Hornsby, Clyde V. Ratcliff, Jr., Plummer Craft and Mrs. Jeanette H. Phillips.

ALVIS BUILDING IS REDECORATED

Manager Gibson Makes Improvements at Popular Local Hotel

The Alvis hotel, which has made an outstanding record for percentage of occupancy this year, is making elaborate preparations for an even better patronage this fall.

E. C. Gibson, manager of the Alvis, announced yesterday that the rooms at the hotel are being redecorated and placed in even more attractive condition than when the building was first constructed.

This is being done, not as a matter of necessity by any means, Mr. Gibson said, but to maintain the rooms up to the highest standard of attractiveness and cleanliness at all times. The Alvis bears a reputation for unexcelled service which prompts Mr. Gibson and his staff to extend every effort to maintain this reputation.

The redecorating work is being done at a time when supplies and labor cost are less expensive than they ever will be again, Mr. Gibson believes.

When the Alvis hotel building was erected, it was recognized as being one of the best constructed properties of its kind in the south, and while it is four years old, it has shown practically no deterioration and with these added improvements at this time, it has every effect of a brand new hotel.

"I have thought best to do this work without having any suggestion coming to me from our patrons," Mr. Gibson said, "but rather in order at all times to see to it that there was no possible cause for complaint by reason of any lack of proper maintenance on our part."

Mr. Gibson and his able associates in the management of the Alvis hotel are always on the alert to improve the service in every particular and Alvis patrons are the direct beneficiaries of their efforts.

The Alvis offers every hotel convenience, plus personal service, and that is the secret of Mr. Gibson's success.

Tomatoes Interest Claiborne Farmers

HOMER, La., Sept. 23.—(Special)—Farmers and business men of Claiborne parish are interested in continuing the tomato industry another year, as the crop this year was considered a success and about $10,000 realized from the shipments to market. Tomato growers meetings are already being held.

The first meeting will be held Friday afternoon at Haynesville, at which time the farmers who planted last season will give their views on the possibilities of this crop. Other meetings over the parish will be held to stimulate interest and pledge acreage.

Athens farmers have already held several meetings to organize a truck growers association, which has been completed and will serve the farmers of that territory. G. Dillon is president of the association.

Sufficient acreage has been pledged to put in a loading shed there next season. Their major crop will be watermelons, several carloads were shipped from there this season, which was their initial season for shipping melons.

CHEVROLET HAS MANY FEATURES

No Draft Ventilation One of Improvements on New Models

The new Chevrolet has many distinct advantages and improvements that mark it apart from the so-called low-priced car, according to Jack Rogers, of the Lee-Rogers Chevrolet company, local dealers.

General Motors and its various subsidiaries have perfected many improvements that the motoring public expects to find only on the higher priced cars, yet Chevrolet and Chevrolet alone in its price range give you these advantages.

For instance, there is Fisher ventilation. On the day you buy a Chevrolet you cease to be a slave to the weather man. You don't need to simmer in summer. You don't need to turn draft-dodger in winter. With Fisher ventilation you make your own weather all the year 'round.

On hot, breathless days a twist of the wrist brings a refreshing breeze. In cold, stormy weather pure air fills the car, the windshield stays clear, fumes vanish at once, yet no draft ever touches you.

You drive better because you're comfortable. You feel better after every ride. Altogether, Fisher ventilation deserves to be called a priceless feature.

And it is exclusive to Chevrolet among low-priced cars. So are Fisher's draft-proof doors, roomy luxury, sturdy steel-enforced-with-hardwood construction. So are the starterator, the octane selector, synchro-mesh gear shift, simplified free wheeling.

In fact, the Chevrolet is so crammed with valuable features that people are astonished to learn that it is priced as low as $445, and is the most economical car you can buy.

Naturally, few people can resist such a combination, and apparently few people even try. Because Chevrolet sells more cars than any other manufacturer of low-priced automobiles.

If you haven't already learned of the many advantages of owning a Chevrolet, call Lee-Rogers Chevrolet company and a salesman will be pleased to demonstrate this luxurious new automobile's outstanding improvements. There's no obligation to buy, of course.

Cotton

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Great activity and a sharp upturn in prices featured today's short session in the cotton market. Near the start the advance amounted to $3 a bale, but half this advance was later lost on profit taking and hedge selling. The dominating influence was the tentative government plan to advance farmers 10 cents a pound on present holdings in exchange for 1934 crop reduction.

The opening was strong and active although Liverpool was only slightly better than due. First trades here showed gains of 35 to 56 points and prices continued to advance during the early trading on shorts covering and rather general buying until October traded up to 10.18, December to 10.45 and March to 10.70 or 75 to 60 points above the close yesterday.

The market soon started to ease off and continued to decline during the rest of the session despite a few short lived rallies until October dropped to 9.90, December to 10.12 and March to 10.40 or 28 to 33 points down from the early highs. The close was at or near the bottom October closing at 9.90 and December at 10.15 or 30 points net higher and March at 10.40 or 28 points net higher.

Port receipts 45,715; for season 1,446,526, last season 1,152,164. Exports 36,998, for season 1,115,526 last season 1,152,164. Exports 36,998, for season 1,115,313, last season 951,477. Port stock 3,288,214, last year 3,505,187. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 99,824, last year 124,675. Spot sales at southern markets 64,972, last year 50,641.

ORLEANS SPOT COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Spot cotton closed steady 31 points up. Sales 4,245; low middling 9.26; middling 9.91; good middling 10.36. Receipts 5,738; stock 675,615.

New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(AP)—News of crop loans and production control plans gave cotton a sharp rally today.

March contracts rose to 10.53 in the early trading, or 73 points net higher and 90 points below the low level of last Thursday. The more urgent demand was supplied by heavy realizing and increased southern selling at the advance and while buying continued active, prices eased later. March declining to 10.37 and closing at 10.40. The general market showed net advances of 30 to 37 points.

Opening advances ranged from 29 to 63 points, December sold up to 10.40 and May to 10.92 on the first upturn, making net advances of 47 to 73 points but the buying movement slackened somewhat and toward the close hedging was coupled with increased realizing. December sold off to 10.14 and May to 10.59 active months generally showing reactions of about 20 to 46 points from the best. Closing quotations were a few points above the lowest on some positions.

Word from Washington that the administration had pledged the government to lend to cotton farmers 10 cents a pound on their holdings of this year's crop providing they accepted the program for reducing the crops of 1934 and 1935, was naturally the chief news factor of the day, and other features received little comment. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 121,105 bales against 138,815 last year.

New York Stocks

By Victor Eubank
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Security markets edged up quietly but steadily today in the wake of firming staples. Although there was none of the feverish trading rush that has characterized recent session, prices in most categories managed to hold gains of around 1 to 2 points. Trading was rather listless at times and last minute profit-taking pared extreme advances in many instances. Transfers approximated 1,000,000 shares.

Stocks exhibited an optimistic glow when cotton spurted more than $3.50 a bale at one time on the president's new crop reduction plans. This staple later fluctuated rather erratically and lost some of its inaugural fervor. Wheat was up more than 1 cent a bushel and other grains improved. Bar silver jumped 1 1-8 cents an ounce to 40 1-2 cents, a new top for the past three years or more. Equity traders, with their inflationary psychology still somewhat confused, were disposed to be a bit cautious. Bonds resumed their improvement. The dollar moved narrowly in foreign exchange dealings.

The share market was thin most of the time. The treasury raised the price of gold for export to $31.86 but, aside from U. S. Smelting, which moved up about 4 points, the metal issues were not particularly buoyant. Gainers of modest amounts included Case, International Harvester, American Smelting, Santa Fe, Delaware & Hudson, Union Pacific, International Silver, Allied Chemical, American Telephone, Du Pont, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and National Distillers. The utilities were just about steady. Steel stocks were inclined to lag.

MUSEUM BUILDING FOR STATE NORMAL

Structure to Cost $125,000; Will Honor Veteran Educator

NATCHITOCHES, Sept. 23.—(Special)—Louisiana State Normal college alumni have completed final plans to launch a campaign to raise funds for the construction of $125,000 museum building on the campus of the State Normal college here, it was announced by H. J. Colvin of Shreveport, president of the Teachers College Alumni association.

The new structure will be known as the George Williamson museum in honor of Professor George Williamson, member of the State Normal college faculty for the last 36 years, and will house Indian relics, minerals, fossils and other specimens of historical importance collected by Professor Williamson during the last half century. Offices and reception room for the alumni of the college and a social center for faculty and students will also be constructed in the building.

The movement was given unanimous approval by the members of the state board of education at a meeting in Baton Rouge on September 6. In speaking of the plan, State Superintendent of Education T. H. Harris said, "It is a splendid move on the part of the State Normal college alumni association. It will do honor to a great educator, and it will concentrate the efforts of the alumni in a worthy cause. I do not see how there can be any possible objection to such a movement."

The plan of constructing the museum was also approved and endorsed by the Louisiana American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary at meetings held by these organizations in Shreveport early this month.

Sources of contribution for the new building will include donations from Alumni members, members of the faculty and students at the State Normal college, friends and patrons of the college and from an appropriation by the state legislature.

This honor is coming to Professor Williamson just as he is rounding out his fiftieth year as a teacher in the public schools of Louisiana—fourteen years as principal at Grand Cane high school in DeSoto parish and thirty-six years as member of the State Normal college faculty. His collection of Indian relics is said to be one of the finest individual collections of its kind in the country.

A. B. Banks Is Visitor In Monroe on Week-End

A. B. Banks was a week-end visitor to Monroe.

He was for years one of the best known bank presidents in Arkansas, heading the largest bank in Little Rock. After a number of banks in which he was interested closed their doors charges were preferred against him and he was tried and convicted but when he appeared at the state prison to start to serve a short sentence, he was not admitted by the penitentiary warden.

Mr. Banks is now a resident of Fordyce, Ark., where he is engaged in the insurance business.

Aid Is Sought for Negro Kindergarten

Mayme E. W. Goodwyn, negro teacher, said Saturday that there is a well-defined need even greater this fall than in past years for the establishment of a kindergarden and nursery for children of her race. She is asking that financial aid be given and that a location be found in order to care for children of pre-school age.

Those who will aid are asked to communicate with Mayme Goodwyn at 409 Congo street, or to consult with M. J. Foster, principal of the Monroe negro high school.

Compensation Awarded To Francis Gonzales

Compensation of $150, plus medical expenses of $32, was awarded to Francis A. Gonzales from Cosgrove and Ritter in a joint petition and judgment filed in district court Saturday. Gonzales originally had asked $605, payable at the rate of $6.05 a week for a period of 100 weeks.

In the original suit, the plaintiff said he had practically lost the sight of his left eye as a result of an injury he received while working for the company as an automobile battery repairman. The amount originally asked was at the rate 65 per cent of his weekly wages, in accordance with the workman's compensation act.

TEXAS COMPANY POSITION GIVEN BY JUDGE AMES

Declares Concern Steadily Opposed to Government Price-Fixing

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(Special)—Judge C. B. Ames, chairman of the board of directors of the Texas company, has made public the following telegram sent to Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior at Washington, explaining the Texas company's position in the recent controversy over the petroleum code:

"In view of the inaccurate publicity emanating from Washington concerning an informal telephone conversation between Mr. Reeser, a member of the planning and coordinating committee, and Mr. Rodgers, president of the Texas company, I wish to state to you formally the position of the Texas company relative to the code.

"First: We have steadily opposed governmental price fixing because (A) the Supreme Court of the United States has specifically held that the state has no constitutional power to fix the price of gasoline—Williams vs. Standard Oil company 278 U. S. 235.

"(B) We believe that if the production of crude oil is brought into balance with consumptive demand economic conditions will regulate price on a sound basis; and that

"Second: Notwithstanding our convictions on price fixing we are prepared to give you or the committee any facts within our possession relative to this or any other subject, but are unwilling to participate in framing a price schedule by the expression of opinions as distinguished from facts.

"Third: This company participated actively in drafting the code, one of our executives being a member of the committee which drafted the producing sections and another of our executives being a member of the committee which drafted the marketing sections, and we are giving this code our wholehearted support, and are complying with its letter and spirit.

"Fourth: We believe you are making excellent progress in procuring the cooperation of the state commissions and the industry in your production program and are cooperating with you and the committee in every possible way in your efforts to stabilize the situation.

"Fifth: As the inaccurate publicity does this company an injustice we are taking the liberty of giving this telegram to the press."

Dierlamm Says Exhibits Must Be Entered Quickly

Every person who intends to place an exhibit or exhibits in the Ouachita Valley fair, to be held in West Monroe starting on October 18 and lasting through the week, is required to notify the fair association by phone or letter at the earliest possible time, stated George H. Dierlamm, general manager, Saturday.

Intention to enter exhibits must be declared not later than Tuesday, October 10 and exhibits must be in place not later than noon, Wednesday, October 18. Information can be had from the manager or from President Sam Humphries.

Enthusiasm is running high, Mr. Dierlamm assures, and merchants of both cities are contributing funds to make the enterprise a complete success.

"When I started off my work I was fearful lest I not be able to secure sufficient exhibits. Now from the outlook, I am fearful that there may not be space required for all the products that are to be displayed, but we will manage it somehow," Mr. Dierlamm stated.

Presbyterian Body Meets at Tallulah

TALLULAH, La., Sept. 23.—The group conference comprising the Presbyterian auxiliaries of this section of Louisiana took place at Ferriday Thursday with representatives from Jonesville, Ferriday, Waterproof, St. Joseph and Tallulah in attendance.

Mrs. Haberyan of Jonesville, group conference leader, presided, and the devotional was given by Mrs. Gray of Ferriday. Mrs. A. M. Wills, of Monroe, Red River Presbyterian president, addressed the meeting on the summer conference at Montreat, N. C., and Mrs. O. M. Annette, of Monroe spoke on "The Test Supreme." The Tallulah auxiliary was awarded the attendance certificate.

Roy Warren Is Jailed On Charge of Assault

Roy Warren, 39, was placed in the parish jail Saturday, after being received from the West Monroe police department to serve 30 days for assault with a dangerous weapon. He was convicted in West Monroe city court.

After being locked up on September 11 to serve 30 days for the West Monroe police department, on a charge of assault with a knife, Ottie Harris, 26, negro woman, was released on instructions of Judge Decker Moore of West Monroe.

R. C. Berry, who has been serving a six-month term at the parish road camp for issuing a bad check, was returned to the jail to be held for further instructions. He has about finished serving his term here, but is said to be wanted in Baton Rouge and Shreveport. No information as to the alleged charges against him were contained in the notices asking that he be held .

MASS MEET HELD HERE BY FARMERS

Group Takes Action to Get Loans in Spillway Districts

As a result of a mass meeting held in the auditorium of the city school Saturday morning, a resolution was approved memorializing congress to take prompt action in making it possible to secure farm loans on properties in the Jadwin spillway areas. Also it was further urged that there be no foreclosures on mortgages on this property while the constitutional rights of landowners are still unsettled.

The meeting was attended by a representation from Ouachita, Morehouse, Richland, Caldwell and other parishes affected. W. G. Haynes acted as chairman and several talks were made.

H. H. Russell, city attorney of Monroe, explained in some detail the plan of the Jadwin spillway.

Portions of Morehouse, West Carroll, Ouachita, Richland, Tensas, Franklin, Catahoula, Caldwell and Concordia parishes are affected by the spillway plan. The floodway property will include 1,085,000 acres of land and backwater will reach an additional 1,440,000 acres. The population affected totals 70,000 persons, it was stated.

The resolution of protest is to be drawn by Mr. Haynes and will be rushed to Washington by air mail, according to plans formulated at the meeting.

C. E. Green Is Named Defendant in Suit

Suit for $7,500 was filed in district court here Saturday by Mrs. Arvilla Mae Derks against C. E. Green. The suit was the outgrowth of an automobile accident which occurred last May 29 at the intersection of Third and Mill streets in West Monroe.

Mrs. Derks alleged that as a result of the accident she received fractures of the thighs and many bruises and abrasions on her body, arms and legs. Because of these injuries, she was confined to bed for weeks, she said.

The plaintiff alleged that the accident was due to the negligence of J. C. Green, 18, minor son of C. E. Green. She said her son, Philip Derks, was driving north on Third street and that he stopped for the intersection at Mill street and then started to cross the street when it appeared the way was clear. Green, she charged, drove into the intersection at an excessive rate of speed, bringing about a collision.

Legion Officers Are Installed at Ferriday

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 23.—The annual installation of officers for the Gray-McCearley Post No. 148 of the American Legion was held Thursday night at the Legion hall here. Dr. A. B. Browne is the new commander. He succeeds A. E. Torres.

The local legion post will not stage the annual outboard motorboat regatta on Lake St. John this year, but they have plans for other important projects under the "new deal."

One Spradlin Treatment is all that any article requires to be made secure against the moth!

THE ANNUAL LOSS from MOTH damage exceeds that by Fire. Fire losses are covered by insurance . . . but YOUR losses in the way of Moth-damage to Clothing, Rugs, Upholstered Furniture, Furs, Blankets, Woolens, Drapes, and so on . . . are NOT!

You can put a STOP to this loss now --and for good--at a cost LESS than the cost of moth balls, crystals or sprays --and at no inconvenience to yourself!

Spradlin INSURED

MOTHPROOFING SERVICE
COLORLESS ODORLESS STAINLESS HARMLESS

"SPRADLINIZING" can be done only by licensed SPRADLIN agencies. Once SPRADLINIZED, articles are ABSOLUTELY INSURED FOR FIVE YEARS in a NON-CANCELLABLE Insurance Policy. Washing and Dry Cleaning does not reduce the effectiveness of the protection.

The work can be done in YOUR home, or, if you prefer to send articles of apparel and small furnishings out, we are prepared to call for them, do the work and return them promptly.

. . . and then . . . freedom forever from Moth Balls . . . from Cedar Bags . . . from Sprays . . . from Powders . . . and . . . no more expense for Summer Clothing Storage. Think what that means . . . to YOU!

We have been fortunate in securing the exclusive SPRADLIN License for this City and have installed a special department . . . with trained "SPRADLINIZERS" . . . to give prompt and efficient service. Call us for the information and for prices. They're so reasonable that you cannot afford to be without this service . . . and the Five-Year NON-CANCELLABLE Insurance Policy that goes with it!

I WISH I'D TAKEN A FEW LESSONS IN LION HUNTIN' BEFORE WE STARTED OUT--

DIDN'T YOU EVER HEAR ABOUT EXPERIENCE BEING THE BEST TEACHER?

YEP-IF YOU LIVE LONG ENOUGH TO PROFIT BY IT--- WHAT'S THAT?

JUST A BAND OF ZEBRAS--GOSH, THEY'RE PRETTY!

IS THAT AN AFRICAN DEER?

NO--A HARTEBEEST-- AND IT IS A VERY REDOUBTABLE FOE IF EVER CORNERED-- WE ARE IN LION COUNTRY NOW---

THE BOYS HAVE STRUCK A TRAIL-- BE READY, YOU FELLOWS-- WE MAY RUN INTO MORE THAN ONE--

WHAT DO YOU MEAN-- BE READY?-- WE GOT OUR RIFLES--- WE'RE NOT SUPPOSED TO WALK UP AN' PET THESE CRITTERS, ARE WE?

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY -:- More About Pocahontas -:- By J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

IN 1613, WHEN CHIEF POWHATAN AND HIS WARRIORS WERE PLOTTING TO MASSACRE THE VIRGINIA SETTLERS, CAPTAIN ARGALL, AIDE TO GOVERNOR DALE, PLANNED TO FORESTALL THE ATTACK BY ABDUCTING THE CHIEF'S DAUGHTER, POCAHONTAS.....

WITH THE PROMISE OF A COPPER KETTLE, ARGALL BRIBED ONE OF POCAHONTAS' KINSMEN TO INDUCE HER TO VISIT HIS VESSEL.

ONCE ABOARD THE SHIP, THE INDIAN PRINCESS WAS MADE A PRISONER AND CARRIED OFF TO JAMESTOWN WHERE SHE WAS HELD AS A HOSTAGE FOR THE GOOD BEHAVIOR OF HER PEOPLE. —o

POCAHONTAS WAS WELL TREATED BY THE ENGLISH. WHILE AT JAMESTOWN SHE FELL IN LOVE WITH HANDSOME, YOUNG JOHN ROLFE AND PROMISED TO MARRY HIM.

IN ORDER THAT SHE MIGHT WED HER LOVER IN THE WHITE MAN'S FASHION, POCAHONTAS EMBRACED CHRISTIANITY AND WAS BAPTIZED, RECEIVING THE CHRISTIAN NAME OF REBECCA.

IN 1614 POCAHONTAS AND JOHN ROLFE WERE MARRIED IN THE LITTLE CHURCH AT JAMESTOWN. THE MATCH PLEASED CHIEF POWHATAN AND HE BECAME A GOOD FRIEND OF THE ENGLISH.

JOHN ROLFE WAS AN IMPORTANT FIGURE IN THE JAMESTOWN COLONY. HE WAS THE FIRST TO BEGIN THE SCIENTIFIC CULTURE OF TOBACCO, WHICH SOON BECAME THE LEADING INDUSTRY IN VIRGINIA. —o

ROLFE TOOK HIS BRIDE TO ENGLAND, WHERE SHE WAS WARMLY WELCOMED. POCAHONTAS QUICKLY WON THE HEARTS OF HER HUSBAND'S COUNTRYMEN WITH HER NATURAL GRACE AND CHARM. —o

EVERYONE WAS CURIOUS TO SEE THE INDIAN PRINCESS OF WHOM THEY HAD HEARD SO MUCH. SHE WAS PRESENTED AT COURT, ENTERTAINED BY THE NOBILITY, AND HAD HER PORTRAIT PAINTED.

POCAHONTAS WAS VERY HAPPY WITH HER DEVOTED HUSBAND AND THEIR LITTLE SON, BUT AT LAST SHE GREW HOMESICK FOR THE FORESTS OF VIRGINIA.....

IN 1617 JOHN ROLFE PREPARED TO TAKE HIS FAMILY BACK TO THEIR VIRGINIA PLANTATION. BUT AS THEY WERE ABOUT TO EMBARK AT GRAVESEND, HIS GENTLE WIFE WAS STRICKEN WITH A FATAL MALADY.

FAR FROM THE LAND SHE LOVED, POCAHONTAS PASSED AWAY, AND WAS BURIED IN THE PARISH CHURCH AT GRAVESEND. ROLFE, WITH HIS LITTLE SON, SADLY RETURNED TO AMERICA. —o

CHIC IN THE NEW CHAPEAUX

Elegance and Sophistication Distinguishes the New Season's Millinery

A SMART hat gives the perfect finishing touch to one's costume, and as each season approaches, the newly inspired hats are displayed even before the new gowns get under way. On a rather warmish September day one can be comfortable in a hat fashioned of a Fall fabric, whereas a Fall frock, while it may look tempting, may prove just a bit too warm.

We note a decidedly whimsical trend in the new hats. You can take your choice—some are out in the front, others up in the back, again they may be low over the hair, dip to one side, be brimmed or brimless.

In Paris, they say, the old favorite, the beret, is back again. They are available in antelope skin, velvets, felts and fabrics. Some of the very newest models jut out pertly over the nose.

At this time of the year the very small hat is always much in evidence. This is in preparation for the days of furs and large coat collars. Most of these tiny hats slip rather far back on the head, exposing much of the forehead and a goodly portion of the hair.

The vogue for softer outlines brings with it a demand for soft adaptable fabrics. The new felts and taupes are marvelously supple.

Machine stitching has become quite a craze. Nine out of ten of the new Fall models are either stitched all over or partly stitched. As to trimmings—well, they have gone feminine with a bang! Wind-blown hats replace the outworn wind-blown bob. Fantastic effects are achieved with hats made of aigrettes and cleverly treated like hair dressed high at the top. Feather sprays are used profusely, and even plumes have come back to wave gaily from milady's chapeaux.

THE ELEGANT MODE

OF the new season is typified in the latest satin hat scarf and glove ensemble sketched at the extreme left. The hat is fashioned of folds of the fabric piled one on another to form a high square crown. The scarf is worn close to the throat and the gauntlet gloves reveal scalloped edges. A soft woolen fabric, stitched all over, makes the pert green beret, whose brim rises high on the left side and folds down lower over the right eye. The only trimming is a small brown ribbon bow. Note the halo effect achieved in the dark brown velvet model. The shirred and ruffled effect done in brown and red is very new. Just right with the black satin frock is this very simple beret of black satin that dips low over the right eye. At the lower right of the page is an unusual adaptation of the Tam. Of brown velvet, the crown is slit to form two points, and is further accented by a multi-colored feather.

BERETS AND TURBANS

A Tip on the Market

By Gerald Mygatt

AT THE end of that astounding day Matilda asked Horace whether he had had any premonition of what was going to befall. "Not that I know of," said Horace with honesty. "I simply walked into the club and went to the 'B' box."

Nowadays Horace Beeble felt self-conscious whenever he stepped through the stately marble portal of the Registry. Though he had been a member for fourteen years, it was as if he no longer belonged.

The doorman in plum-colored livery seemed to have grown even more austere, and in his eyes there lurked reproach for the fact that Mr. Beeble was posted, both for non-payment of house charges and non-payment of dues.

Horace was always glad to get past the doorman. Today he nodded to that flunky with a briskness which he did not feel, said, "Good morning, Sandley," with a cheer which was not in him, and marched straight to the club office. The mail boxes were in the office; an entire wall banked with private boxes, and a row of "public" boxes, twenty-six of them.

Horace Beeble stopped in front of the "B" box. In violation of Paragraph 17-C of the by-laws he had given the Registry Club as his address in a letter he had written three days before. This letter had been composed in answer to an advertisement in the Morning Press. In it he had stated his age, adult; his color, white; his social status, married. In it he had stated—and with some measure of truth—that he was refined, well educated, sober and industrious. In it he had stated also that he was an excellent salesman.

This last statement was not a fact, though Mr. Beeble was unaware of this. He had had some success in selling bonds, real estate, washing machines and round-the-world tours. That he had done so because he was ingenuous rather than clever had not occurred to him. Men, it seemed, believed Horace Beeble because he himself quite believed himself.

Horace Beeble, in short, possessed what is known as an honest face; and an honest face, psychologists to the contrary, generally seems to indicate an honest person.

He stood in front of the "B" box now—technically dishonest in that he had violated Paragraph 17-C of the by-laws—and hoped very hard that a reply to his letter would be lying in wait for him in the stack of "B" mail behind that tiny glass door. Horace had been out of a job for eleven months, eleven months and six days.

Mr. Beeble blinked, stared. There was a letter for him. But, ah!—it was not the letter he had been praying for. Standing there, Mr. Beeble drooped. The printing in the upper left hand corner of the envelope was a combination of letters which was poison to his eyes. The printing announced that the missive was from none other than the Messrs. Cooper, McNerney and Harris, attorneys at law.

"Oh, pshaw!" said Horace. He had received two dozen letters, at least, from Cooper, McNerney and Harris. They all had told him, in essence, that as attorneys for the estate of the late Horace K. Twitchwither they could inform Mr. Beeble, definitely and finally, that the Twitchwither millions, if any, were all sewed up and permanently bagged and safely glued down where they belonged and, in addition, nailed to the floor. Actually, in legal language, they had mentioned the residuary estate. It seemed that there just wasn't going to be any residue; not if the Messrs. Cooper, McNerney and Harris knew their business, there wasn't.

MR. BEEBLE opened this new letter from his late maternal uncle's capable attorneys. The letter said:

"Dear Sir:

"The will of the late Horace K. Twitchwither having been duly probated, it is our pleasure to inform you that in the distribution of the residuary estate you are entitled to receive the sum of eight hundred and ninety-three dollars and forty-six cents ($893.46).

"Upon presentation of the enclosed waiver and receipt, duly signed, witnessed, and attested by notary public, a check for this amount will be paid you at our office or same will be mailed under registry to address of last record, as above, provided stipulation is made and duly executed on waiver herewith.

"Yours very truly,

"Cooper, McNerney & Harris"

"(2 enclosures)"

Horace found himself breathing heavily. Eight hundred and ninety-three dollars! Of course, it was not what he and Matilda had once expected. But now it was a godsend, a miracle.

Then, wheeling with decision, he stalked to the telephone booths. He found his number, called it, demanded to speak to Mr. Cooper himself. At length:

"Mr. Cooper? . . . This is Mr. Beeble, Horace K. Beeble. I received a letter from your firm this morning about the Twitchwither estate. Are you—er—familiar with it? . . . Oh, of course . . . No, I didn't intend to convey that, Mr. Cooper. I'm entirely satisfied with the amount, I assure you. I merely wanted to make sure. . . . Oh, of course, Mr. Cooper, of course. . . I was just wondering as to when—I mean how soon—I mean if I came down today . . ."

Mr. Beeble danced out of the telephone booth. He beamed at the telephone attendant.

"Looks like you got good news," the boy remarked, returning his smile.

"Good news? I'll tell the world."

The telephone attendant continued to smile, but differently.

"It must be nice," said the telephone boy experimentally, "to be in on something."

"It certainly is," said Mr. Beeble with enthusiasm, and walked out into the main hall of the club.

Horace Beeble did not know that the telephone boy stared after him. Nor did he know that a moment later the boy put in a feverish and whispered call to Room 1406. It would have seemed incredible to Mr. Beeble that Major Hass, retired, who dwelt in 1406, paid the telephone attendant five dollars a week for passing on to him any tips he might overhear. Wasn't there a house rule against giving gratuities to employees?

The major, who looked like a composite picture of all the members of the Registry Club, was down in the main hall within two minutes.

MR. BEEBLE was beckoned out to him by the telephone attendant.

The telephone attendant went back to his telephone-attending. The major drifted close to Mr. Beeble.

"Fine morning," said the major.

"Yes, isn't it?" said Horace. He blinked at the major.

"Things look better," said the major.

"They certainly do," said Horace Beeble. And they certainly did. He was wishing just then that he could telephone Matilda but Matilda, he knew, would be out until noon. Matilda, too, was looking for a job.

"My name," said Major Hass, "my name is Hass—Major Hass, retired."

"Mine's Beeble," said Horace.

The major eyed his quarry while shaking hands with him. Then: "How about joining me in a little celebration?" he suggested.

"Celebration?"

"Certainly." And the major laughed jovially. "I guess it's about up to us old-timers to celebrate a little, now that things are looking better. How about a drink?"

Horace beamed again. "Come to think of it," he said, "a little drink is just what I need."

They had the drink.

"Here's mud in your eye," said the major, lifting his glass.

"Here's looking at you," said Horace. The expression, he thought, would do.

They drank. And again they drank.

"Things," said the major, "are certainly improving."

"Well," said Horace, "I know some things. Anyway one thing, but of course that leads to lots of things."

"You think the whole list will be affected?" the major inquired.

"I WAS going to make a list," said Horace. "A list for my wife and a list for myself. Different things. Today's my big buying day."

"Ah, you're going to diversify?"

"All over the place," said Horace with a snap of his head.

"And you're going to buy?"

"But what looks particularly good? I mean what would you suggest—?"

Horace considered this, and the thought began to trickle into his consciousness that this man at his side was trying to glean something from him.

"Ask me some more questions," said Horace politely. "How do you expect me to know what you want to know if I don't know what you want to know?"

"Of course," said the major soothingly, and then: "I'm going to be frank. You spoke of buying. Now what do you recommend?"

"Another drink," said Horace, much pleased with himself and the world at large. He signaled to Riley, the bartender. "Two more of the same," said Horace.

The bartender said: "If you haven't a bottle, sir, I can't serve—"

"Produce a bottle. Make two bottles grow where one grew before. I'll have to give you my I O U for it, but produce it. I'll have cash later in the day. Plenty of cash."

The bartender produced the bottle, opened it, did magic.

"Here's mud in your hair," said Horace to the major.

"Cheerio!" the major responded.

"And in your ear, too," said Horace to the major. "Either ear you prefer. Both for all of me."

"Prosit!" said the major.

"It strikes me," said Horace, "that you're entirely too serious. I'll bet you're worrying about the stock market."

"Worry isn't the world," the major confided. "I can't eat. I stay awake nights. Everybody I know is worried sick."

"Not me," stated Horace proudly. There was at least that single satisfaction in being poor.

"I do wish," the major said, "I do wish you would tell me what you know."

IT WAS time for Horace to eye the major, and he did, as through a faint haze. He saw a rather stupid-looking, florid-faced gentleman of more or less commonplace appearance who gave every evidence of pining almost petulantly for information that Horace did not possess. He saw a man who had lured him into a barroom and plied him with liquor, as the old saying had it, for the express purpose of getting a private tip on the stock market. This man was looking for trouble. The thing to do was to give him a tip on the market.

Horace drew in a deep breath. "I'll tell you what to buy," he said firmly to the major. And he mentioned a stock, the first stock, as a matter of fact, that came into his head. It was a stock in which Horace himself had sunk all his money—sunk it and kissed it farewell in 1929.

The major seemed staggered. And that, thought Horace with satisfaction, was as it should be. So Horace bowed to the major with formality, and turned and walked out of the barroom, his back very straight.

The major caught him in the main hall, clapped a protesting hand upon his shoulder.

"There's a friend of mine," said the major hurriedly. "He's in the lounge now. Morton—you must know him—splendid chap—if you'd only be willing to tell him what you've told me—"

"But I haven't told you anything."

"You said," said the major, "you said to buy." And the major whispered the name of Horace's one-time stock.

Horace sniffed. "Naturally I told you that," he said. "There's no secret about that this late in the day. I'm going to buy, you're going to buy, all God's children—"

The major was piloting him into the lounge. The major approached an elderly gentleman.

"Morton," said the major, "this is Mr. Peebles, who is going to repeat to you something he has just confided to me."

"Da do," said the elderly gentleman. This, Horace knew, was elderly-gentleman for "How do you do?" and to be respected and responded to as such.

So Horace said cheerily, "I'm doing very well, thanks."

"Glad to see somebody is," the elderly gentleman mumbled without any sign of gladness.

"Mr. Peebles," the major began explaining.

"Beeble," said Horace.

"I'm sorry, Peeble. My mistake."

"Entirely," said Horace.

"Well, I said I was sorry, didn't I?"

"So you did, but it's still your mistake."

"You're a funny chap," laughed the major.

"So would you be if you were in on my luck."

The elderly gentleman brightened. "You say you've had luck?"

"I'll tell the world he has," said the major.

"It wasn't exactly luck," Horace put in.

The elderly gentleman leaned eagerly forward. "What do you recommend?" he whispered.

Horace smiled. This was getting to be fun. "Buy," he whispered back, his finger to his lips, and then he mentioned the name that seemed to intrigue him.

The elderly gentleman said, "Thanks awfully," got up and struck a slanting course for the telephone booths. The major hovered a moment, then followed him. Horace, left alone, rubbed his chin in a sort of mild bewilderment. "It's those drinks," he decided aloud. Presently he thrust his right hand into his trousers pocket and brought forth some change. "Plenty for a haircut," he told himself. "Successful men always get a haircut at times like this. Well, I'll just get a haircut and then I'll take the subway downtown and grab hold of that money before Cooper, McNerney and Harris change their legal minds."

"A TIP ON THE MARKET"

"Buy," he whispered—his finger to his lips, and then he mentioned the name that seemed to intrigue him.

THE barber shop was in the basement of the club. Sitting quietly in the barber chair Horace began to feel impish again. To the barber, who had known him from long ago, he remarked softly: "Don't tell anybody I told you, but the depression's over. I'm not saying anything else, but I can tell you what to buy." And he did.

Twenty minutes later, leaving the club, he confided the same information to the doorman.

Stepping a little high, Horace Beeble then walked to the subway. At the office of his late uncle's attorneys he pocketed his check for $893.46.

Mr. Cooper, who handed the check to Horace, eyed his visitor with an expression of solemnity. "I hope you're going to invest this money wisely, said Mr. Cooper.

"You bet I am," said Horace with cheer. "I'm going to invest it in two months' back rent and in some silk stockings and a decent coat for my wife—couple of dresses too—and in a decent suit of clothes for myself. I think I'll buy some shirts and about three neckties while I'm at it. And I might pay the grocer and the electric light company."

But the lawyer shook his head dismally. "You should take advice," he advised.

"I took advice," said Horace, "in nineteen-twenty-nine. It made me what I am today and I hope I'm satisfied."

At his former bank Horace cashed his check. He bought a suit of clothes and, though it would have been better for a few minor alterations, Horace said, "The dickens with alternations." And he marched out feeling well-groomed and wealthy, and when he had bought his new shoes and a new gray hat he felt even better groomed and even wealthier.

"It's just too bad," he said to himself without any particular regret as he strolled pleasantly along in a world of his own, "it's just too bad; I'm all dressed up and no place to go. I feel like a million—"

He caught himself erect and automatically gasped, "Pardon me," as he collided squarely with a large and hurrying human bulk. The bulk also mumbled, "Pardon me," and then the bulk exclaimed: "Why, if it isn't Peebles!"

It was the major. He caught Horace's arm. "Come with me," he commanded, and swept Horace along with him. "I don't know how to thank you," said the major.

"For what?" asked Horace, puzzled.

"For your tip, of course. It's gone up a point and a quarter since the opening. Looks strong, too. That's why I'm down here. On my way to my broker's now. Want to be right on the spot."

Horace Beeble was sobering. He caught at the major's arm. "That wasn't a real tip," he tried to explain. "I mean—"

"You told me it wasn't a secret any longer," the major declaimed, "so I passed it along judiciously. Oh, here we are!" And he yanked Horace bodily up three marble steps and through a wide and sleek plate-glass door.

The steps and the door looked familiar to Horace. So did the crowded interior into which they marched. So did the perfectly accoutered and suavely smiling young man who came forward with outstretched hands to meet them. This was the board-room of Ginsberg and Inchtaker, stock-brokers and dispensers of hope. This was the room—yes, there was the very leather chair in which Horace Beeble had sat to watch his money vanish to nothing during those notorious autumnal days of 1929.

"Inchtaker," said the major to the smiling young man, "meet my friend Peebles. He's interested—"

"Oh, of course, of course!" agreed the young man, who now just possibly recollected Horace.

"Well, well, well!" The major was undeniably pleased. "Mr. Peebles," he explained to the broker, "was kind enough to let me in on this Consolidated Parts and Accessories movement. By the way, what's the latest—oh, yes," and the major eyed the board, "up another eighth."

"I really don't understand it," murmured Mr. Inchtaker, shaking his head.

HORACE beamed. He said: "I can tell you what's behind the movement. It's the residuary estate of my late uncle, Horace Twitchwither."

"The Twitchwither estate? Really?"

"In essence, yes," said Horace.

"Well, well, well!" boomed the major. "Put me down for another five hundred shares."

"I wouldn't," said Horace hastily.

"Now, now, now," reproved the major.

"I don't want to see anybody get stuck on my say-so," said Horace uneasily. He recollected then that he had told at least four persons to buy this stock. He had told the major, he had told that old dodo at the club, and he had told the barber and the doorman. And they of course had passed the word along to innumerable others. It was a pretty bad thing to be morally responsible for a situation like this. But suddenly, considering it, Horace brightened. If enough people bought the stock it would go up, at least, until the unloading began, and then people ought to have sense enough to bail out fast. Well, if the stock was going up . . .

He turned to Mr. Inchtaker. Very steadily he said: "You can buy me a hundred shares of that Parts and Accessories." So presently, feeling a little giddy, Horace was the owner, on a twenty-per-cent margin, of a theoretical two thousand dollars' worth of the paper he had been so glib about all morning.

HE CAUGHT it at 20½, and sitting there in his familiar leather chair, his eyes glued upon the glorified blackboard that formed the far side of the room, he watched a miracle happen. The stock went to 21 and by stages to 22; it went to 23 and to 24. Hours went by and still Horace sat there.

There was a buzz in the room when Con P & A reached 26, but still Horace sat motionless, staring. And steadily, though more slowly now, the stock went up. It went to the quarter, to the half, to the three-quarters.

Something snapped inside Horace. His body twitched; he unkinked with a jerk, and found himself wobbling to his feet. "Sell," he croaked, and waved a futile hand toward Mr. Inchtaker. "For heaven's sake, sell that P & A. At the market—any price—only sell it, quick."

And Horace plumped back into his chair. From beside him he heard a boomed echo of his own command. And then the major was standing over him, pumping his hand.

"That's what I like to hear," said the major with enthusiasm. "Pleasure to be associated with a man who knows his own mind. I tell you what, Peebles. I've been watching you. I've been thinking about you. There's a company I'm interested in. Board proposition, but besides hard going. Need a man like you—man with nerve and power of decision. Don't know whether you'd be interested, but I'm like to have you meet your fellow directors and talk it over. Can't meet your terms, but I'm willing to discuss it."

An hour later Horace Beeble was in a taxicab speeding home. On the seat beside him reposed two neatly wrapped packages. One of them contained three pairs of sheerest silk stockings; the other contained a bottle of rare old cognac. Probably Matilda would want to exchange the stockings for something she used to wear in the old days, but he bought them, and the cognac, just the same since what's the use of struggle over a few dollars? He was going to wait in the taxicab, and flood the house with cognac, and tell Matilda of his new job.

It was funny, thought Horace Beeble, the way the world began to shed riches as soon as he got. The astounding thing was like an avalanche.

Matilda met him at the door. She looked tired.

He handed her the packages and then, very solemnly, produced from his breast pocket a check. "Look at this," he said. But he could not keep up the solemnity. He was too excited. "Look at it—from my late uncle's attorneys. I just got it today at the club. I knew the letter from the lawyers—well, we have it in the family. And his lawyer [illegible] that the estate [illegible] $1,421.12."

"All that from a rich [illegible]?" gasped Matilda. "And those? Let's see the [illegible]."

HORACE BEEBLE, who had torn the letter into small bits, said very deliberately: "I must have left the letter [illegible] where I can't find it."

"We could have framed it," said his wife. "There, there, dear, we won't [illegible] this fifteen hundred in the stock market, will we?"

"Absolutely not," said Horace Beeble. He eyed her tenderly. It was fun having two surprises at once. He would wait a little to let this one sink in, and then he would tell her about his new job.

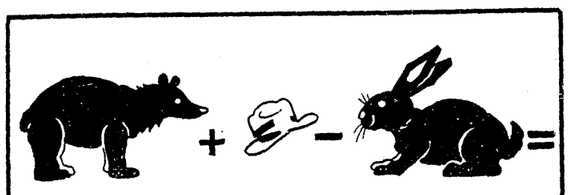
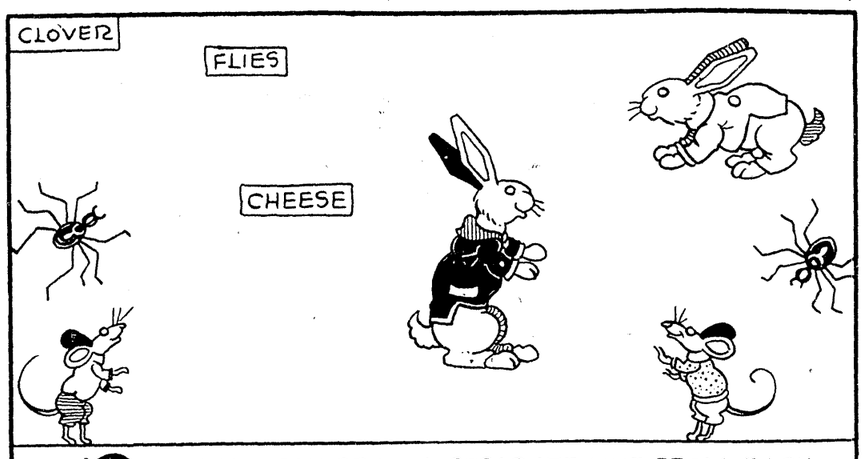
EVERYBODY'S PLAYMATE

★ BY A.W. NUGENT THE WORLD'S LEADING PUZZLEMAKER ★



CAN YOU ADD AND SUBTRACT THE LETTERS FORMING THE NAMES OF THE ABOVE THREE PICTURES? IF YOU DO THIS CORRECTLY YOU WILL HAVE AS A RESULT, THREE LETTERS THAT WILL SPELL THE NAME OF A CERTAIN BIRD. WHAT BIRD IS IT?

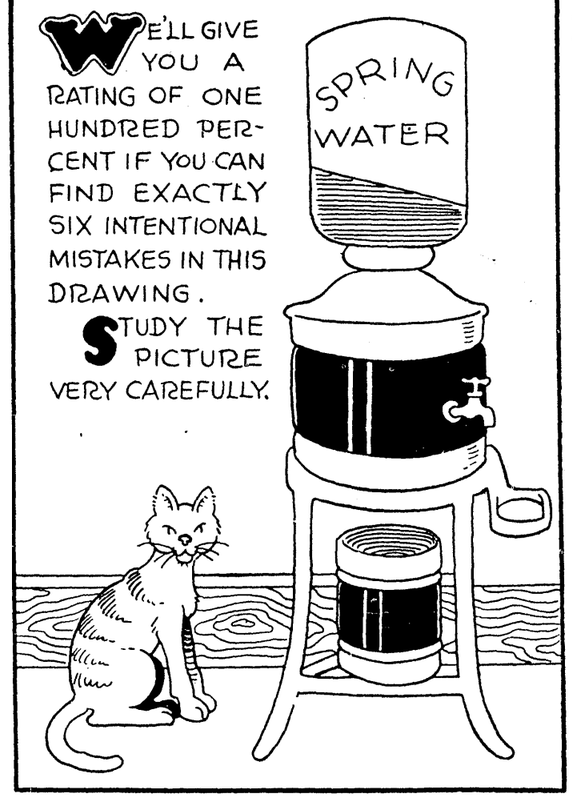
A.W. NUGENT



SEE IF YOU CAN DRAW A SEPARATE LINE FROM EACH SPIDER TO THE FLIES, FROM EACH RABBIT TO THE CLOVER AND FROM EACH MOUSE TO THE CHEESE WITHOUT CROSSING OR TOUCHING ANOTHER LINE OR ANYTHING ELSE IN THE PICTURE.

WE'LL GIVE YOU A RATING OF ONE HUNDRED PERCENT IF YOU CAN FIND EXACTLY SIX INTENTIONAL MISTAKES IN THIS DRAWING.

STUDY THE PICTURE VERY CAREFULLY.



AN AMUSING TRICK. EXTEND THE LEFT HAND FLAT, AS IN FIG. 1, AND ON THE SECOND AND THIRD JOINTS OF THE FOREFINGER DRAW TWO CURVED EYEBROWS WITH A SOFT PENCIL. THEN ON THE KNUCKLE OF THE SECOND FINGER SHADE IN TWO LINES TO REPRESENT THE NOSE. BREAK TWO WHITE-CENTER MATCHES OFF SHORT, AND HOLD THEM BETWEEN YOUR FINGERS AS SHOWN. NOW CLOSE YOUR FIST AND THRUST YOUR THUMB BETWEEN THE SECOND AND THIRD FINGERS, AS IN FIG. 2. THEN WRAP A HANDKERCHIEF OVER YOUR HAND CONCEALING THE LITTLE FINGER AS IN FIG. 3. BY MOVING THE THUMB YOU WILL MAKE AN AMUSING HEAD OF A TOOTHLESS OLD WOMAN MUMBLING.

WE CAN SPELL 13 ENGLISH WORDS OF TWO OR MORE LETTERS BY READING THE LETTERS IN ROTATION AROUND THE CIRCLE FROM LEFT TO RIGHT.

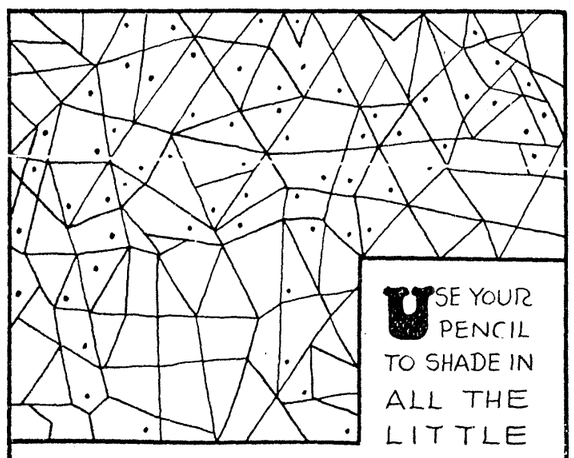
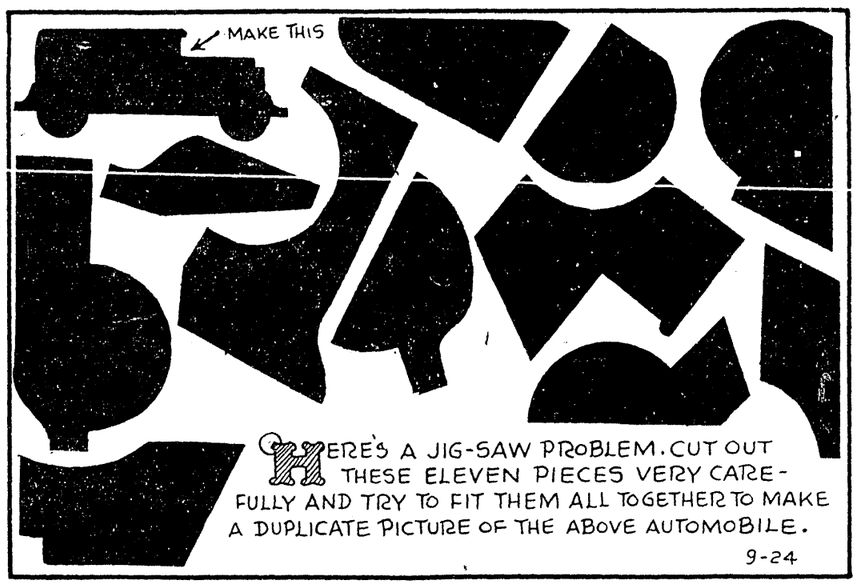
—AND ALL THE KING'S MEN COULDN'T PUT HUMPTY DUMPTY TOGETHER AGAIN. TWO OF THE KING'S MEN ARE HIDDEN IN THIS PICTURE. CAN YOU FIND THEM?

A.W. NUGENT



USE YOUR PENCIL TO SHADE IN ALL THE LITTLE SECTIONS IN WHICH YOU SEE A DOT AND SEE WHAT HAPPENS. YOU WILL MAKE A CERTAIN PICTURE.



HERE'S A JIG-SAW PROBLEM. CUT OUT THESE ELEVEN PIECES VERY CAREFULLY AND TRY TO FIT THEM ALL TOGETHER TO MAKE A DUPLICATE PICTURE OF THE ABOVE AUTOMOBILE.

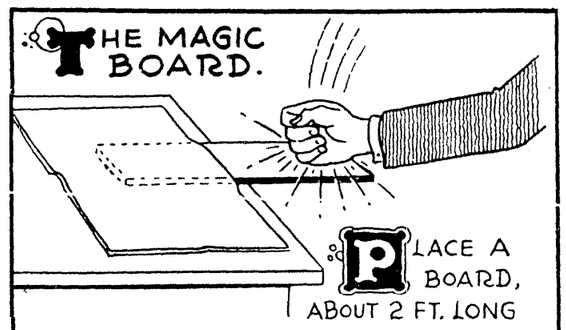
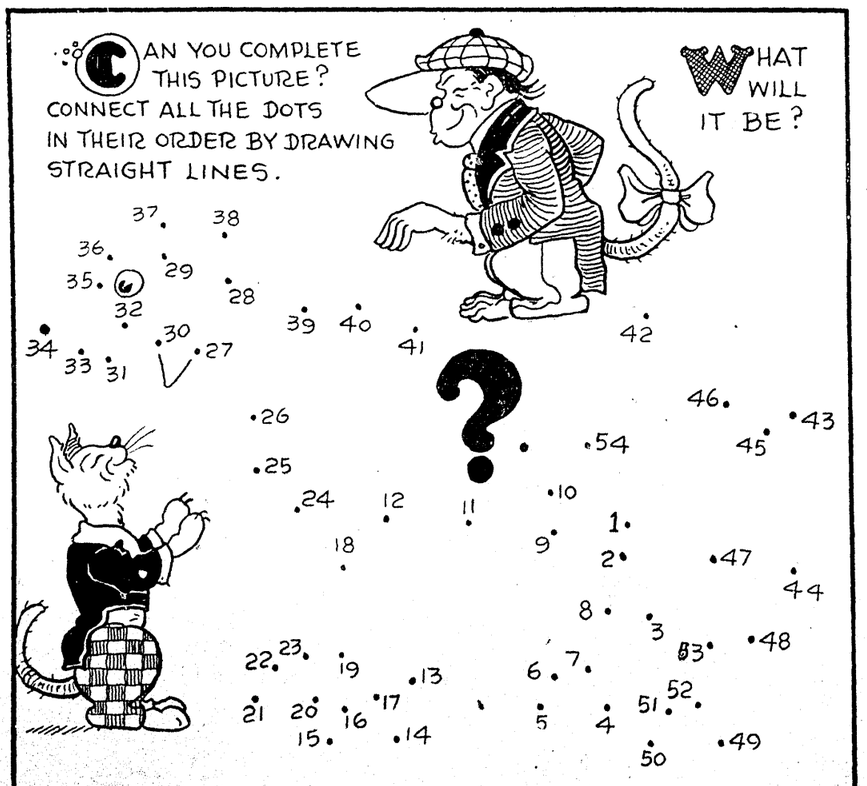
THE MAGIC BOARD.



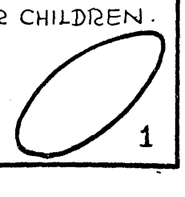
PLACE A BOARD, ABOUT 2 FT. LONG AND ABOUT 6 IN. WIDE UPON A TABLE. THEN LAY A NEWSPAPER OVER IT AS SHOWN ABOVE... CHALLENGE YOUR FRIEND TO KNOCK THE BOARD OFF THE TABLE BY HITTING IT AS HARD AS HE CAN WITH HIS FIST... HE WILL FIND, TO HIS SURPRISE, THAT THE BOARD WILL NOT MOVE.

CAN YOU COMPLETE THIS PICTURE? CONNECT ALL THE DOTS IN THEIR ORDER BY DRAWING STRAIGHT LINES.



WHAT WILL IT BE?

A DRAWING LESSON FOR CHILDREN.



COPY THE PICTURES IN ORDER.
